CLASHES SLOW COUNCIL'S QUIZ

A More Tolerant World.
Do You Take Golf Lessons?
33 Cent Wheat?
Killed for Not Killing.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"FATHER TOOTH," one of the so-called "Anglo-Catholics," but in reality not a Catholic at all, is dead at the age of 99. His death reminds you that the world constantly becomes more tolerant. He violated the law of the Church of England, by "ritualistic practices," and "wearing illegal vestments, elevating the Host, setting up images, and a second altar in his church." Admonished, he repeated the offense the following Sunday. There was a riot, stones were thrown, and "Father Tooth" went to jail.

When he got out, he had to climb through the window to get into his church. Great crowds came. Then, most sensibly, he was allowed to do as he liked, and the crowds disappeared.

Moral: Never sit on a safety valve. Let everybody think as he chooses, in and out of religion, as long as he attacks nobody else's belief.

ARE YOU taking golf lessons? Paying some professional to tell you what to do with your head, arms, wrists, feet, knees, eyes and club?

Learn that you may have to take those lessons all over again. Slow-motion "movies" of the great Bobby Jones and the beautiful Joyce Wethered in action show that these great golfers do not "break their wrists on the backswing" until very late in the swing. And Jones, the great, hesitates at the top of his swing, shifts his body and gets planted before he brings the clubhead down.

Theory and practice are far apart in golf, and in all education.

EVENTS IN New York make Republicans cheerful. The Legislature, Republicans in control, decides to investigate New York City, and all its doings. Thanks to prohibition-bootleg corruption in courts, police, and elsewhere, they'll find plenty to investigate.

The Governor of the state has requested Mr. Walker, mayor of the city, to reply to charges made against him. The Mayor will do that when he ends his rest in California.

REPUBLICAN POLITICIANS say everything is cheerful now and New York will be for Hoover in '32.

BUT THERE'S just a cloud on the Republican horizon, considerably bigger than a man's hand, namely the danger that wheat will sell at 33 cents a bushel. On July 1, the Farm Board, that has taken out of the market 275,000,000 bushels of American wheat, paying 25 cents a bushel above world prices, will buy wheat no more.

With that powerful buyer gone, and the Farm Board awaking from its pleasant dream, wheat may drop to 33 cents. That might turn Republican farmers into raging Democrats.

GANGSTERS IN New York and points west, know the sorrow of being "damned if you do, and damned if you don't."

New York's gangster record yesterday was four dead, two others shot. All the killings were routine affairs, except that of Gangster Grimaldi. Police had recently questioned him concerning two murders. This worried him and when higher-up gangsters that employed him ordered him to attend to another execution, he, according to the police, "welched" on their orders. He was "put on the spot," and butchered, as a warning to hired killers that they must kill as ordered.

Discipline is a great force, in war, politics, religion, or crime.

THE BRITISH insist on being thorough, even in India, where it is hard, with Gandhi's help, to make 320,000,000 Asiatics settle down peacefully to paying taxes.

Gandhi and the British viceroy had agreed, and then, yesterday, Britain executed three Hindus, who had murdered a policeman. Great Hindu uproar over that. Another Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Unlike ourselves, the British take murder seriously. If you kill anybody in England, and are caught, you know that you have just three Sundays to live. Even in India political murderers are punished eventually.

YOU CANNOT please everybody.

Advanced thinkers in Europe led by Briand, of France, wanted a United States of Europe to tear down customs barriers between different nations and create a great European United States, all states trading freely with each other.

Germany said "All right, we shall start with Austria," and planned a trade agreement in accordance with United States of Europe ideas, making Germany and Austria the neucleus.

"Not at all," said France, and "Not at all," the other nations. "We don't want you to do that." So the United States of Europe is under a cloud.

FINDS PUBLIC OPPOSED TO MEASURE

House Chairman, However, Sets Hearing April 7; Lewin Scores Charges

Protests against the Rooney bill, to replace Pittsburgh's Board of Public Education with an elective body, today brought these developments:

1. Representative James P. Rooney, its sponsor, admitted "the people of Pittsburgh don't seem to want it," and declared that so far as he is concerned the embroiled measure is dead.

2. Nevertheless, Chairman Wilson, of the House Education Committee, set April 7 as the date for a public hearing on the bill.

3. Dr. A. L. Lewin, of the Pittsburgh board, denied Rooney's charges that milk was refused poor children, that no public accounting has been rendered in 20 years and that discrimination is shown in employment of teachers.

HARRISBURG, March 25.—James P. Rooney, legislator from Pittsburgh's North Side and former Pitt drop-kicker, who sponsored the Rooney bill to abolish the city's appointive Board of Public Education and substitute a paid board to be elected by the people, today declared that as far as he is concerned the bill is dead.

However, a public hearing on Rooney's bill was announced today by Representative Wilson, McKean, chairman of the House Education Committee. It will be held April 7 and will include also the bill to elect the school board of Philadelphia, sponsored by Representative Root.

Rooney said:

"The people of Pittsburgh don't seem to want the Rooney bill. They seem satisfied with the present system of appointing the Board of Public Education.

"Had they felt that some change was needed, the bill might have had a chance to pass. As it is, neither my colleagues nor myself will move to have it touched. It is dead.

Frankie Renner Far Under Ruth's Record

AKRON, O., March 25.—(INS.)—Miss Frankie Renner, pretty Akron aviatrix, today received word from the United States Bureau of Standards that the official altitude recorded by her barograph during her attempt to set a new women's record last March 13, was 24,990 feet, nearly 5,000 feet under the record of Ruth Nichols, of New York.

She said she would make a second attempt for the record within 10 days or two weeks.

Guns Boom as Wales Arrives in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 25.—(INS.)—Twenty-one guns boomed today as the liner Alcantara, bringing the Prince of Wales and Prince George here for a visit, arrived in the harbor.

Provisional President Vargas and his cabinet officially greeted the royal visitors, who were awaited by huge crowds lined along the boulevards.

Chaplin Imperiled On Wild Boar Hunt

SAINT SAENS, France, March 25.—(AP.)—Charlie Chaplin likes wild boar better on the platter than on the hoof. Hunting on the estate of the Duke of Westminster, he got in the way. A boar was charging right at him, was within 100 feet, when another hunter's bullet brought the animal down. Charlie helped to eat the boar later.

WOMAN PAY MESSENGER HELD UP

Gunmen Stop Her Auto, Take $1,000 After Foiling Her False-Money-Bundle Ruse

Two youthful bandits in an automobile forced the machine of Miss Elizabeth Smith, treasurer of the Peoples Ice Company, Friendship avenue and Pearl street, to stop at a curb near the plant today and took from her the company's $1,000 payroll and escaped.

Miss Smith, driven by Percy Jackson, Negro, of 48 Mayflower street, drew the money from the Highland National Bank and was returning to the office when, in Stratford avenue, between Coral street and Friendship avenue, the bandit car drove alongside.

PACKAGE RUSE FAILS

The driver of the bandits' auto, waving a revolver, warned:

"Stop that car or I'll shoot!"

Both bandits jumped from their machine when Jackson stopped, and while one kept the couple "covered" the other ordered Miss Smith to toss him "that package you have." Miss Smith threw him a package containing some towels, and the robber, after tearing open the bundle, said:

"I don't want this. Give me that one there!"

He pointed to a package on the seat beside Miss Smith.

While he examined the second package his companion went to the front of the payroll car and removed the rotor from the distributor so Jackson could not follow them. The bandits then sped down Stratford avenue and escaped. Miss Smith telephoned police from a nearby residence.

VIKING AIR HUNT FRUITLESS

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, March 25.—(INS.)—Hope of finding additional survivors of the blast-wrecked sealing ship Viking dwindled considerably today when Bernt Balchen and his two companions, after flying over Horse Island and White Bay for hours late yesterday, reported no signs of missing men.

Visibility was excellent, the fliers reported. After failing to find any trace of the score of Viking men on the south side of White Bay, they brought their plane back to Corner Brook.

The South Polar airman hoped to make another flight over White Bay and vicinity today or tomorrow. He was engaged for the search by Dr. Lewis Frissel, of New York, father of Varick Frissell, motion picture man, one of the two Americans among the missing.

BOMBING ROCKS EAST END AREA

A powder bomb which was exploded this morning in the rear of a building at 8031 Frankstown avenue, damaging homes in the vicinity and arousing residents in a radius of half a mile.

The front portion of the building, a two-story frame structure, is occupied by the butcher shop of Joseph Baum, the rear portion is the living quarters of Nicholas Patcova, 39, and his wife, Anna, 35. The bomb was exploded undereath the Patcova quarters.

Patcova was unable to advance any theory for the bombing. Samuel Teresi, 73, of 909 Blackadore avenue, owner of the building, likewise was unable to help police. The rear of Teresi's home on Blackadore avenue, faces the bombed building. Teresi estimated the damage at $1,000. Windows in many homes in the neighborhood were shattered and a small greenhouse in Teresi's back yard damaged.

Kline Dodges Worry At Cambridge Resort

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., March 25.—Mayor Charles H. Kline, seeking surcease from audits, probes and other cares of office, found a haven in the Bartlett Hotel here. Yesterday the Mayor took a trip to Erie and did not return until late last night. Today his program was not divulged.

Musmanno Near Fist Fight On Blue Laws; Repealers Killed, Loophole Seen

HARRISBURG, March 25.—Physical combat was narrowly averted at the hearing on Blue Law modification bills here when Representative M. A. Musmanno threatened to slap the face of a fellow legislator who had cast aspersions on Pittsburgh opponents of the state's antiquated Sunday closing laws of 1794.

The outburst came at a secret half-hour meeting of the House Law and Order Committee which killed Musmanno's and two other anti-blue law measures, but left the door open for a further contest and possible test vote on the floor of the House by reporting out a fourth measure to amend the ancient statute by permitting milk delivery an hour earlier on Sundays.

STORMY MEETING

According to reports of the stormy meeting which leaked out despite the fact the committee members were sworn to secrecy, Representative John J. Holmes, of Center County, charged that the Pittsburghers who attended the open hearing on blue law legislation here last week "came only for the ride."

Demanding that Holmes apologize, Musmanno is said to have arisen and shouted:

"You can't insult my people. They are as sincere about repealing the antiquated blue laws as you are in keeping them on the books. I should slap your face for that remark."

Other members of the committee interfered and an uproar of shouting and gesticulation is said to have followed. After a pledge of secrecy regarding the fight was exacted, the members then proceeded with their vote on the four bills.

MUSMANNO MUM

Musmanno refused to have anything to say regarding the face-slapping incident. He did assert, however, regarding the "pickling" of his own measure:

"The action of the Law and Order Committee was high handed, arbitrary and unjust.

Walker to Cut Vacation, Meet Attacks at Home

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP.)—Tammany made plans today to meet the attack launched in Albany by the legislature's decision to investigate the city's official life.

Mayor Walker is to leave Palm Springs, Cal., Sunday, and return home five days before he planned.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain in the governor's investigation of Crain's conduct in office, undertook a defense of Walker in a speech last night before the League for Political Education. There were laughter and boos.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, in Washington, declared the legislative investigation would unearth a system so corrupt as to be beyond control and curbing of any one city official, even if he wanted to break it.

Untermyer and Max D. Steuer are mentioned as likely possibilities on a committee of attorneys to guide Tammany.

Tammany has a plan for a board of strategy to aid office-holders who may come under legislative scrutiny.

American Army Doomed Foe

The picture of a beaten German army, and the Allies' discussion of armistice terms is drawn today by Gen. John J. Pershing in his memoirs, which appear in the Sun-Telegraph. Pershing urged surrender, and was supported by Foch when he insisted that one condition be the seizure of German submarines. It was the desperate driving attack of the American forces which made it impossible for Germany to carry the war into 1919, Pershing declares.

ENGINEERS CHARGE WASTE

Uphold Evans' Accusation Of Million a Year Loss in Public Works Department

City Council's public hearing of Henry Oliver Evans' charges that "bad engineering" and inefficiency in the Department of Public Works cost the city more than a million dollars annually made slight headway up to late this afternoon. Most of the day was spent in "bickering" over procedure and the taking of testimony of a purely technical character.

Of the 78 city contracts upon which Evans based his contention, he had had opportunity to present only one—the Lincoln avenue improvement. Three witnesses were called by Evans to substantiate his charges: E. C. Shoecraft, an engineer of Ann Arbor, Mich.; Newton F. Hopkins, of Wilkinsburg, and Otto G. Schultz, of Morristown, N. J., a former Pittsburgher.

Encountering considerable difficulty in ascertaining who did the estimating for the Lincoln avenue job, Evans threatened to call everybody in the epartment of Public Works. This statement came after he had examined, without obtaining much of the information he sought, two draftsmen from Lang's office in an effort to determine who was responsible for the alleged faulty estimates.

FREQUENT CLASHES

Frequently interrupted by clashes between members of City Council, Attorney Lee Beatty, representing Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, over methods of procedure, the hearing was held before an audience which comfortably filled the Council chambers in the City-County Building.

Shoecraft followed Evans to the stand. He said that contractors many times take advantage of small items in a job hoping that those quantities will be increased before completion of the work.

The witness was cross-examined by Attorney Beatty and questioned by Assistant District Attorney W. H. Colvin, who, with County Detective David Drexler, is in attendance at the investigation in an official capacity. Shoecraft, replying to Colvin, admitted that any quantity of materials could be used on a street improvement project.

SCORES COUNCILMEN

Evans made repeated attempts to summarize his charge against the Public Works Department. Each time his efforts were opposed by President Herron, Councilman W. Y. English and Attorney Beatty. Making his second attempt, Evans said:

"I'll present this case as I want to, although you will rule as you usually rule. I'm not getting paid for this, but you are. You are going to waste your time, my time, and the city's time if you keep this investigation on for a month."

Evans at his first rebuff had declared that if Beatty's suggestion that each charge be discussed sep-

SEEK 5 MORE IN LOTTERY DRIVE

County detectives were sent out to take five more alleged "numbers" men into custody today as District Attorney Andrew T. Park continued his investigation of the lottery racket. Four were arrested yesterday.

Park announced the next few days would bring about new arrests and further developments.

The investigation followed admission of Pearl Ida Ferguson, former Dormont bank teller, that much of the $6,000 she embezzled found its way into the purses of the lottery men.

Her information resulted in the arrest of S. O. Thomas and Elmer Grant, both of Dormont. The pair implicated Lawrence P. Bope, also of Dormont, and Bope's information led the investigators to the arrest of Patsy Young, a prize-fighter, of Broadway, Beechview, and Jess Levy, Plainview street, Beechview.

Young talked under grilling, detectives said, but Levy kept silent. Park threatened Levy with jail on a district attorney's retainer, but later changed his mind and admitted him to bail.

1,571,291 Veterans Seek Bonus Loans

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(INS.)—Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, announced today that so far this month there had been received 1,571,291 applications for loans on war veterans adjusted compensation certificates. Of this number 501,203 checks had been mailed to a value of $189,005,172.

Mellon Reconciliation With Ex-Wife Unlikely

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Any inference that the purchase of "Rokeby," the 400-acre Virginia horse farm, by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon might indicate a possible reconciliation with his former wife, Mrs. McMullen Mellon, who will spend some time there each year, is totally without foundation. While Secretary Mellon refused to be interviewed on the subject, this was learned today from some of his most intimate associates.

This is the second time that such a rumor has been started, the first being about two years ago, when, merely by a coincidence, the Treasury Secretary and his former wife sailed for Europe on board the same steamship.

Mr. Mellon's friends state, without qualification, that a reconciliation is out of the question and Mrs. Mellon's presence at the newly-purchased estate means only that when she comes to this country for a visit, from her home in Hertfordshire, England, she will spend some weeks with her son and daughter.

While no definite information could be obtained, it is expected that Paul Mellon, in whose name his father purchased the Virginia property from Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, will return to this country within the next few weeks, the college term at Cambridge, England, where he is a student, now being over. It is expected that his mother will follow shortly and will make her headquarters at "Rokeby," where her daughter, the former Miss Ailsa Mellon, now Mrs. David Bruce, will also be a visitor during the Virginia racing season.

COUNCIL HEARS CHARGES AGAINST LANG'S DEPARTMENT

EVANS PUTS WASTE AT MILLION

Opening of Quiz Marked By Clashes With Counsel; Engineers Go on Stand

[illegible] ately [illegible] tion would last a month.

Councilman English, visibly angry, declared:

"We thought that we were doing the right thing by referring the food investigation to the Mayor. We got a great deal of razzing from the newspapers and some of our good-thinking citizens. When you asked for a hearing we gave it to you. Why not let us run this according to regular procedure."

ENGINEER GRILLED

Beatty asked Shoecraft in opening his cross-examination:

"Have you ever done any actual work in Western Pennsylvania?"

Shoecraft replied that he had not, and Beatty said:

"You do not have any personal knowledge of the difficulties on the Lincoln avenue job."

Beatty then asked the witness:

"If it develops that the quantities used were as carefully estimated as possible beforehand, and that increases were due to the peculiar difficulties met in construction, then they would be nothing to be shocked about?"

Shoecraft replied:

"Yes. But ordinarily people are shocked. I don't think it is good engineering practice."

TECHNICAL QUIZ

Newton F. Hopkins, of Wilkinsburg, was Evans' next witness. He said that he has been an engineer for 35 years and has spent approximately 30 in this region. Questions asked him were of a highly technical character in an effort being made by Lang's attorney to discredit him as an authority on street paving.

A tilt marked the opening of the hearing. It was between Evans and Attorney Lee Beatty, representing Director Edward G. Lang. Beatty suggested that Evans make a general statement as to what he had against the department and then take up each contract one by one. This was proposed Beatty said, to give the department an opportunity to make its rebuttal on each instance.

Evans opposed the move. He said:

"If we do that we will be here for a month. This is what you might call a lawsuit, with the taxpayers against the Mayor and his appointees. President Herron is the judge and Council members are the jury."

Request was made by Attorney Colvin that all witnesses be sworn before being permitted to testify, as any statement they may make might be needed in the future. Witnesses were sworn as they were called.

BANS GARBAGE CHARGE

As Evans started his opening arguments he proposed that Council listen to a discussion of the garbage and rubbish disposal method. Herron objected, declaring that it was Council's impression that this was an investigation and hearing of the Public Works Department. He said that Lang had nothing to do with the disposal of garbage or rubbish, and that the director of the Public Health Bureau, under whose jurisdiction the garbage and rubbish disposal system comes, was not present.

Evans yielded to Herron's ruling.

Director Lang was accompanied to the hearing by Charles Reppert and J. J. Croak, Public Works engineers.

Evans, in opening his attack upon the Public Works Department, referred to the improvement of Lincoln avenue from Lemington to Frankstown avenue, where engineers estimated 200 yards of broken stone sub-base and the city put in 1,921 yards. He charged that on the same job an estimate that 100 cubic yards of lumnite concrete would be required but that the final quantity used was 227 yards.

NOT A CANDIDATE

Declaring that he has no "ulterior motives," nor has he any political ambitions, Evans said that he appears before City Council as a taxpayer in a case entitled:

"The taxpayers of Pittsburgh versus the Mayor of Pittsburgh and his appointees."

Evans continued:

"On the other hand I am not promoting the political or financial interests of any person or persons, or combination of persons.

"I am not a prosecuting attorney. I have no evidence of graft, although I am as sure as I am here that it has been committed."

Evans declared that this was a business investigation of a business question, and that he was prepared to show the city's methods for preparing and letting street paving and sewer contracts were careless, unbusinesslike, and opened the door to fraud.

The existence of large increases over the estimates of trained engineers on city street jobs represents bad engineering, to say the least, Evans said. He held that such mistakes would not be tolerated in private business.

CRITICIZES "EXTRAS"

Referring to the Lincoln avenue improvement, which was cited as an example of inefficiency, Evans commented:

"It's unfortunate that the increases nearly always occur in high-priced items."

A ripple of laughter swept the hearing room when Evans pointed out the cost of catch basins used on the Lincoln avenue improvement. He said:

"They are certainly a catch, because they're $10 a piece."

He referred also to the large increases in new and re-used lumber, broken stone, sub base and lumnite concrete.

Evans then read a report which he claimed came from an engineer on the Lincoln avenue job in which the engineer said that it was questionable whether the use of broken stone was necessary.

He then mentioned briefly the 22 jobs he had tabulated up to the present time and declared that their total cost was $1,053,057, an increase of $533,606, or approximately 50 per cent.

Councilman English charged Evans with misleading the public. He said:

"You are misleading the public by mentioning the increases and not the decreases. If you don't read the decreases as well as the increases someone else will."

ENGLISH ANSWERS

At one juncture in the hearing Herron interrupted, stating that what Council wanted to know was why the increases were made. To which English replied:

"The department will have plenty of time to do that."

Declaring that it was not good engineering when the final estimates are so much at variance with the original, Engineer Schultz said:

"In my opinion the engineer did not know what he was doing. It is mere guesswork."

Beatty asked Schultz:

"If this contract was let under fair competition, as provided by law, then there is nothing to show that these quantities were not used?"

Evans interrupted with:

"If the quantities were put in."

Herron added his opinion:

"The quantities that were not put in would be dear at any price."

BRIDGE UNDER FIRE

Continuing the questioning of Schultz, Beatty asked:

"Do you know that the Twenty-second Street Bridge piers constructed by your company had to be torn out?"

Schultz said that he was not aware of that fact. It developed that the pier had been built by a company whom had sub-let the job from Drake-Stratton, Schultz's firm.

Evans made another attempt to be allowed to place all of his testimony before Council at one time, and have questions on it later. Attorney Colvin interrupted Evans, saying that all of the expert testimony presented so far had dealt with generalities, adding:

"I now agree with Mr. Evans that it is best to go ahead and present the testimony all at once."

URGES SPEED

Evans pointed out that he desired to read all of his figures into the records, after which he intended to place one expert on the stand to testify in detail and the other two in generalities. He continued:

"We can get through in a day and a half, I hope. I've got to pay for it. That's my case, and you can go ahead and tear it to pieces if you can."

To which Herron replied:

"We will give you all the time necessary, but you and Mr. Beatty must agree upon what you want to do."

Claiming that Evans' presentation of his case in the manner requested would be unfair, Attorney Beatty said:

"We want to get the same publicity the other side is getting."

Herron interposed, saying:

"It has been intimated here that Mr. Schultz's firm built the Twenty-second street bridge. If he did built it, and we had to replace it, we want to know about it."

LAUGH AT HERRON

Evans got a laugh when he said:

"Broadcasting again, John."

"Tampering with the lives of people is serious."

Working until late last night, Lang remained in his office completing the data he will offer in evidence. Copies of all letters, contracts and bids in connection with the 78 projects Evans charged were handled irregularly, have been made by Lang's office force and these will be given Council for inspection.

Lang said:

"I welcome this probe and I am glad that I'll have a chance to show just how much work I have done for the City of Pittsburgh. The public doesn't realize tremendous improvement projects that have been completed in the last few years. The records from the time I took office in 1926 will be produced. I have nothing to fear."

BAR TO STUDY ZAPPALA CASE

Committee Plans to Attend Accused Lawyer's Hearing And Then Make Report

The committee on offenses of the Allegheny County Bar Association will attend a hearing tomorrow before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan of Attorney Frank Zappala on embracery charges, Arthur M. Scully, association president, said today.

Attorney Zappala is scheduled to be arraigned with Barney Gardina, 45, and Bartholomew Bordonaro, 36, Tarentum fruit merchants, on charges which were the outgrowth of an investigation into alleged jury "fixing" made by Judge James H. Gray and District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Scully said that action of the Bar Association in dealing with Zappala's case will depend upon the report of the hearing, which will be made to the association by the committee on offenses. The association will not discuss the case until the report is received, it was said.

Zappala is free under $2,500 bail. According to facts said to have been brought out by Judge Gray's investigation, Zappala, with the others, attempted to "fix" the jury in a case the attorney defended in Criminal Court last week.

Clifford H. Sober, of 103 Tenth avenue, Tarentum, a juror in the case, precipitated the investigation by reporting to Park that Gardina had approached him and had asked him to help the defendant. Samuel Molesa, of 1013 Webster avenue.

Gardina was immediately questioned by the court, and he involved Bordonaro, who in turn involved Attorney Zappala. Following the investigation the three were released on $2,500 each.

Molesa was convicted of five charges of robbery and one of carrying concealed weapons the morning after the alleged "fix" was attempted. Molesa was charged with the holdup of five members of a section gang on the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad last October.

SPLIT ORDERS SHIPPED HERE IN BULK

Kerr Says Succop Urged 'Bargain Price,' Threat Of Drought as Emergency

Bertram L. Succop, deposed director of the Department of Supplies, conferred with Controller James P. Kerr prior to the purchase of an $11,000 order of canned goods from the L. H. Parke Company last August.

A copy of a letter from Succop's department to the L. H. Parke Company confirming the purchase and dated August 19, 1930, is attached to the railroad waybills in the files at Mayview.

The letter says that the purchase was made after consultation with the controller.

The waybills show that the canned goods arrived in nine cars placed on the siding at Mayview in a period from September 4 to September 30, 1930. Most of the shipments were valued at more than $1,000, although the order was paid for in lots of $500 or less, apparently to avoid difficulty in regard to lack of bids.

Controller Kerr recalls, he declares, that Succop came to him in August and told him it was possible for the city to get a bargain price on a large lot of canned goods. Succop pointed out that it would be good business for the city to buy them, because of the drought, Dr. Kerr said.

After making inquiry regarding the canned goods market, Dr. Kerr says he came to the conclusion that the purchase would be a good thing. He said:

"I told Succop he might go ahead and buy the goods. Under the conditions of drought then existing, I felt it was an emergency purchase."

LETTER REVEALED

Asked whether he had approved the splitting up of the order into less than $500 lots, Dr. Kerr said he had not given the matter personal consideration after his talk with Succop.

The copy of the letter from the Department of Supplies to the L. H. Parke Company is unsigned. It follows:

"The L. H. Parke Company.

"Gentlemen:

"I beg herewith to confirm a purchase made by my chief clerk after a consultation with the City Controller. The following are the items purchased:

"Yours very truly."

AUDIT AT MAYVIEW

Attached to the waybills also was a letter from the Department of Welfare to Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent at Mayview, stating that the Department of Supplies had purchased canned goods and asked that they be stored at Mayview until further orders.

The orders, totaling 1,750 dozen cans, arrived at Mayview in seven shipments. The records show 475 dozen were received September 4, three lots of 500 dozen, 525 dozen, and 100 dozen on September 9, 50 dozen on September 15, 80 dozen on September 22 and 20 dozen on September 30.

Two auditors of Main & Co. were working on the general records of warehouse at Mayview yesterday and are expected to return there today. This is a part of the audit conducted by the League of Women Voters and the Citizens Committee.

The accountants refused to disclose any of their findings. Superintendent Hammers also declined to say anything regarding the audit, declaring that all statements must come from Mrs. Enoch Rauh, head of the Welfare Department.

Auditors for the controller, as well as the civic organizations, are continuing their check into the records of the Department of Supplies in Court Room No. 8, City-County Building. As yet no trace has been found of the missing loose-leaf bid sheets for 1929.

WOMAN IN PAY CAR HELD UP

stolen from H. L. Fletcher of 4733 Center avenue, 20 minutes before the robbery.

Three young men kept police and detectives on the run early today when they held up two East Liberty restaurants and a Squirrel Hill pastry shop.

The first holdup the trio staged was in the pastry shop of R. R. McCartney at 5826 Forbes street. The three entered with drawn guns and while two watched McCartney, who was alone in the shop, the third man emptied two cash registers. The amount of loot was not estimated.

RESTAURANTS ROBBED

Fifteen minutes later three men held up Wise's restaurant, 6026 Center avenue, where they threatened Morris Friedman, the proprietor, two waitresses and a customer and escaped with $25.

While police were obtaining a report of the robbery in the Wise Restaurant, the holdup men went two blocks away to the Sheridan Restaurant at 6200 Penn avenue, where they climaxed the night's work by holding up the establishment where a dozen persons were dining. Police say they obtained approximately $200.

Oakmont police were questioning a suspect today in connection with the holdup of a bus driver. Two men held up and robbed Charles Martsolf, of 1312 Dormont avenue, Dormont, driver of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company's Oakmont bus, at Mt. Carmel and Sandy Creek roads, Penn Township, last night. They got $40 and Martsolf's watch. The driver was bound and gagged with adhesive tape and left on the bus floor.

HOOVER MAY PLACE 'T.R.' ON TICKET

Praise for Young Roosevelt Revives Rumor Curtis Will Be Shelved in '32

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—President Hoover's visit to Porto Rico and the high praise he has publicly bestowed upon Gov. Theodore Roosevelt's work there gave currency today to the long-circulating rumor that Mr. Hoover desires a new running mate for the 1932 campaign.

The rumor has been circulating in political circles for some time that Vice President Charles Curtis is to be shelved next year in favor of an Eastern candidate who presumably would have greater appeal to the Eastern anti-drys. The rumor is not generally credited, but its persistency has stirred up considerable comment and not a little resentment on the part of the Vice President's friends.

"T. R." BOOMED

It is an open secret in political Washington that friends of "Young T. R." are agitating his candidacy for the vice presidency. They stress the political value of the Roosevelt name and insist that it would appeal to the Progressive element in the West, which the Republicans are going to have to reckon with in 1932, as well as to the East, with which Roosevelt has been identified all of his political life. And in case the Democrats nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt, "Young Teddy's" friends insist his nomination on the Hoover ticket would be a master stroke.

RUMOR RETIREMENT

Stories circulated from time to time that Vice President Curtis was considering retiring next year and standing again for the Senate from his native Kansas are attributed to the boosters of the Roosevelt idea, but the only thing that would move the Vice President to retire from the '32 ticket, his friends say, would be for President Hoover himself to indicate that he desired it.

The Vice President's friends are inclined to scoff at the theoretical value of the Roosevelt name. They point out that Young T. R. lost New York when he ran against Alfred E. Smith for the governorship in 1924, while Coolidge was carrying it by a landslide. Any other Republican that year would have beaten Smith, they contend.

Natives' Parade Welcomes Hoover at Virgin Islands

By GEORGE E. DURNO.
International News Service.

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, March 25.—A picturesque parade by natives of the Virgin Islands today featured the arrival here of President Hoover on his tour of the West Indian possessions of the United States.

The President was greeted at the pier by Gov. Paul Pearson, of Swarthmore, Pa., and Capt. Waldo Evans, retiring naval governor of the islands. As Mr. Hoover and his party disembarked from the U. S. S. Arizona, he and his party made their way to the dock in a motorboat through a double line of gaily decorated canoes.

Coolidge Sees Propriety In Austro-German Plan

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 25.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

The direct practical interest of the United States in the customs union of Austria and Germany cannot be large. Our exports to Austria are small and her products cannot interfere in an important way with our exports to Germany. Probably our legal interest is about the same as that of the Allied powers, for our treaty of peace provided we should have the same rights and privileges as if we had ratified the Versailles Treaty.

Mr. Coolidge

It is not so easy to assess our indirect interest. Whatever disturbs the political tranquility of Europe is injurious on this side of the Atlantic. It is not lightly to be assumed that Germany and Austria are putting a chip on their shoulders. They are entitled to the presumption of good faith. They are justified in taking any legal action to protect their joint economic interests.

It is generally agreed by experts that European tariff barriers have reached the destructive point. But action in relation to them should be taken in a way not to alarm the sensibilities of others. Perhaps, before the final consummation of the union, suitable declarations will be made and guarantees given which will allay the fear that more is intended than the agreement discloses.

Norma Shearer in Radio Interview Tonight

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(Universal.)—Norma Shearer makes her radio debut this afternoon. The popular Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star whose pictures, "Divorcee" and "Strangers May Kiss," have been among the successful screen plays of the year, will be heard between 8:30 and 8:45 Pittsburgh time over the Columbia Broadcasting System on the Sunkist program.

Miss Shearer will be the guest star of Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of the Hearst newspapers and Universal Service, in the seventh interview in Miss Parsons' series of weekly broadcasts. Thousands of fans all over the country will be delighted to hear Miss Shearer, who will chat informally on her career.

A discussion of the recent roles Miss Shearer has been portraying on the screen and her reasons for playing these characters will be one of the highlights of the interview. Amusing anecdotes will be offered by Miss Shearer and Miss Parsons in this talk, which promises to be one of the most entertaining of the series.

GIRL STUDENTS' FLIGHTS FAIL

Eight Western Pennsylvania girls, students at Goucher College, Baltimore, Md., attempted to fly home for their Easter vacations and were forced down by snow storms, according to a story related today.

Dorothy Greig, daughter of Dr. T. G. Greig, of 22 Clifton boulevard, said she left in one plane with Frances Pringle, of Punxsutawney, and Margaret Beadle, of Du Bois.

In another plane were Hannah Powell, of McKeesport; Dorothy Branson, of Oregon, visiting Miss Powell; Mary Louise Lloyd, of 413 Eleventh avenue, Munhall; Mary E. Wilson, of Clairton, and Natalie Jones, of 1007 Sheridan avenue, Pittsburgh.

Miss Greig said the pilot of their plane became lost and was forced to land at Millerstown. They took off again, after refueling, but were again forced down at Chambersburg. They came from Chambersburg by train.

Miss Greig said she learned in a telephone conversation with Miss Powell that her plane was forced to return to Washington, D. C., after they had flown about 100 miles. Miss Powell's party left Washington last night by train for Pittsburgh.

Circumstantial Evidence Hope for Conviction, Says Potter Case Prosecutor

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, March 25.—"Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin was hired to aid in the plot to murder former Councilman William E. Potter, County Prosecutor Ray T. Miller charged in his opening statements before the jury hearing the first degree murder trial of Martin here today. Miller declared:

"The state will produce evidence to show that Martin was brought from Pittsburgh to plan the murder of Potter and that Martin was one of the hired conspirators."

Miller said the state will base its attempt to convict Martin on a single key, found in the lock of the apartment door when Potter's body was discovered last February 8. This key, he asserted, was the one given Martin by Fred C. Laub, custodian of the apartment building.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

Miller continued:

"Circumstances produced in the evidence to be presented by the state will point directly to Hyman Martin, who procured the place for the crime and perhaps was there."

Miller explained that the need for circumstantial evidence in the case was apparent because "this crime was planned—criminals picked the place and set a time for the killing so eye-witnesses would be unavailable."

Defense Attorney William Marshall followed Miller in making the opening statements in behalf of Martin.

JURY VIEWS KILLING SCENE

The jury hearing the trial—composed of seven men and five women, and a woman alternate—was sworn in after two days of tedious examination. The first venire of 75 persons had been depleted and several talesmen were taken from the second venire of 45 before the jury finally was satisfactory to both sides.

After the jury had been formally sworn, they were taken to the Parkwood drive apartment in which Potter was murdered, presumably on the night of last February 3.

Judge Walter McMahon pointed out certain features of the suite which will be mentioned in the trial.

Martin, shackled to a detective, accompanied the jurors to the death apartment and looked on in silence while the inspection was under way. When asked by a reporter if he had been in the apartment before, Martin replied:

"I was never here before. I don't even know where I am now."

PICTURE IN CELL

Affable and immaculate at all times, Hymie complained yesterday that he had no one with whom to play cards in jail at night. He said:

"I have played solitaire so much that I've worn the spots off the cards."

His trip to the murder apartment with the jury yesterday afternoon was the first time he has been out in the open since his return to Cleveland on February 18. Last night, a picture of "Akron Mary" was pinned on the wall in his cell.

CRACKED ICE FALLING OVER THE BOW OF THE POLAR SUB: "YOUR NAME'S NAUTILUS!"

ARRANGE TESTS FOR POLAR SUB

NEW YORK, March 25.—(INS.)—The submarine in which Sir Hubert Wilkins will explore the Arctic will leave today or tomorrow for tests in the Hudson River. Later it will proceed off the New England coast for further tests.

The submarine was christened the Nautilus yesterday by Lady Suzanne Wilkins, who showered the craft with ice cubes as she said:

"Ship, I name you Nautilus. Go on your wonderful adventure. In your heart is sacred treasure. Bring that treasure safely back to me."

Standing beside her were her husband, Sir Hubert; Capt. Sloan Danenhower, skipper of the Nautilus, and Mrs. Danenhower; Jean Jules Verne, grandson of the famous Frenchman who wrote "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea;" Simon Lake, noted submarine inventor, who designed the reconstructed Nautilus, and Chaplain Edward A. Duff, of the United States Navy.

It was the anniversary of the death of Jules Verne, who in his romantic book envisioned, many years ago, just such a trip as Sir Hubert and his gallant companions propose to make aboard the Nautilus.

4 YOUTHS HELD IN GAS HOLDUP

The holdup of the service station of James Meyers, 500 Brookline boulevard last Monday night resulted in four young men being held for court, even though police testified they had been tipped on the robbery by one of the prisoners.

Those held were Harry Hardesty, 20, of 920 Norwich avenue, Brookline, and William Jenkins, 20, of 3026 Texas avenue, Dormont, on charges of entering a building and larceny, and Charles V. Banks, 22, of 2736 Waddington avenue, and Lawrence Brundage, 17, of 521 Brookline boulevard, attendant at the gasoline station, on a charge of conspiracy to do an unlawful act.

Brundage tipped off Patrolman Edward G. Latz, which resulted in the arrest, Latz testified today at a hearing before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington Police Station, and on the night of the robbery told Latz to "stick around."

Brundage testified that Jenkins talked to him about the robbery five days before it was perpetrated. Brundage said he refused to go along.

As a result of Brundage's tip, Patrolman Latz testified, he, with Patrolmen Henry J. Bahler and Earl D. Robinson, secreted themselves in the station.

When the robbers, arriving in Bank's auto, entered, Hartesty is said to have taken $18.65 from the cash register. It was then that the police arrested the crowd. Banks was seated in his auto.

LINGLE SUSPECT IDENTIFIED

CHICAGO, March 25.—(INS.)—Identified by one witness as the man who fled the subway scene of the gangland murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune underworld reporter, Leo V. Brothers, of St. Louis, today faced the courtroom ordeal of further identification by the state's six witnesses to the crime.

Crowds of curious had gathered at the Criminal Court Building where the St. Louis gunman and labor "muscleman" is on trial for his life in the courtroom of Judge Joseph Sabath.

This far, Brothers has sat stolical and unmoved during the courtroom proceedings. The only interest he showed, apparently, was when the snub-nosed revolver, with which the recketeering reporter was killed, was held up for the jurors' inspection. The defendant scrutinized the weapon closely.

NEW JAIL PLOT TRIALS ASKED

ERIE, Pa., March 25.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today had in his possession motions for new trials for Attorney S. V. Rossiter, Joseph Donovan and Lester Beals, found guilty Saturday of conspiracy in the substitution of a prisoner in a liquor-smuggling case.

The motions were taken under advisement by Judge McVicar. Arguments may take place in Pittsburgh.

Attorneys W. Pitt Gifford and Francis Quinn, representing Rossiter and Donovan, and Attorney William Carney, representing Beals, claimed more than a score of reasons for new trials. They stressed that Joseph Patrone—star witness for the government—the man woh substituted and served the prison term here for Stanley Wells, alleged rum operator, was not competent to testify at the trial.

DR. SULLIVAN, EDUCATOR, DIES

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 25.—Dr. Daniel Richard Sullivan, 56, president of Seton Hill College, died in Westmoreland Hospital here early today as a result of injuries to the spine received in an automobile accident last November.

Dr. Sullivan

Although paralyzed, Dr. Sullivan continued to direct the affairs of the college. The educator came to Seton Hill in 1911, became dean of the faculty in 1918 and president in 1925. He was known as one of the leading Catholic educators in the East.

Dr. Sullivan was educated at Susquehanna Collegiate Institute, Towanda, Pa., Colgate University, Niagara University and St. Charles Seminary, Rochester, N. Y. He was ordained in 1909 for the Pittsburgh diocese and was sent to Wilmington for a year. In 1910 he was recalled and appointed to Holy Cross Church, Pittsburgh, and in 1911 was sent to Seton Hill.

Dr. Sullivan was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a fellow of the Royal Society of England, a member of the American Economics Association, the Rural Life Association, the American Sociological Society, the National Catholic Education Association, and the American Association of University Professors.

He was a nephew of the Rev. D. J. Bustin, ex-president of the Board of Catholic Negro Missions.

Seize Camouflaged Connellsville Still

UNIONTOWN, March 25.—Camouflaged so well by a saw mill that it deceived prohibition agents many months, a huge still was raided today on the premises of William Basinger, of Sprinfield Pike, near Connellsville, so much liquor was seized that the raiders did not remove it. Whisky in the still was burned.

Clarence Basinger, 23, and his father were arrested.

NATIONALIST SAVED BY FRIEND

Benares Educator Balks Youth Who Aims Pole at Leader; Bombing Feared

KARACHI, India, March 25.—(AP.)—"This blood and ashes represent the body of Baghat Singh, whom you murdered; take it back to New Delhi with your truce," howled groups of red shirted Communists carrying black flags who met Mahatma Gandhi upon his arrival today from New Delhi.

Declining to receive a small tray with its grim, gruesome contents, Gandhi only smiled and maintained silence. Thereupon a red-shirted youth rushed toward Gandhi with a flagpole as if to attack him, but Pundit Madan Mohan Malaviya, vice chancellor of Benares University, frustrated the would-be assailant.

"LET HIM COME"

Gandhi exclaimed:

"Let him come, let him come. I do not fear him and he cannot hurt me."

The young Communists, who numbered about 30, shouted:

"Down with Gandhi, he is our betrayer, not our leader."

Fearing one of them might throw a bomb, Mayor Mehta, of Karachi, and other members of the reception committee, hustled Gandhi into a waiting automobile.

PROTESTS VIOLENCE

Gandhi, driving away from the Congress camp, yelled:

"I don't mind demonstrations against me, but they must not be violent."

The incident caused a painful impression at Congress headquarters, where it is believed that those who were prepared to sympathize with extremist elements will now rally to the venerated leader.

30 Moslems Killed As Natives Clash

LONDON, March 25.—(INS.)—Thirty Moslems were killed today and 100 injured in bitter clashes between Moslems and Indian Nationalists at Cawnpore, according to messages from Allahabad.

Several Europeans were included among the casualties. As the street fighting grew more intense, British troops were called out to help police quell disorders.

One Student Killed In Madrid Rioting

MADRID, March 25.—(INS.)—One student was reported killed and several wounded in a riot in front of the medical school here today.

The students staged a demonstration in favor of amnesty for all political prisoners, and when they became unruly, the police were forced to intervene.

Woman Arrested As Fortune Teller

Policewomen Nellie McDonald and Sarah McClanahan today arrested Helen Punwalowski, 42, of 176 Forty-fourth street, on charges of fortune telling and practicing medicine without a license.

LEWIN DENIES ROONEY'S CHARGES

Milk Not Refused to Poor Pupils, He Says; Calls Statement 'Ignorant'

Dr. A. L. Lewin, of the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education, today emphatically denied Representative James P. Rooney's charges that milk was refused to children who were unable to pay, that the board has rendered no public accounting in 20 years that members use the gymnatory in the employees' and teachers' and ignore complaints of visitors Lewin said.

"It's ignorance. Rooney's charges are not a statement of facts."

MILK APPROPRIATION

Dr. Lewin revealed that only yesterday the Board of Public Education authorized an emergency appropriation of $7,000 to supply milk to students during school hours, making a total of $16,000 appropriated for the present year. He declared that the board purchases milk for about two cents less than the market price and at that figure it is furnished the students. If they are able to pay, and milk is furnished free to those unable to pay. The additional funds were needed because of the present unemployment emergency, Dr. Lewin said.

Answering the charge of discrimination against Pittsburgh teachers, Dr. Lewin said that every consideration is given the Pittsburgh applicant.

CALLS CHARGE UNTRUE

Dr. Lewin added that Rooney's charge that the board had been known to ignore requests from school visitors was untrue. He explained that now and then the board needs some time to act on these requests, but that never are they ignored.

As to Rooney's contention that the board has made no public accounting of its expenditures for 20 years, Dr. Lewin pointed out that this report is not only sent to the Department of Education at Harrisburg, but that it is available to anybody who asks for it. Furthermore, he contended, the records of the board and the expenditures are audited annually by the City Controller's office and the meetings of the board, as a whole or in committee, are open to the public and that newspaper representatives are notified of each meeting.

BOROUGH LIGHT BILL OFFERED

HARRISBURG, March 25.—(AP.)—Boroughs would be permitted to manufacture or purchase electricity for use of its inhabitants, without approval or regulation of the Public Service Commission under provisions of a bill offered in the House today by Representative Moore Jefferson.

The bill would also authorize condemnation of existing electric plants without Public Service Commission approval, court-appointed viewers deciding the valuation where the boroughs and companies are unable to agree on the sale price.

Other bills introduced included regulate buses and truck carrying passengers and freight for thorizing boroughs to tax and pay.

Auto Driver Fee Cut Faces House Defeat

HARRISBURG, March 25.—The House next Monday night will take a vote to discharge the Highway Committee from further consideration of a bill of Representative Sowers, Philadelphia, to cut the auto driver's license fee from $2 to $1. The question was made a special order of business.

Sowers introduced a resolution to have the committee discharged.

Gov. Pinchot last year during the campaign pledged his support to such a reduction, but to date no administration bill has been introduced.

before the bill went in. I'm satisfied to take the responsibility, if there is any, I put it in myself.

"For five years I have been a school visitor. I have been principally interested in the Daniel Webster School, in the Twenty-second Ward.

"This school serves many poor children. Part of the health program of the Board of Public Education is to see that children get milk during school hours. In the Webster School, if the children haven't the money, I've been told, they don't get milk. Many can't get the money.

"Personally, members of the Board of Public Education stand highly in my regard. Still I wonder, sometimes, whether the people should not have an accounting, for business reasons.

"I don't say that there is anything wrong.

"But for 20 years the people have had no accounting of the expenditures of the Board of Public Education.

"We train in Pittsburgh, in the universities and elsewhere, qualified Pittsburgh young men and women. I have had complaints that they cannot get jobs—that outsiders have been called in to take good jobs when equally qualified Pittsburghers haven't been considered.

CITES COMPLAINTS

"School visitors, elected by the people, have made complaints. I know of cases where the board has ignored their requests for legitimate action on matters pertaining to the public schools, when these visitors have repeatedly made them.

"The board, in cases of written requests, have not even recognized by return letter that they received such requests.

"I have no complaints against the distribution of their buildings, their curriculum, their studies. I believe more attention might be paid to students who prefer to use their hands than their minds—vocational students whom nature has decided must earn their living in trades and crafts. But that's just my opinion.

HIS VIEWS UNCHANGED

"While many things may be right with the board, I feel it should be close to the people, the closer the better.

"Although the issue has ended as far as I am concerned, I still can hold to my opinion, and there are some who agree, that education is a responsibility of the people and should be directly answerable to them."

Musmanno in Blue Law Row

They refused to let the House of Representatives vote on a measure that is essentially a people's measure."

Hopes of the Blue Law foes to force an open fight were based on the wording of the title of the Sunday milk-delivery measure, known as the Schwartz bill, which reads:

"An act to amend section 1 of the act, approved the twenty-second day of April 1794, entitled 'The Sunday Blue Laws.'"

TEST LIKELY

Amendments, therefore, may be offered on the floor when the bill comes up for reading and the entire controversial subject of local option on Sunday amusement and entertainments may yet be fought out on the floor of the House of Representatives.

The bills killed were those of Representatives Musmanno, Wetzel and Dunn. The vote was reported 16 to 6.

Two of the measures killed would have permitted municipalities to exercise local option on Sunday sports and amusements and provided for the regulation of Sunday sports and amusements by the municipalities affected.

DUNN BILL BEATEN

The third bill voted down in committee, sponsored by Representative Dunn, blind legislator from Allegheny, would have repealed the entire Sunday Blue Law.

While the members who have been seeking enactment of modification amendments today had not decided finally whether they would try to amend the Schwartz measure, there were indications that they would do so and thus force the members of the House to go on record as to their position on Blue Law legislation.

Sunday Blue Law lobbyists were busy last night corraling rural members of the committee and demanding that they refuse to send the bill out. The Rev. T. T. Mutchler and the Rev. William B. Forney, leading lights in the lobby here, moved from member to member.

It was admitted by some anti-repeal members of the committee that the open hearing last week had convinced them that the people should have a chance, at least, to find out how the members of the House would vote.

Bill Would Legalize Sunday Broadcasts

HARRISBURG, March 25.—A bill to legalize the operation of telephones, wireless and radio on Sunday was introduced today in the House by Representative Clinton A. Sowers, of Philadelphia.

WABASH TUBE BILL PASSED

HARRISBURG, March 25.—Legislative authority which Allegheny County needs to buy the Wabash tunnel at Pittsburgh for $3,000,000 was voted today by the Senate.

The bill previously passed the House and now goes to Gov. Pinchot for signature.

The Coyne measure to provide a 44-hour week for women employes was passed on second reading and will be up for final approval next Monday night.

The McClure bill to establish a people's counsel bureau in the attorney general's department to handle consumers' cases before the Public Service Commission as passed on second reading.

The Harris measure to provide for acceptance of a site from the University of Pittsburgh for a western state psychiatric hospital also was passed on second reading.

rides the South American cables . . . DONAHOE'S applies the spur

Speed . . . that's it . . . SPEED!

Speed in flashing a message to Santos and back again while you still measure time in seconds:

Speed in hurtling a message to Sao Paulo, to Bogota—any coffee market to the south—and back again while the hour-hand hardly seems to have moved.

Speed . . . that's it . . . SPEED. The Pittsburgh Public wants it when prices decline. DONAHOE'S offer it. That settles it.

Which is just another way of saying that DONAHOE'S, appreciating to the full the necessity for swift action when food prices decline, always bend every energy and use every facility to bring to their customers the new low prices on foodstuffs as fast as humanly possible. We never wait to allow new low prices to slowly percolate down to our customers.

Behind every successful business there is a wealth of planning, judgment and sifting of values.

Behind DONAHOE'S My-Te-Good Coffee is over a quarter of a century exerience in the buying, blending and roasting of coffee.

Behind DONAHOE'S My-Te-Good Coffee is our firm determination to put out a very high quality coffee at a very low price.

MEET TO HEAR ENGINEERS

A conference on "Engineering Education," sponsored by the Pittsburgh Personnel Association, will be held tomorrow from 3:30 to 9 p. m. in Thaw Hall of the University of Pittsburgh. The program includes an inspection trip to the Cathedral of Learning, addresses by industrial and Pitt engineers and a dinner at the Schenley Hotel.

Speakers in the afternoon include Dr. Elmer A. Holbrook, Dr. F. L. Bishop and E. Willis Whited, all of the University of Pittsburgh. W. E. Quinby, general manager of the Bell Telephone Company, and M. R. Piggott, staff engineer of the Gulf Research Laboratories, will speak in the evening.

SUPREME COURT ADMITS 12

Ralph T. Bell, Alexander D. Rosenbaum and Edmund S. Ruffin, Jr., of Allegheny County, were among 12 attorneys admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania yesterday.

The others were Francis E. Criner and Everett S. C. Sorber, of Westmoreland County; Lewis M. D'Auria and Charles S. Ramsay, of Fayette County; Jefferson E. Bossard and Fred C. Kiebort, of Crawford County; William L. Henry, of Jefferson County; John M. Kelly, of Susquehanna County, and W. Robert Thompson, of Greene County.

WIFE DIVORCES MISSING MAN

The disappearance of her husband, Charles Fox Koerner more than two years ago resulted in the granting of a divorce to Mrs. Lila M. Koerner, 421 Climax street, by Judge Anderson B. Reed in Common Pleas Court.

Koerner left their Warrington avenue home in Aug. of 1928, saying he was going to town, and has not been seen nor heard from since, Mrs. Koerner testified. She was at a loss to explain his disappearance, saying there had been no quarrel and that he had treated her and their two children well. They were married August 8, 1915, after an elopement to Wellsburg, W. Va., when Mrs. Koerner was 18. She charged desertion.

BROTHER GIVEN WRIT FOR BODY

The body of Ignatz Kurilovich, 1306 Epiphany street, who died Monday, was replevined late yesterday from Blank Brothers, undertakers, Craft avenue and Forbes street, through a writ procured in the prothonotary's office by a brother, Michael Kurilovich, of New York, through Attorney Joseph I. Winslow.

They averred that Blank Brothers refused to turn the body over to Harry E. Harfung, 1616 Fifth avenue, an undertaker selected by the brother, until a bill of $133 was paid.

Pinch in Theater Leads to Chase, Bullet Wound

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP).—Philip Lehman, 23, knows now to what a little pinch may lead.

Miss Ida Cardell, who said she felt the pinch as she sat next to Lehman in a talkie theater, removed a shoe and banged him on the head with the heel.

Lehman made a hurried exit. Mrs. Cardell followed. Ushers followed her. First plain seekers after excitement followed the ushers.

The chase, in fact, assumed such proportions it attracted the attention of three detectives. One of them shot Lehman in the leg.

SUICIDE BLAMED ON FINANCES

Financial worries were ascribed today by deputy coroners as the motive for the alleged suicide of O. I. A. Krenn, 39, of 1610 Westmoreland street, whose body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found in his room in the Hotel William Penn last night.

Krenn, who held a commission as special patrolman, was connected with several automobile finance concerns and an automobile renting agency.

Morgue attaches said Krenn had registered at the hotel Monday afternoon. Last night, when no response was received from the room, the hotel detective and a bell boy entered and found the body. Nearby they found a letter written on hotel stationery by Krenn to his wife and son. It explained deputy coroners said, that Krenn was taking his life because of financial difficulties. The missive also begged forgiveness for his act.

Man Hears Radio Though Asleep, Wife Declares

FRANKLIN, Pa., March 25.—Mrs. Charles F. Mohr, of Reno, near here, declares her husband can sleep and still listen to the radio. On several occasions, she declares, she has watched him sound asleep in front of the set, even snoring, but his sub-conscious mind picks up the program on at the time and later he is able to recall its principal features as though he had been wide-awake. The most successful test was a sermon delivered by a Pittsburgh minister, Mrs. Mohr declares.

JIGGS' CREATOR TALKS ON RADIO

ALBANY, N. Y., March 25.—A "radio extra" featuring George McManus, world famous as the creator of the comic strip "Bringing Up Father," was broadcast around the world from short-wave station W2XAF here last night under auspices of Hearst Radio Service.

This is the first time that a cartoonist has ever been featured in such a spectacular broadcast.

The program was dedicated to the countries of Latin America, where Maggie and Jiggs, the cartoon characters, are as familiar as in the United States.

J. V. Connolly, head of the King Features Syndicate, revealed that the man who made corn beef and cabbage famous never eats it himself, but has "rare roast beef and Burgundy" for his favorites.

YOUTH SOUGHT IN GIRL'S DEATH

NEWPORT, R. I., March 25.—(AP.)—One young man was in custody and another was sought today for the slaying of pretty Verna Russell, 20, a student nurse.

The body was found in a ditch. The medical examiner determined she was strangled. A story related by Vernon Victor Galvin of Fall River, Mass., former New Hampshire State College football star, resulted in the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Elliott R. Hathaway, 28, of Fall River, son of a member of the Massachusetts State Legislature. The warrant charged Hathaway with murder in the first degree. Galvin was held in $5,000 bail as a material witness.

Galvin said Hathaway told him that while he was driving with Miss Russell, they were beset by two men who took the girl away from him after one told him to "beat it." Hathaway took him to the scene and pointed out the girl's body.

CAPONE LINKED IN RUM HERE

TOLEDO, O., March 25.—(AP.)—Al Capone and James A. Courtney, of Pittsburgh, indicted as leaders of a huge Lake Erie liquor running ring, may be linked in business connections it was hinted today by United States District Attorney Lee N. Murlin.

Murlin indicated that he may try to show Courtney had some dealings with Capone when Courtney is brought to trial next month on a smuggling charge. Courtney jumped a $10,000 bond in Cleveland, where he also faces a federal indictment more than a year ago. He was captured at Philadelphia two months ago and released under $20,000 bond.

Courtney, Dan Coughlin, now serving a term in Atlanta; Patrick J. Burns, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yardmaster at McKeesport; John Dolan of McKeesport, and seven others were indicted in Cleveland last June following the seizure of a $50,000 Canadian whisky shipment in McKeesport.

Pittsburgher Faces Trial in Slaying

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 25.—(INS.)—Following an alleged confession by Paul V. Hurley, 19, that he killed Patrolman Joseph O'Brien, of this city, last August, Assistant District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing today prepared to ask for an early trial of Hurley and Thomas Healey, 19, of Pittsburgh, his alleged accomplice.

Report Waldschmidt And Kambach Better

The condition of City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, ill of pneumonia in his home, 1016 Davis avenue, was reported improved slightly this morning. The City Solicitor has been confined to his home since last week.

Councilman George J. Kambach suffering from a severe cold in his home, 1808 Sarah street, is improving, according to word from his home.

Father, 2 Girls Die In Crossing Crash

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP.)—A father taking his children to school drove his automobile in front of a Soo Line railroad train in suburban Des Plaines today, and three were killed. The dead were John Klinker, 50, of Des Plaines, and his daughters—Irene, 10, and Marie, 13. His son, Roy, 8, was probably fatally injured.

Volcano Menacing Java Village Anew

BATAVIA, Java, March 25.—(AP.)—New eruptions of the volcano Merapi since Sunday have caused authorities to order the evacuation of three villages on which reconstruction work had commenced after previous eruptions. The stream of lava is advancing about 30 yards daily.

Lions to Hear Talk On 'Germany Today'

John George Bucher, lecturer and soldier of fortune, will discuss "Germany Today" before the Lions Club Thursday noon at Fort Pitt Hotel. Mr. Bucher represents the Bureau of Commercial Economics of Washington, whose purpose is to introduce nations to one another.

CHANGE URGED IN MILITARY SCHOOLS

Reorganization Need Cited At Association Meeting; Service to Nation Lauded

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The military school is "organized and equipped to combat the forces of national decadence which are always at work," Col. Roy F. Farrand, president of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools, told the eighteenth annual meeting of the organization in the Mayflower Hotel here today. He added:

"If we make our boys good citizens in the highest acceptance of that term we need not worry about the rest. The world will beat its path to our doors."

Representatives of 47 schools of the association from all sections of the country are assembled for the meeting.

Lieut. Col. Ralph M. Parker, of the Army general staff corps, yesterday told the gathering the War Department has been conducting a survey to guide in reorganization, and has received replies from more than 3,000 questionnaires sent to students, instructors, school heads and others.

FLAWS POINTED OUT

Col. Parker summarized the chief criticisms of the present system, as contained in answers to the questionnaires, as follows:

1. That the present program is uneducational, insufficient time being given to classroom work, while too much stress is laid on drill and material training.

2. That the present methods of teaching are archaic and out of date.

3. That the system, in general, is not fully efficient, and does not produce justifiable results for the time spent.

He explained that the coming changes are the result of long deliberation on the part of the War Department.

SEES PATRIOTIC IMPETUS

Brig. Gen. Edward L. King, assistant chief of staff of the War Department, praised military schools, declaring that military training—the wearing of a uniform and the handling of government guns and other equipment—instills patriotism.

Military training, he said, is a powerful inspiration to leadership in all walks and pursuits of life. He expressed the belief that military schools get better results from students in academic studies than any other type of institution.

Woman Fined $50 In Liquor Charge

Emma Kirkwood, 37, was fined $50 by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Center Avenue Police Court today after police testified they seized a large quantity of home brew in her home, 1701 Fifth avenue.

Giant X-Ray Tube Used on First Patient

PASADENA, Cal., March 25.—(AP.)—The new giant X-ray tube, which produces artificial radium rays nearly as potent as the entire world supply of radium, has treated its first patient.

The new tube, after its trial at the California Institute of Technology here yesterday, was said to have given off X-rays almost three times as powerful as any previously used for healing, the first of sufficient intensity to penetrate a malignant growth in any part of the body.

DAVIS WON'T BE MOVIE 'CZAR'

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(INS.)—Senator James J. Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, now in Los Angeles, indicated in a telephone talk with the Washington Herald today that he would not become "czar" of the movies, and stated that "a splendid service" for the people of his state was the "best picture" he could leave his children.

Davis thinks highly of Will H. Hays, present movie "czar," and doesn't think the industry can spare him for chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

There have been all sorts of rumors in the air as to Davis' future, caused by his visit to movie land. The Pennsylvania former iron puddler declared he had received an offer to film his life history "The Iron Puddler," but declined.

2 HELD IN PURSE SNATCHING

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today held Patrick Nicholson, 16, and his brother, Stephen, 20, of 1308 Spring Garden avenue, for court for the theft of a purse from Miss Carolyn Pfordt, 69, of 5656 Northumberland avenue.

Miss Pfordt testified the younger boy grabbed her purse and fled as Arthur Harvey, chauffeur, of 2540 Wylie avenue, appeared, and escaped in his brother's machine.

Harvey obtained the license number and police arrested the boys. Both confessed, it was said.

Held for Court In Moonshine Sale

Mike Mossis was held for court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today after he had admitted selling moonshine in his store at Seventh and Webster avenues. Complaint against him was filed by James D. Oliver, of South Atlantic avenue. Seven men arrested in the store were discharged.

Perils of Being Rescued

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

tions and can fight them. But he cannot smack a mayor's committee over the nose with an oar.

Rubber boats aren't bad. Sinclair Lewis could have used one the other night.

No man knows how much he has suffered until the toastmaster makes a speech about it.

The light spring municipal investigations are on. We're cleaning up our town.

The first public servant to get poked by the finger of suspicion was the village dog grabber.

We discovered that during the fiscal perambulations of 1930 he had socked away $453,892 and a fraction in the bank. What worried us was the fraction.

We didn't know how a man could segregate that much plunder on an annual emolument of $1,100 (eleven hundred, Dem.). But he explained:

"I was standing on the street corner meaning no harm when an old lady put a package in my hand and told me I was the sole heir to the Sultan of Parsweevia (Rep.) and then she hurried away. When I opened the package there was a baby Austin in it. So I started an interstate omnibus line for midgets."

That was his story and it stuck to him. It sounded very plausible after the jury was exhausted from playing pinochle.

Later on he changed it in some minor details. He said the real source of his inexplicable wealth was the dogs themselves. Some of them wore diamond collars.

Saving a half million on a weekly salary of 25 a week indicated great self sacrifices, economy and abstinence from the fleshpots and cafeterias of Egypt.

Therefore, there was nothing to do but congratulate and commend the good and faithful servant on his strict adherence to the straight and narrow path. There was some morbid curiosity among the jurors over the diamond collars. A bejeweled mutt has a home somewhere and there would be a reward offered for the return of a diamond collar, vacant or occupied.

However he said he had made some fortunate investments. And the fact that three of the jury bought new homes the next week proved this to be a fact.

He was discharged with all in board and our attempt to clean up the administration broke all Olympic records for a dash up a blind alley.

But our allotment of civic pride is not yet evaporated. We're going after the grafters again next season.

BOY, 14, KILLED, 7 INJURED BY AUTOS

Messenger Dies After Being Run Down; 7 Men Held In Series of Crashes

Struck by an automobile while riding a bicycle at Baum boulevard and Whitfield street, Albert Cully, 14, of 2732 Shelly street, a postal Telegraph messenger, was fatally injured last night. The boy died early today in Pittsburgh Hospital. James Wolcrost, of Verona, alleged driver of the automobile, was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office.

Master Cully

Francis O'Brien, 6, son of Police Sergt. Morgan O'Brien, of 5258 Keystone street, was struck by an automobile and seriously injured at Butler and Fifty-third streets, last night. Israel Coles, 52, of 226 Fifty-seventh street, alleged driver of the machine, was arrested.

Patrolman William Pollard, 40, of 7710 Susquehanna street, was slightly bruised when hit by an automobile at Federal and Ohio streets after he had left the North Side Police Station last night. The accident being reported as unavoidable.

Three persons were injured when an automobile in which they were riding struck a parked truck in Ridge avenue, North Side, early today. They are Teresa Reynolds, 20, of 3632 Frazier street; Jack Sanza, 22, and Mrs. Margaret Sanza, 22, of 515 Allegheny avenue. Samuel Sanza, 25, of the Allegheny avenue address, escaped injury.

TWO ARRESTED IN CRASH

Police arrested Lee King, 53, owner of the truck on a charge of violating the automobile laws. It is alleged that his machine was not properly lighted. Samuel Sanza was arrested on a reckless driving charge. The force of the crash pushed the truck against the parked automobile of Edward Danforth, 123 West Ohio street.

Frank Reola, 20, of 1104 Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Meyer Seiavitch, 16, of 528 Eighth avenue, Munhall, were treated at Homeopathic Hospital for slight injuries last night after Reola's truck collided with a machine driven by Seiavitch's brother, Maurice, 20, of the same address.

Raymond Zimmerman, 23, of 2719 Delgar street, and Julius Miller, Jr., 24, of 5163 Hillcrest street, were arrested on reckless driving charges after their cars had collided at Federal street and Stockton avenue, North Side, early today.

Anthony Post, 28, of Dithridge street, an electrical engineer, is in the Altoona City Hospital in a serious condition as a result of being struck by an automobile last night.

Engineer Sees End Of Flood Dangers

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP.)—Before the year is over Army engineers believe danger to Cairo, Ill., and New Orleans, La., from the Mississippi will practically be eliminated.

Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the engineers, said today it was almost certain there would be no high water this spring and that before the spring of 1932 the Bird's Point spillway, protecting Cairo, and the Bonnet Carre floodway, shielding New Orleans, would be finished.

FOCH DID HIS BEST WORK AT NINETY DEGREES

Col. T. Bentley Mott, the American officer on Foch's staff who translated the memoirs soon to be published by The Sun-Telegraph, tells that in selecting a headquarters for Foch the primary consideration was that the building should have steam heat. Foch was only comfortable at his work when the thermometer registered ninety degrees. Everyone else was sweltering while Foch, in his woolen military tunic, sat going over maps and reports and planning the campaign that brought victory a year ahead of his own expectations.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM LIFE; NOTES AND GOSSIP OF THE THEATER

World's Fashion Authority Confesses She Herself 'Can't Wear Clothes'

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 25.

Although recognized as one of the fashion authorities of the world, Mlle. Gabrielle Chanel admits she herself "can't wear clothes."

The little dark-haired, dark-eyed Frenchwoman has handed Hollywood several jolts since she arrived in the film colony to dress the United Artist stars six months ahead of the styles.

Mlle. Chanel

The first was when she appeared at a tea in her honor, wearing an ordinary sport outfit and a pearl necklace. It seems that in view of her confessed inability to wear clothes Mlle. Chanel wears what she thinks will suit her best. Pearls are a hobby with her. She loves "ropes and ropes" of them. Her theory of jewelry is that it should look and be amusing, decorative, colorful, shiny, a kind of adornment to a woman's attire when she is not particularly "dressed" and formal. For evening, when the mood is severe, there should be little or no jewelry, at least only such as would enhance the austerity of her attire. Mlle. Chanel hates jewelry which she says looks "dirty and expensive." She was a leader in popularizing shiny costume jewelry.

Asked to name the leading American fashion designers, Mlle. Chanel delivered her second shock by declaring she is not acquainted with the work of any of them.

She doesn't know who is the best-dressed woman in Europe. She makes it a rule never to meet any of her clients. She doesn't go to public places. Her home life is entirely in the country, away from fashion and fashionable dress. When she is in Paris, she works, eats and sleeps in a three-room apartment over her Rue Caibon establishment.

The coming experiment with United Artists' stars will be the first time Mlle. Chanel has ever designed directly for anyone except herself. She designs a dress, a gown or a suit and anyone who likes it, buys it.

Asked to estimate how much a well-dressed woman should spend yearly on her wardrobe, the French designer pointed out that many considerations enter into such a question. In terms of averages, however, she thinks a woman with any considerable social pretension and elegance would have to spend not less than $5,000 a year on clothes in America or France. Naturally, it could be many times that. In fact Mlle. Gabrielle admits she once lined a jacket of a simple suit, made of an inexpensive tweed homespun with sable that cost possibly $20,000.

It would be interesting to know how Hollywood affects this artist with her passion for simplicity. She is so completely out of sorts with the tone of life in the film colony.

LATEST GOSSIP

Will Rogers approves of Bill, Jr.'s, decision to become a reporter on a Fort Worth newspaper.

"Bill will be a good hand," he says, "if they don't have to call out the fire - department to wake him up" . . . Incidentlly, young Rogers probably will be the only polo-playing reporter in the land. The young man is 19 years old and his writing experience to date, consists of editing his high school paper in Beverly Hills . . . T. Roy Barnes has been awarded the questionable distinction of teaching Edmund Lowe how to deal cards off the bottom of the deck for Ed's new gambler's role in "Trans-Atlantic" . . . Victor McLaglen has eight bedrooms in his new house, one for each brother and one left over.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

We assume that there are some lonesome steers in the West because "Green Grow the Lilacs," Theater Guild play coming to the Nixon next week, features a group of "genuine" cowboys. And, heavenly days, they sing! Happy, carefree ditties, like "Bury Me Not On the Lone Prai-ree." Cheerful chaps—these genuine cowboys. "Green Grow the Lilacs," it seems, is a title of one of their songs, too. Be that as it may, the seat sale positively opens tomorrow.

How many reels in the average photoplay? Too.

One of the prominent players in "Lysistrata," Greek comedy in the second week of its Alvin engagement, is Hope Emerson, of the former vaudeville team, Shannon and Emerson. Miss Emerson is six feet two, and weighs 253 pounds. We did state that she is prominent. Just for pun, think of her as a high-type woman playing low comedy. There's a matinee today.

* * *

There are some players willing to give up anything for the sake of art except acting.

Mollie Cohn, of the Jewish stage, has played in English in other cities, but only in Yiddish here. She makes her first appearance in Pittsburgh as an exemplar of King George's well-known jargon in "The Eternal Magdalene" as guest star in the Pitt next week, when Squirrel Hill night will be any.

Small Timer blinks at the spotlight and says now that spring is here the backyard farmer is either digging his garden or turning it over in his mind.

Oberammergau Play Mr. Holmes' Theme

Burton Holmes will present natural-color slides in connection with his lecture-recital on the "Passion Play of Oberammergau" in Carnegie Music Hall this evening. Mr. Holmes made his first pilgrimage to Oberammergau in 1890 and his latest in the summer of 1930. In these four decades, he points out, there has not been given a more beautiful, more artistic or more satisfying presentation of this great religious spectacle than that of last summer.

Sarg Marionettes To Appear Saturday

Tony Sarg will present his Marionettes in two performances in the "Y" Playhouse this Saturday. "Alice in Wonderland" and "Rip Van Winkle" are to be given, and there will be a performance in the afternoon and one in the evening.

PHILEAS FOGG PAYNE WINS HIS BET AT THE 'Y'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

All the great navigators of history—Ulysses, Noah, Columbus, the Flying Dutchman, Capt. Cook and the Mate of the Nancy Bell—were left in the shade last night at the Playhouse of the "Y" when Phileas Fogg sailed "Around the World In 80 Days." It was a revival of the old Jules Verne thriller—and it was a joy from first to last.

George Seibel

Iden Payne was Phileas Fogg—with debonair sangfroid he disbursed $100,000 bills, dashed through the jungle on elephants, massacred Indians in the Grand Canyon, and played stroke oar in the raging billows of the Atlantic. His gallant top-hat never got wet, as fortunately the roof of the Y Playhouse doesn't leak.

But their clock is fast, as it struck 12 when he arrived and won his bet, while the authentic and infallible pocket horloge of the critical scribe registered exactly 11:23.

BEAT BURTON HOLMES

It started from London, on to Suez, through the Jungle to Calcutta, a Frisco saloon to the Stairway of the Giants, from Battery Park to the good ship Henrietta, and then through the weltering waves to the Club to collect the big bet.

On the entire trip Phileas Fogg Payne was accompanied by the faithful Passepartout, with a Berlitzy French accent furnished by Alfred E. Smith. He was pursued by Fix, a villainous detective impersonated by Harold Goldstein, and aided in emergencies by Archibald Corsican, who resembled Richard M. Fishel. Desperate efforts to do away with him were made especially by Norman Porter, who was first a Pawnee chief and then a piratical sea captain.

But the grand tour was a success from the romantic as well as from the financial side—they brought home an assortment of beautiful ladies, rescued from funeral pyres and other perils. Sondra Kostner as the Princess Aouda was especially well worth rescuing, and is now living happily in London with Phileas Fogg Payne.

WOULD TAKE 80 DAYS

It would take 80 days to tell all the wonders of this dramatic triumph—the Iron Horse, the Giant Pachyderm, the Nautch Dancer, the brave American Army, the 57 varieties of beards, the electrical and chemical stage effects, the ballads interspersed by Mrs. Frank Wertheimer, the war-whoops of the painted savages, the reincarnation of the Brahmin Joseph Woods as a swell bartender, and the barking British bulldogs that never missed fire.

Crack! Crack! Crack!
Bang! Bang! Bang!

At every shot somebody bit the dust. Extermination was the plan of war, and gore flowed in rivers.

Between the 14 scenes Frank Stout came out and languidly painted the progress of the Pilgrims upon the curtain of Mercator's Projection.

And the music played "Sailing, Sailing," during the scenes of storm, "Hearts and Flowers" when the tender chords were struck.

It was a fine trip with Jules Verne as courier and Iden Payne as the star passenger.

Catastrophe

Lou Holtz, of "You Said It," tells about the time the stock market took every dollar he owned, and things looked pretty ugly for him.

He went home to his mother, whom he adores, with a leaden heart.

"Mother, he said with tears in his orbs, "your little Louie is broke. I lost today every penny I ever owned. And it doesn't look like I am going to get a job for a long time, either."

"Yeh, yeh, yeh," replied the old lady sadly, as she shook her head from side to side, "but I got extra trouble, yet you don't know. Somting tarrible is hepening."

"My God, what?" cried the pale Holtz.

The Alibi Terrific

George Jessel, of "Sweet and Low," was strolling in the Ghetto the other day. He paused in front of a theater owned by a herring wrecker, whose attractions were old Jewish shows played entirely by Yiddish thespians. He struck up a conversation with the owner, an old friend.

"How do you account for such awful business?" asked Jessel.

"Wot kin you haxpect?" was the reply. "It is Lent!"

In the New Oakland V-8 you get a large, powerful, easy riding, beautiful car for only $984 *delivered equipped

IT HAS AN 85 H. P. V-8 ENGINE

The New Oakland is fast and smooth. It is dependable and long-lived. It is comfortable and beautiful. For this fine new car represents high standards of design and manufacture. A splendid example is found in the new 85 horsepower eight-cylinder V-type engine—the kind of power plant which has been standard in the finest cars for years, and is famous for smoothness and efficiency. This type motor fully utilizes the advantages of down-draft carburetion. In constructing this engine, fine materials and high standards of precision are employed, and careful inspections complete the assurance of unusual performance.

SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION

Further convincing proof of Oakland quality is found in the transmission. To meet Oakland standards nothing would do but the remarkable Syncro-Mesh, originally conceived as a luxury few might enjoy and heretofore found only in the world's costliest cars. Syncro-shifting is easy, clashless, silent and velvet-smooth—the last word in driving satisfaction.

A NEW QUIET SECOND GEAR

Quiet operation is a characteristic of well built cars, and Oakland's new second gear is one of the features that provides this quality. In addition the design of this gear contributes greatly to Oakland's remarkable acceleration. It is a real delight to drive a car that picks up so rapidly in second gear, and with a quietness comparable to driving in "high."

A RUBBER-CUSHIONED CHASSIS

Many examples of Oakland thoroughness of construction are hidden from view. In the chassis, for instance, there are actually forty-one points where rubber cushioning is used, absorbing and deadening shocks and adding both to riding ease and to the life of the car. Oakland's rubber cushioned spring shackles make notable contribution to riding ease, eliminate twelve points of chassis lubrication, and are rattle-proof.

NEW INSULATED BODIES BY FISHER

A new interpretation by Fisher of style, comfort and luxury in bodies adds the final touch in making Oakland an inexpensive version of the finest. Not only has the Fisher system of scientifically combining wood and steel produced its usual safety and durability, but in addition these Oakland bodies introduce the very latest developments in insulation against heat, cold and noise. There is no denying that the body has much to do with one's satisfaction in the car—and the new Oakland Fisher bodies will please you in every respect from their modish styling to their sound structural qualities.

WHIPCORD OR MOHAIR UPHOLSTERY

Oakland cars are upholstered and trimmed to the same standards of style and beauty as characterize fine homes where good taste is expressed. Closed cars are upholstered in whipcord or mohair—open cars in leathers. In every detail of appointments and fittings Oakland has spared nothing to create an ensemble of flawless good taste.

Other Oakland features include: 117-inch wheelbase; five wire wheels; Lovejoy shock absorbers; one-piece fenders with fender indicator lamps; heavy single-bar bumpers; new sturdy rear axles with ball and roller bearings—oil sealed in and dust sealed out; rigid frame with five cross members; the efficient cross-flow radiator; and close-fitting electro-plated pistons.

In every way Oakland has gone to great lengths to appeal to careful, knowing buyers. It has designed the Oakland V-8 soundly and built it with thoroughness and care. This fine workmanship and attention to detail will be apparent to you when you examine the car.

This is the price of the 2-door Sedan or Coupe delivered to you in Pittsburgh and equipped ready for use* ping gags with a group in a restaurant last night. He included the one about Bob Milford who just bought a police dog.

Equipment includes front and rear bumpers, shock absorbers, 5 wire wheels, and extra tire, tube and tire lock. Other models priced as follows: Sport Coupe, $1064; 4-door Sedan or Convertible Coupe, $1084; Custom Sedan, $1144.

"There's only one trouble with it," Bob complained, "every time a burglar comes—it bites my wife!"

A Change of Heart

I viewed my broken heart and swore
I'd have no more to do with men;
But that was just before I knew
With what to patch it up again.
—Ruth Ann Esther.

Novelette

One of the pretty-pretties who joined the army of the unemployed when the show she was in folded ten months ago was pointed out to some of us in a sin-spot the other yawning. She gave up the struggle of being a goody shortly after the show curdled and accepted coin from the local dandies.

It didn't matter—so long as you paid for her companionship, and the boys didn't mind, either, because she was Grade A.

She once told an intimate that her mother came first, and the deuce with what people thought. She sent home a goodly sum weekly, and deposited plenty in a bank, hoping to shelve Broadway and her racket just as soon as she saved $2,000. She had saved $1,800 and was about to cash in, and leave her sins behind her.

But the Broadway Fates, it appears, like her. They didn't want her to go. So the Chelsea Bank failed.

Sound Counsel

Lois Long, who is Mrs. Peter Arno, and a contributor to The New Yorker, received a fan letter the other day. It read:

"Dear Miss Long: Anent your article in the Mar. 14 issue. Would you like a husband? If you are beautiful I will marry you. I make $30 a week and I am considered good looking. Reynold Johnson, No. 271 Claremont Ave., Montclair, N. J."

Miss Long sent the letter to her managing editor with the following memo:

"Dear Mr. Ross: What shall I do?"

To which the boss memo'd back:

"Dear Lois: It wouldn't last."

Of All Things!

Jack Benny, the nimble-witted monologist, is appearing in Baltimore this week. Last week he played one of those immense sized movie theaters in Washington.

"The house was so large," he writes, "that they do not hire a manager every four years. They elect a governor!"

Boomerang

And from Benny Fields and Blossom Seeley comes the gag about the Irishman who was playing at Loew's Delancey Street Theater, where the policy is four shows daily. An Irishman opened his act by tenoring:

"Didjoo ever hear the story of how Ireland got its name?"

"Yeah!" growled a galleryite, "28 times last week!"

The Retort Swelegant

Bugs Baer is weary of giving his time and talent to "after-dinner" speaking-racketeers, and now demands a wage. A femme booking agent wrote him about talking before a club in a Midwest city. Bugs asked for $1,000.

"Im afraid," she was afraid, "that $1,000 is too much. Do you think any speaker is worth $1,000?"

"No, I do not," said Bugs. "Personally I think I'm only worth $10. But I would have to spend a night on a train going there and a night coming back. That would be another $90 for expenses."

"Oh," she oh'd, "we'd be willing to give you $100."

"No sale," snapped Baer. "Must have $1,000—$10 for me, $90 for expenses, and $900 for having to listen to those other speeches!"

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher, Erie Girl Marry

A notable wedding of great interest here, since the bridegroom is from Pittsburgh and since he and his bride will join the younger married set here, took place last night at 7 o'clock in Erie in the home of the bride's family.

The bride was Mary Lane Van Cleve, daughter of Mrs. J. Spencer Van Cleve, and the bridegroom was Allen K. Shenk, son of Mrs. Wilbur Shenk, of Ellsworth avenue.

The Van Cleve home was decorated with palms, ethotium ferns, Easter lilies, snapdragon and marigolds. Officiating was the Rt. Rev. John Chamberlain Ward, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Erie.

Giving the bride in marriage was her brother, Reynolds Van Cleve. The bridal gown was of ivory satin, fashioned with a tight-fitting bodice, a full skirt ending in a train, elbow length sleeves and a deep yoke of duchess lace. The bride's veil was of duchess lace and her flowers were gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Nancy Van Cleve, who was her sister's only attendant, wore pale blue chiffon, fashioned with a peplum and a long, shirred skirt. And three rows of blue satin ribbon decorated the peplum and the hem-line of the skirt. She carried Johanna Hill roses.

Reception Follows

The mother of the bride wore pale blue brocaded satin and a corsage of gardenias, and the mother of the bridegroom appeared in rose beige lace and had a corsage of orchids.

Serving as best man was Charles Shenk, brother of the bridegroom. A reception in the Kahkwa Club of Erie followed the ceremony, with 275 guests attending.

From Pittsburgh, besides the bridegroom, his mother and brother, were the Allan K. Collingwoods, the David Collingwoods, Dr. and Mrs. James C. Burt, Charles Chalfant and others.

After a fortnight in Bermuda Mr. Shenk and his bride will be at home in South Negley avenue.

Now that the end of the Lenten season is but a matter of days, there are more plans than ever for a festive post-Lenten season, and there are more entertainments and parties being given in these days than at the beginning of the season. A particularly interesting affair is a dinner dance that the Raymond Willeys, of Beacon street, are giving Saturday evening in the Longue Vue Country Club, in honor of their son, Joseph Currier Willey, and his bride, the former Mary Rowland Clark, daughter of James Bly Clark.

To Fete Bride

The youthful Willeys, who were married February 11, have recently returned from the West Indies, and are residing in the Dithridge Apartments. Mrs. Willey expects about 150 guests to be present at the dance.

Carolyn-Clare Snow, daughter of the L. Blaine Snows, of Kinsman road, will arrive home tomorrow from Miss Dow's School, Briarcliff Manor.

At a meeting held in the University library Monday, under the direction of Mrs. Gilbert Trageser, the Duquesne University Women's Guild made plans for the first annual frolic to be held in Canevin Hall on April 8. It will precede the annual Monogram Club dance of the University by two days. There will be cards and dancing.

Annual Frolic

The South Hills Italian Girls' Club will give a dance in the William Penn Hotel Thursday evening, April 9. Miss Theresa Calermo is chairman, assisted by Miss Carnella Carapellucci and Miss Anna Chialabba.

* * *

Mrs. Rachel Eisenberg announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Fedora Eisenberg, to Robert Langsam, son of Mrs. Blanche Langsam, of New York, which took place in Washington, Pa., on February 11. The bride was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dora Eisenberg, of the Morrowfield Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Langsam are making their home in DeVictor place, and plan to go on a wedding trip early in the summer.

Florence Observes Annunciation Feast

FLORENCE, Italy, March 25.—(AP.)—The feast of the annunciation, recalling the visit of the Angel Gabriel to the Blessed Virgin to tell her that she was to become the mother of Christ, was celebrated here today with particular solemnity in the famous church of the Annuziata, rich with the treasured works of the painter Andrea del Sarto.

Snell to Discuss City Manager Plan

A. V. Snell, executive director of the Allied Board of Trade, will discuss the city manager plan of government at a meeting tomorrow night in the Overbrook Municipal Building. The Moore bill, which would make it possible for citizens of Pittsburgh to vote on the city manager plan was discussed before the House yesterday at Harrisburg.

Judiciary Group To Hear Dithrich

Judge W. Heber Dithrich was to speak at the monthly meeting of the Minor Judiciary Association in the William Penn Hotel at noon today. The association is the former Aldermen's, Justices of the Peace and Magistrates' Association.

Jack Lippert, formerly of Avon Old Farms, Conn., will be here for the occasion. Former leaders of the camp, including Ralph Davis, Jr., William Roos, Paul Zehfuss, Donald Davis, Ray Stewart, James Mitchell, Glenn Smith, William Getty and Dr. J. A. Lleyellyn will be present. A program including games and a dinner will be presented.

-:- CLUB NOTES -:-

It is only when the artistic in the theater is destroyed, only when appeal is made to the baser mentally that it falls; all art is spiritual, Charles Coburn, of the "Lysistrata" company said yesterday when he addressed the Drama League members who were guests of the president, Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler, at tea. So numerous were the responses to Mrs. Wheeler's invitations that she was forced to entertain in the Hotel Schenley library instead of in her home in the Schenley Apartments as she had planned.

Mr. Coburn spoke of the play as the definite form in which the theater "tells its story," just as the painter tells his by his picture, and the musician by his music. It is a mistake, he said, to take for granted, as so many people do, that everybody knows everything about drama and that no preparation or education is necessary to understand it. Audiences go to see the things that reflect their own mentality and the average human being does not grow mentally above 14 years. Censorship represents the dominance of ignorance, he went on. Mr. Coburn expressed himself as hopeful of the future of the theater because of the widespread interest being taken in it by schools and colleges.

Tea was served in the sun room where Miss Vanda E. Kerst and Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit presided at the beautifully appointed tea table.

The puppet show which the Wilkinsburg Junior Woman's Club gave last night for the entertainment of the seniors will be repeated in the Allison School tomorrow night and Friday afternoon as a benefit for the juniors' philanthropic work. Tomorrow's performance will be open to the public and the Friday matinee to the school children. About 200 witnessed, and enthusiastically approved, last night's performance, which was given in the Y. W. C. A. Community House. Miss Elizabeth Hamilton welcomed the guests and gave a short history of puppeteering preceding the performance. The musical background was furnished by Miss Margaret Orr and Miss Dorothy Phillips. A social hour rounded out the evening.

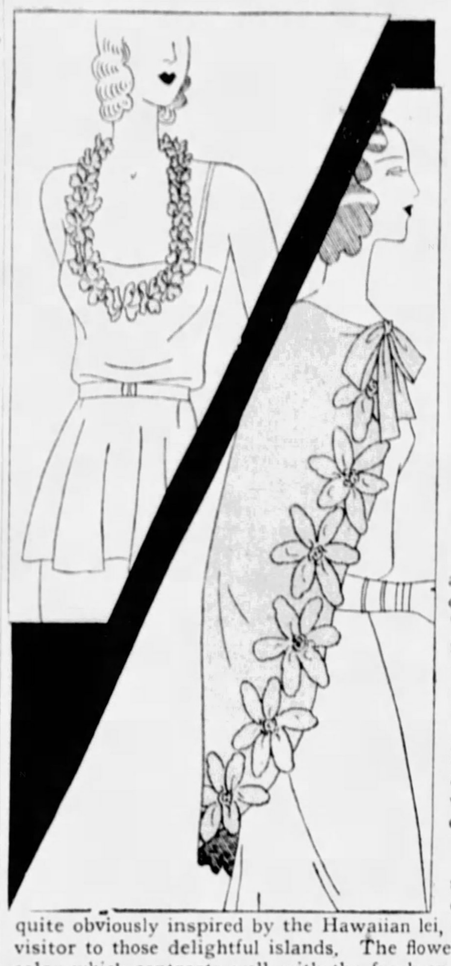
FLOWERS IN GAUDY COLORS BLOSSOM ON SPRING CLOTHES

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 25.—The lilies of the field are not having it at all their own way this season. Even more gorgeous and alluring are the flower trimmings that are so important a feature of the newest evening frocks. Every showroom is now a flowery kingdom replete with all sorts of novel floral touches. Capes and tunics bordered with flowers of self-fabric or in striking contrast to the garment; necklaces of flowers to encircle slender throats; decolletages outlined with blossoms; flowered shoulder straps — these are just some of the places where the new sartorial flowers grow.

THE TRIMMINGS are handled with such consumate skill that there is never a hint of the insipid or obvious girlishness that flower trimmings of the average genre so often inspire. They are dainty, effective and are made to be part of the design of the frock itself rather than merely trimming. It is a refreshing fashion, quite in keeping with the springtime and pleasing to most of us, whether we be dowager or debutante.

LELONG IS showing some interesting necklaces of silk flowers. These are quite obviously inspired by the Hawaiian lei, so well known to every visitor to those delightful islands. The flowers are in shades of any color which contrasts well with the frock or matches other accessories, thus being something more than just an item of decoration. The flowers are usually graduated in size and are so cleverly worked as to be quite life-like in appearance.

* * *

JENNY IS showing an evening cape of sea-green crepe de chine, with a border of flat, rather large flowers of the same fabric. The cape is short and wide open, tying with a bow in front, but dipping to below the hips in back.

* * *

JENNY ALWAYS may be relied upon to present frocks which are original without being bizarre. Such a model is the one sketched for this page. Of black crepe marocain, it features a full length jabot of white georgette at the side. This jabot starts off in life as a draped scarf at the back of the neckline and is caught down at intervals throughout its length. The sleeves are very short with a narrow, flat cuff of marocain. Slight fulness is found at the right side of the skirt only. This frock, like most of the Jenny models, is characteristically youthful.

NAMEANDERSON FETE SPEAKERS

United States Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis have been listed on the program as speakers at a testimonial dinner to be tendered Postmaster James B. Anderson at the William Penn Hotel, Saturday night, by postal organizations of Pittsburgh.

The list of speakers also includes Congressmen Harry A. Estep, Edmund F. Erk, Patrick J. Sullivan and Clyde Kelly; Mayor Charles H. Kline, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Councilman Robert Garland, James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Robert S. Regar, of Washington, administrative assistant to the postmaster general.

The invocation will be asked by the Rev. Frank J. Sparling, of Crafton Heights Methodist Episcopal Church. Joseph N. Mackrell, registrar of wills, will be toastmaster, introduced by Harry J. Kinzler, vice chairman and secretary of the Clyde Kelly Branch Letter Carriers. Anderson, who assumed office of postmaster recently, will speak on "Our Postmaster."

Among the honored guests will be former Postmaster George W. Gosser and Col. William A. Kenyon, of Washington, assistant chief postoffice inspector, who was acting postmaster here before the appointment of Anderson.

DEATH OF BABY LAID TO FUMES

Blaming the death of their 21-day-old baby, Richard, on fumigating gases, Mr. and Mrs. August Pusateri, of 428 Taylor avenue, North Side, today ordered the Allegheny General Hospital to hold an autopsy. The infant died early today after having been admitted to the hospital last night upon orders of a physician.

Pusateri said tenants living in a second-floor apartment had ordered their rooms fumigated by an exterminating concern. The representative closed the apartment yesterday after advising Pusateri to open the windows in their third-floor apartment. Pusateri said he was assured no ill effects would result.

The father became ill yesterday. Dr. K. S. Trieber, hospital staff physician, declined to comment on the cause of death until after an autopsy.

Mrs. Pickett's Body Not to Rest by Mate

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(INS.)—Authorities of Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, Va., have refused to permit the burial of Mrs. La Salle Corbell Pickett beside the grave of her husband, the Confederate general. The Ladies' Memorial Association, which governs the cemetery, decided the burial plot was reserved for "only Gen. Pickett and his men."

Mt. Lebanon Fire Damages Dwelling

Fire caused by an electric refrigerator motor in the cellar of the home of Walter Day, 101 Atlantic avenue, Mt. Lebanon, resulted in $50 damage this morning. The township fire volunteers responded.

REAL ESTATE

An English design home of stone construction is open for inspection today at 308 South Linden avenue, Fourteenth Ward. The home, constructed by J. Darrell Osterholt, is a three-story structure, containing eight rooms, three colored tile baths and an attached two-car garage. Fixtures include heavy steel window frames, violet-ray glass throughout, an automatic clock regulated hot water heating system, old ivory decorations in the living rooms, dining rooms and halls, black and gold Italian marble window sills on the first floor and Tennessee marble on the second and third floors. Other features of the house are walnut and ivory finish for the doors and trim on the second floor and ample clothes cupboards. On the third floor is a billiard rooms, maid's room and a nursery in addition to a large storage room.

Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, has declared that conservatively estimated, public and private construction during this year will exceed $7,000,000,000. Abbott predicts that a mighty construction program is swinging into action throughout the country.

L. T. Stevenson, past president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and a member of the board of directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has recently returned from a meeting of the taxation committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce held in Washington, D. C.

The Potter Title and Trust Company has sold to Peter Kazsimer an improved property on lot 20x110 feet in Fourth avenue, Homestead, for a consideration of $2,500.

Harry O. Conrad has conveyed to John A. Elluinger the title to an improved property in Durango way, Thirteenth Ward, for $3,000. The lot measures 15x65 feet.

A lot 50x110 feet in Mayfair drive, Mt. Lebanon, has been sold by E. H. Schaffer to Edward D. Augenstein for a private consideration.

Applications for building permits follow:

Nineteenth Ward—D. F. Miller, brick dwelling, 2194 Pauline avenue, $5,800.

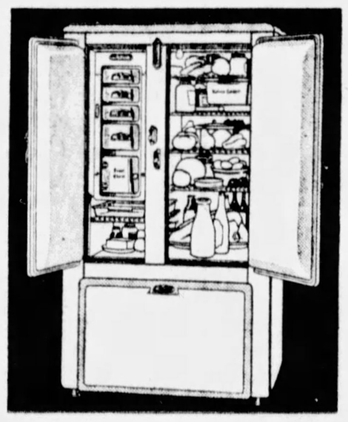
Men who like to be called
HARD BUYERS
are judging values by this new method

MEN who think straight and talk plainly were the first to praise this new method of selection. To-day, wherever refrigerators are sold, you will find prospects and buyers who have clipped the Scale from a magazine or newspaper, examining, asking questions, checking each element point for point before they buy. Follow their lead. Use the Scale yourself to get more for your money. Our only request is that you be sure to include Kelvinator in your survey of refrigerators. We urge this . . . selfishly . . . because this accurate method of judging will show just how far ahead Kelvinator is in development. Phone or write for more information about the Scale.



● STANDARD RATING SCALE
for Electric Refrigeration

● Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?

● Has it plenty of food and shelf space?

● Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdily built and properly insulated?

● Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration).

● Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?

● Can the freezing of ice cubes and desserts be speeded up when the need arises?

● Can this extra freezing speed for ice cubes be had without affecting the temperature on the food shelves? (Too low a temperature on the shelves will, of course, injure food).

● Is there a place to keep ice cream, meat, fish, game, "quick frosted" foods or extra ice cubes indefinitely at a below freezing temperature?

● Are these various temperatures (a. extra fast freezing; b. fast freezing; c. below freezing for storage, and d. normal food preservation temperature) automatically maintained without any attention from the owner?

● Does the refrigerating unit operate often or infrequently? (The fewer "stops" and "starts" the longer the unit will last and the less it costs to run).

● How long will the cooling unit continue to cool the refrigerator even though the current is shut off? (Refrigeration should continue for 10 or 12 hours).

● Can the back parts of all shelves, even the lowest, be reached without kneeling or sitting down?

● Has provision been made for keeping vegetables fresh and crisp?

● Can the refrigerator top be used to "set things down for a moment" while the contents of the cabinet are being re-arranged?

● Will the refrigerator add to the attractiveness of the kitchen?

● Has the experience of users over a long period of years proved the refrigerator long-lived and dependable?

Color Contrast Is Smart

Pattern 2100

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Contrasting binding lends distinction and chic to a graceful frock that is ideal to wear under the new spring coat. The jabot and the side skirt godets are feminine details of real importance in the latest mode. A colorful print in silk or cotton may be chosen for Pattern 2100. Under a navy coat, you might wear a print of several shades of blue on a turquoise ground and bind the seams with navy. With brown, the gold and orange prints would be attractive and for a black coat there is a glorious range of greens, reds, yellows and off-pinks.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

WORKERS HEAR JOB FUND PLAN TONIGHT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Hardly a day passs that Andy Park, the district attorney, doesn't make a speech before a luncheon club. Always he tells of his school days when, on Saturdays, he was the delivery boy for a North Side grocery store. He used to push a two-wheeled cart all over the district. Friday nights Andy spent at some school affair, dressed in his finest. The next morning he was in the delivery boy's overalls. And more than once, spying pretty schoolgirls with whom he had attended some social affair the night before, he'd push his cart along a detour of several blocks rather than be seen in overalls.

William Pfarr

That's what he tells. What he doesn't tell is about the time he was courting a young lady in Perrysville avenue. One night he decided to strengthen his cause by bringing along a box of candy. The young lady was pleased. She sampled the offering and offered Andy a sample. They took a second and a third. Eventually, at 10 o'clock, the departing hour arrived. Andy put on his hat and coat, put the lid on the box of candy and departed, with the candy.

Patrolman Joseph Cassidy didn't want to work last St. Patrick's Day. So he went to his boss, Lieut. Bill Walsh, at Central Police Station.

"For what," asked Walsh, "do you want off?"

"It's my birthday," Cassidy explained, "and the folks are going to have a little time for me at home."

"Get out," bellowed the lieutenant, "get out on your beat. I knew your father well. He was a good old lace-curtain Irishman and if St. Patrick's Day was your birthday he'd have named you nothin' but Patrick."

Note of the times: There's a Baron Munchausen Club out in Film Row in Forbes street . . . To be eligible for membership you have to tell a whopper of a lie, and it's significant of something or other that all attempts to unseat Ike Polis, who drives to McKeesport from downtown in 10 minutes, have failed . . .

Note to contributors: Yes, we know that the only ones who are making money these days are the manufacturers of red ink . . .

In a column headed "Sidewalks of Pittsburgh" there is no ostensible excuse for printing a paragraph from nearby China. Yet if it is true that the man in the street (any street) has a burning desire to write a play or novel (and therefore has a neat collection of rejection slips), somebody should be interested in the rejection slip used by the editor of Tsin-Pao, a Peiping journal. If you send your masterpiece to the editor of Tsin-Pao he will return it with this mimeographed explanation:

"Your highly venerated manuscript I have read with ravishment. But if I published it the readers of Tsin-Pao would immediately command to take it in future as a model, and never again have the audacity to publish anything inferior to it.

"My long experience of literature, however, convinces me that pearls such as yours cannot be produced more than once in 10,000,000 years. That is why, etc.. . . ."

I have often thought my friend O. O. McIntyre gave more space in his column to his little dog than I do to the U. S. Senate. But it just shows Odd knows human nature better than I do. He knows that everybody at heart loves a dog. While I have to make converts to the Senate.

In London five years ago, old Lord Dewar, a great humorist and character and the biggest whisky maker in the world, gave the children a little white dog, (Sealyham) saying, "If this dog knew how well he was bred he wouldn't speak to any of us." We have petted him, complained at him, called him a nuisance. But when we buried him yesterday, we couldn't think of a wrong thing he had ever done. His bravery was his undoing. WAGON, HORSE FOR TRIP ASKED Wanted: An "angel" with a covered wagon and a horse. By two young women and one small boy in McKees Rocks. To make a cross continent trip to California in pioneer fashion.

Jimmie Curwin, 6

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Curwin and her sister, Mrs. G. Viola Henderson, 607 Chartiers street, McKees Rocks, have been wanting to make this trip for five years. When Mrs. Curwin's son Jimmie was a baby, the two sisters thought of hitch-hiking across continent, pulling Jimmie along in an express wagon. The covered wagon was decided upon as a compromise between hitch-hiking and a flivver.

The trio plan to leave Pittsburgh about May 1 if they can find someone to help them.

Jimmie, 6, has his own version of the trip. He said:

"Holy crumps, mummy, what'll we do if the horse breaks down?"

WILL DISCUSS HOSPITAL HERE

The proposed State Psychiatric Hospital for Western Pennsylvania, in Pittsburgh, and its relation to the mental hygiene program of the community, will be discussed by Dr. C. M. Hincks, general director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, New York, at the luncheon meeting tomorrow of the Public Charities Association, in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Senator Frank J. Harris, who introduced the Senate bill providing for the establishment of the hospital in Pittsburgh, will preside, and Dr. Charles H. Frazier, of Philadelphia, president of the Public Charities Association, will be toastmaster. Dr. Cornelius C. Wholey, chairman of the Pennsylvania Committee for Mental Hygiene, will introduce the members of the committee.

Foe's Surrender Pershing Idea of Armistice Terms

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXXIII.

In the original plans for the Meuse-Argonne offensive it was my purpose, after the capture of the Hindenburg line, to drive through the center of the enemy's position, capture the Bois de Barricourt ridge, and immediately thereafter, by an advance westward to Boult-aux-Bois, outflank the Bois de Bourgogne and the enemy's forces facing the French 4th Army on the Aisne.

In discussing the coming operation of the 1st Army with Gen. Maistre, the representative of Marshal Foch, who had recently been sent to co-ordinate the activities of our army and the French 4th Army, he argued that our main blow should be aimed at the eastern flank of the Bois de Bourgogne.

Gen. Pershing

In my opinion the execution of the original plan, which had been fully decided in discussion with my chief of staff, Gen. Drum, and advocated by him, would clearly be productive of greater results. I therefore issued the following instructions to the commanding general, 1st Army:

"The 1st Army will prepare to launch a general attack October 28 with the object of securing control of Buzancy and the heights immediately to the east of that place. The minimum objective to be reached the first day is marked by the general line: Heights south of Aincreville - Bois de Barricourt — hills north of Sivry - les - Buzancy - Bois des Loges.

Ordered to Press On

"Immediately after reaching the general line above indicated you will proceed to free the Bois de Bourgogne from the enemy and to gain possession of the heights surrounding Briquenay.

"The operations of your left flank will be conducted in closest liaison with the right of the French 4th Army. All plans will be made for following up any opportunities to gain possession of the high ground north and northeast of Buzancy.

"While preparing for the general attack as above ordered, you will constantly bear in mind that the present situation demands that there be no relaxation in the pressure now exerted on the enemy. You will therefore so time the local operations which are necessary preliminaries to the general attack as to continue the present pressure, and will take immediate advantage of any favorable opportunity to advance your lines.

"East of the Meuse you will for the present confine your offensive operations to the local attacks necessary to improve your present position."

Troops Lack Shelter

The changes of divisions and other adjustments necessary in preparation for this attack were being rapidly carried out. Except for those units in the Argonne which utilized German dugouts, all of our troops had been without shelter of any sort, as none existed north of the Clermont-Verdun road, so relief for rest and recuperation during this period entailed movements of considerable distance.

During the previous week of furious fighting against obstinate resistance the 1st Army had captured the strongest defenses on the Western Front, and was now advancing through operations which were preparatory to effective delivery of the final blow.

In the face of these splendid achievements rumors reached me that the French Prime Minister, claiming we were not making satisfactory headway, was contemplating another move to interfere with our control of our own troops and force their distribution more generally among the allied armies. Certainly, M. Clemenceau was aware of our steady progress and of the fact that we had attained a dominating position. The end was clearly approaching.

It was obvious, therefore, that any attempt on his part to discredit our accomplishments would be purely a political gesture designed to minimize America's prestige at the peace conference.

Units Fight Till Spent

The demands of incessant battle had compelled our divisions to fight to the limit of their capacity. Troops were held in line and pushed to the attack until deemed incapable of further effort because of casualties or exhaustion; artillery once engaged was seldom withdrawn.

Many batteries fought until practically all the animals were

DIVORCE DENIED HUSBAND OF ILL WOMAN

Desertion Charge Ignored by Judge, Who Decides Man Had Her Placed in Hospital

Judge Frank P. Patterson refused a divorce in Common Pleas Court to Llewellyn J. Clark, of 6009 Rodman street, who filed a suit on the grounds of desertion against Mrs. Myrtle Clark, a patient in the municipal hospital, Leech Farm.

They were married in Johnstown, July 2, 1917, when Clark, employed in the Bethlehem Steel plant, was 16, and his wife, a nurse, was 19, according to his testimony. He alleged she deserted him and their four children in Cleveland, March 5, 1928, and that when he found her at the hospital she refused to return to him. In his opinion Judge Patterson said:

Jackie, Youngest Baby

"This was originally presented as an uncontested action and there was testimony on his part that she was served and at the time said her intention was not to live with him.

"After the hearing and before the decree was entered, application was made on her behalf to reopen the testimony on the ground that the husband had represented to his wife that he would procure a divorce temporarily and that after two years he would remarry her, and that as a matter of fact there had never been a desertion by the wife.

"These averments are supported by testimony taken on her behalf and it affirmatively appears there was no desertion, that the wife left their home to enter a tuberculosis sanitarium by prearrangement made through the husband and his father."

WOMAN SAVES FEE BY MISHAP

Mrs. Nellie Barnhart, of 1419 Orchlee street, recovered her stolen automobile without paying the usual garage towage fee last night.

The whereabouts of Mrs. Barnhart's car, stolen March 17 from in front of the Presbyterian Hospital, became known when Dr. Max Wingerd, a dentist of the Jenkins Arcade, asked police to do something about an automobile which was blocking his own machine on the Duquesne wharf at Stanwix street. Police investigated and found it was the stolen car. Mrs. Barnhart could not be located to be informed of the recovery, and the towing truck of the garage which holds the towing contract was called. Ascending the wharf the tow truck skidded into the river. Several hours were required to pull it out.

In the meantime Police Operators John Lauer and John D. King telephoned Mrs. Barnhart's home again. This time she was in. She reached the wharf before her machine was towed away, thus saving herself the $3.35 towage fee.

$3,000,000 DRIVE TO BE OUTLINED

400 Emergency Association Campaigners and Leaders Will Be Dinner Guests

Preliminary instructions for the coming drive for $3,000,000 by the Allegheny County Emergency Association will be given 400 workers at a dinner in the Duquesne Club tonight. With officials of the association the workers will be guests of R. B. Mellon, Arthur E. Braun and Roy A. Hunt. The drive will continue from April 6 to 20 inclusive.

Frank J. Chesterman, acting chairman of the operating committee of the association, will speak at the dinner on the work program developed under the Pittsburgh Plan. This work includes public work projects in Allegheny County, to be put through with money not included in the 1931 tax budgets. The municipalities under the agreement provide tools and materials while the association provides and pays the labor.

KAUFMANN TO SPEAK

Edgar J. Kaufmann, one of the originators of the plan, will talk on its benefits as a means of giving a sense of security to wage-earners in Allegheny County.

Other speakers will be Joseph Dilworth, prominently identified with social welfare organizations, who will state reasons for the present necessity for relief in this county, and Mr. Hunt, treasurer of the emergency association, who will talk on finances.

Necessity for the campaign for funds is evidenced by the fact that only $735,393 has been subscribed toward the estimated $3,000,000 needed for the successful operation of the plan, leaders say. Already 2,100 men have been given employment by the association and taken off the relief lists of the charity agencies.

TALKS IN WILKINSBURG

Declaring it the duty of every individual to support the movement, Leray Harnish in an address before the Wilkinsburg Men's Association meeting in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, last night, urged moral and financial support of the Pittsburgh Plan.

The plan, he declared, is the practical and economic measure to take men off the relief lists of welfare organizations and put them to work to be self-supporting members of the community.

Twenty children from two to three and a half years old daily attend the Frick Nursery School on Thackeray street. The school has been in existence three weeks. It is sponsored by the Buhl Foundation as part of a Child Guidance Center which will eventually include a Child Guidance Clinic on Victoria street.

H. L. Spencer, principal of the Frick Training School for Teachers, is chairman of the Nursery School committee. Miss Jean Brigham is director.

The children arrive each morning before 9 o'clock. An inspection by a health nurse is followed by free play outdoors if the weather is good. At 10 o'clock they receive orange juice and cod-liver oil. Following a rest, they have lunch at 11:30 a. m.

Menus are arranged by Miss Burns, of the home economics department Frick Training School, in co-operation with dieticians from the Bellefield Trade School. A typical luncheon menu includes tomatoes, chopped baked liver, a sandwich, carrots, prunes and milk.

Along one side of the playroom is a screened partition, behind which 25 parents and teachers from the Frick school can observe the children without their knowledge. The school is used an an observation laboratory for teachers in training school and for parent education. The purpose is to "help them to learn to play together and get along with other children."

$30,000 COUNTY DEBT BLAMED FOR PROTEST

Doors too Small to Admit New Devices; Remodeling Cost May Cause Official Clash

The Pittsburgh School Board has indicated a position that may result in denying the use of schools as polling places for primary and general elections when voting machines are installed.

County Commissioners yesterday awarded a contract for delivery of voting machines to be in use in Allegheny County for the September primary.

Later, James Bonar, superintendent of buildings for the school board, told his colleagues that employes of the county commissioners' office had been measuring doors of school buildings and reported finding no entrance in a number of the structures large enough to admit a voting machine.

SEEK LARGER DOORS

He predicted that the county soon would ask the school board to enlarge door openings to admit voting machines. A number of the school board members, led by N. R. Criss, objected on the ground that the county owes the school board more than $30,000 rent for polling place space.

Attaches of the county commissioners office today said they had checked all openings in schools used as voting districts and found doors and passage ways sufficient to admit voting machines without making alterations to the buildings. The machine selected can be detached from its base. Doors on portable buildings and private buildings, found too small to admit the machines, have been enlarged by county employes.

The voting machine contract was awarded by the votes of Commissioners Armstrong and Babcock to the Poole Engineering Company, of Baltimore, on a bid of $1,019 as against the $1,106.31 bid of the Automatic Voting Machine Company, of Jamestown, N. Y.

The competing bids were on a "cabinet-type" machine. The Automatic Voting Machine Company also submitted a bid of $996.31 for a "leg-type" machine.

"SAFE" MACHINE

Commissioner McGovern did not vote on the award, explaining he did not believe either machine had been demonstrated enough to the public. He hoped, however, that since the contract had been let, the losing concern would not attempt to hold up delivery by lawsuits.

The Poole machine is equipped with a printing press that provides sheets showing the totals for each candidate a minute after the last person has voted. After the printing, the records of votes cast cannot be changed without removing the printing device, which would require more than an hour, it was asserted by the manufacturers.

OTHER EASY TO CHANGE

The totals of the Automatic machine can be changed by releasing a lock, the key of which would legitimately be in the possession of an authorized custodian.

Armstrong contended that the Poole machine was better protected from the cheating of crooked election officials. He said:

"We have been shown how the one machine could be changed in a few minutes after the protecting lock was opened. It would be a case of keys lying around like lead pencils. On the other hand, it would take an hour to change the Poole machine."

INDIANA CHURCH CLASH AIRED IN COURT

Baptist Congregation Engaged in Legal Battle For Control of Property

Factional dissension among members of the First Regular Baptist Church of Indiana, Pa., split on questions of faith, and each seeking control of the congregation and edifice, was aired before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

The New Hampshire Confession of Faith was adopted when the congregation was organized in 1858, and a schism developed in 1919, when the Baptist denomination created the New World Movement for collection and distribution of church funds. A majority of the congregation refused to follow this movement and a minority of 23 members met in protest against the majority action in a Malta hall and were barred from the congregation as a result, the record showed.

The congregation in control ignored the mission societies of the Northern Baptist convention and the literature of the Baptist Publication Society, patronizing other publishers and conducting their own mission society.

The excluded members met in September, 1928, declared themselves the regular congregation and elected officers and filed a bill in equity in the name of the church to obtain possession of the church edifice, parsonage and property. Judge J. N. Langham, of Indiana, ruled in their favor and the members formerly in control, termed the majority, appealed.

Other appeals argued were: T. Stanton Davis and others, appellants, against the Cambria Title, Savings and Trust Company, Ebensburg Trust Company and George Prindible and others, Cambria County; Patrick O'Rourke, appellant, against the City of Washington, Washington County; and appeal of Truman O. Andrews, surviving executor, in re estate of E. W. Constable, deceased.

COUNCIL BLOCKS MINE FIRE FUND, SEEKS BIDS

Did This Card Foresee Death?

FINAL EXPENSE ESTIMATES DESIRED

Anderson Proposal Adopted; Costs and Methods Again Argued With Crafton Men

Instead of appropriating another $10,000 to fight a mine fire on the McShane property near the Crafton Borough line, City Council has ordered the Department of Public Works to seek preliminary estimates on the final cost of subduing the flames.

An emergency appropriation measure was held over at a Finance Committee meeting yesterday on motion of Councilman Charles Anderson.

The original agreement with Crafton was that the city would appropriate $10,000 to start the work if Crafton would donate $3,334.

WORK AT STANDSTILL

Work ceased a week ago when the original $10,000 was exhausted.

After developing into a tilt between J. J. Croak, department engineer, and Webster Hineau, Crafton engineer, the meeting resulted in the order to obtain estimates from contracting firms.

Croak asserted that at least $26,000 more would be required to extinguish the fire.

Hineau said he had advised Crafton officials against payment because the method of digging out the coal was "extravagant and unnecessary."

SEES NO EMERGENCY

Declaring the mine fire did not constitute an actual emergency, Councilman Anderson said:

"This fire has been burning five years. It can burn a short time longer without a great deal of danger. I move that the Department of Public Works be instructed to seek preliminary estimates and bids."

A previous motion by Robert Garland that Hineau present a bid, guaranteeing elimination of the fire, was withdrawn. Garland said:

"Mr. Anderson's motion gives Hineau an opportunity to present a bid. The John Casey Company can bid too."

When Anderson's motion was offered Council President Herron pointed out that the department could not advertise for final bids because no money has been appropriated for the purpose.

MARKET PROBE POSTPONED BY COUNCIL

Open Hearing on Charges Of Irregularities Held Up By Public Works Inquiry

Hearing of alleged irregularities in operation of the city market houses, scheduled before Council today at the request of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, has been tentatively postponed until April 1.

President John S. Herron, chairman of the Councilmanic Committee on Public Hearings, said the change had been made because he feared a probe into the Department of Public Works, under way today, would not be finished in time to give the building owners a chance to present their claims.

The association has charged the market houses are overmanned and are operated by the city in a most inefficient manner. Complaint of the Association that the City-County Building is overmanned will probably be heard on the same date, Herron said.

Although Baby Rose Marie, 8-year-old musical prodigy of McKees Rocks, arrived in Harrisburg too late last night for the Governor to witness her performance at a banquet attended by representatives and senators, she received congratulations that she will always cherish, she said.

She performed before members of the committee that heard Representative Michael Angelo Musmanno's bill for modification of labor laws to permit children to perform on stage and radio.

She is appearing at the Penn Theater this week with Robert Conche.

PERSHING TELLS OF DEBATE ON ARMISTICE TERMS

A. E. F. LEADER INSISTED ON SURRENDER

casualties, leaving the guns to be towed out of line by motor trucks or by hand.

Our men as a whole showed unrivaled fortitude in this continuous fighting during inclement weather and under the many disadvantages of position. Through such experience the army had developed into a powerful machine and had supreme confidence in its ability to carry through successfully.

October 23 the combat strength of the A. E. F. was 1,256,478, of which 592,300 were in the 1st Army. The 1st Army also included approximately 100,000 French combat troops.

While the high pressure of our dogged attacks was severe on our troops, it was calamitous to the enemy. He had been so hard pressed that once a division was engaged in the fight it became practically impossible to effect its relief.

The enemy was forced to meet recurring crises by breaking up tactical organizations and hurriedly sending detachments to different portions of the line.

Americans Determined

Every member of the American Expeditionary Forces, from the front line to the base ports, was straining every nerve. Extraordinary efforts were exerted by the entire Services of Supply to meet the enormous demands. Obstacles which seemed insurmountable were overcome daily in hastening the movements of replacements, ammunition and supplies to the front, and of sick and wounded to the rear.

It was this spirit of determination animating every member of the A. E. F. that made it impossible for the enemy to maintain the struggle until 1919.

Now that the end was in prospect, everybody was in much better mood. M. Clemenceau was in fine humor when I saw him in Paris, October 22, and was profuse in his compliments on the success of our army. The object of my visit was to urge his assistance in obtaining more horses for our artillery, which was almost immobile.

M. Clemenceau

The French had furnished us 130,000 horses, but they were inferior and were rapidly used up. M. Clemenceau hesitated, however, to make a further requisition now that we appeared to be nearing the end of the war.

My diary records:

"Paris, Monday, October 28, 1918. Met Marshal Foch and Allied commanders at Senlis Friday to consider terms of armistice. Petain's views were stiffer than Marshal Haig's and mine more stringent than either.

"Have been laid up with grip since Saturday."

Confer About Armistice

Although Marshal Foch had told me some days before that if his opinion should be asked regarding the terms of an armistice he expected to call the commanders-in-chief together and get their views, I had not made a detailed study of the terms that should be imposed, especially as I had expected some word from Washington on the subject.

Having discussed the question in a general way with the Chief of Staff, McAndrew, the Chief of Operations, Fox Conner, and the Judge advocate, Bethel, they were directed to meet me at Senlis, and we went over the details briefly before the conference.

Judge Bethel

At the opening of the conference Marshal Foch said in substance: "You are doubtless aware that the Germans are negotiating for an armistice through the intermediary of the American Government, and declare themselves ready to accept the Fourteen Points of President Wilson as a basis."

He went on to say that he had called us together to obtain our views, and that he thought "the terms should be such as to render Germany powerless to recommence operations in case hostilities are resumed." One of his officers then read aloud from a newspaper the Fourteen Points.

I expressed the opinion that commanders-in-chief should act only on the authority of their respective governments, and inquired whether the governments had referred this question to us with directions to draw up the conditions to be imposed in case they should deem it possible to grant an armistice.

Discuss Peace Terms

Marshal Foch replied that the French government, with the approval of the allied and associated powers, had directed him to take up the question with the commanders-in-chief, and he considered that we were justified in drafting the conditions of an eventual armistice.

Although I was in favor of demanding the surrender of the German armies, I accepted this as a conference to decide upon the terms in case an armistice should be granted.

Foch then asked my opinion as to conditions that should be imposed, and I replied that as it was a matter of greater concern to both Great Britain and France than to the United States, and that as their armies had been engaged longer and had suffered more than ours I thought it appropriate for Sir Douglas Haig and Gen. Petain to express their views first.

Marshal Haig said in substance that the German army was far from being disintegrated and was still capable of withdrawing to a shorter front and making a stand against equal or greater forces. On the other hand, the Allies were pretty well exhausted.

The total shortage of men for the British and French armies, he said, was about 250,000 each, with none available to fill the gaps.

The American Army, he further said, was not yet complete, and some time must elapse before it would be large enough to relieve the diminishing Allied armies. He thought the terms should be such that the Germans would not hesitate to accept them.

He then proposed immediate and complete evacuation of invaded Belgian and French territory; occupation by the Allies of Alsace, Lorraine, and the fortresses of Metz and Strasbourg; restitution of all rolling stock seized by the Germans in France and Belgium, or its equivalent, and repatriation of inhabitants of invaded territory.

These conditions, Sir Douglas pointed out, would place us on the German frontier in case of a renewal of hostilities, and we could carry on the war in German territory. The armistice would give the Americans time to build up their army. He added: "If hostilities should be resumed I would prefer to find the Germans entrenched behind their old frontier of 1870 than to find them on the right bank of the Rhine."

Sir Douglas

Enemy Greatly Weakened

Marshal Foch then said:

"It cannot be said that the German Army is not defeated. Although we are not able to tell its exact condition, still we are dealing with an army that has been pounded every day for three months, an army that is now losing on a front of 400 kilometers, that, since July 15, has lost more than 250,000 prisoners and 4,000 guns; an army that is physically and morally thoroughly beaten.

"Certainly the Allied armies are not new, but victorious armies are never fresh. In this matter the question is relative; the German armies are far more exhausted than ours.

"Certainly the British and French armies are tired; certainly the American Army is a young army, but it is full of idealism and strength and ardor. It has already won victories and is now on the eve of another victory; and nothing gives wings to an army like victory.

"When one hunts a wild beast and finally comes upon him at bay one then faces greater danger, but it is not the time to stop, it is time to redouble his blows without paying any attention to those he, himself, receives."

Gen. Petain spoke next and spread out a map of the Western Front showing territory between the existing positions and the Rhine, with lines drawn in red indicating proposed stages of retirement of the German armies.

He said that in his opinion the best way to render him incapable of further fighting was to deprive them of their material, and he recommended that they be required to withdraw promptly according to the schedule he had prepared.

Pershing Gives Views

If this movement should begin at once, he thought it would be impossible for the Germans to remove their material, especially the heavy guns and ammunition. Petain also suggested that they be required to return to the Allies 5,000 locomotives and 100,000 freight cars.

His opinion was that the German armies should retire to the east of the Rhine and that the Allies should establish bridgeheads at Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne.

Marshal Foch then asked my views. I replied, in effect:

"The general view that an armistice should provide guarantee against a resumption of hostilities, give the Allies a decided advantage, and be unfavorable to Germany in case hostilities should be resumed, meets with my approval.

"I think that the damage done by the war to the interests of the powers with which the United States is associated against Germany has been so great that there should be no tendency toward leniency.

"The present military situation is very favorable to the Allies. The German forces since the beginning of the counter-offensive, July 18, have been constantly in retreat and have not been able to recover since that time. The condition of the French and British armies can best be judged by the fact that they have been continuously on the offensive since then and that they are now attacking with much vigor.

Proposes Demands

"As to the American Army, the part it has taken in the operations since July 18 has not been inconsiderable. It is constantly increasing in strength and training; its staffs, its services and its higher commanders have improved by experience, so there is every reason to suppose that the American Army will be able to take the part expected of it in the event of resumption of hostilities. I therefore propose:

"1. Evacuation of France and Belgium within 30 days and of all other foreign territory occupied by Germany without delay.

"2. Withdrawal of the German armies from Alsace-Lorraine and occupation of those territories by the Allied armies.

"3. Withdrawal of German armies to the east of the Rhine and the possession of such bridgeheads on the eastern side of the Rhine by the Allies as may be necessary to insure their control of that river.

"4. Unrestricted transportation of the American Army and its material across the seas.

"5. Immediate repatriation of all nationals of foreign territory now or heretofore occupied during the war by Germany.

"6. Surrender of all U-boats and U-boat bases to the control of a neutral power until their disposition is otherwise determined.

"7. Return to France and Belgium of all railroad rolling stock that has been seized by Germany from those countries."

When I mentioned the surrender of submarines Marshal Haig interrupted, saying:

"That is none of our affair. It is a matter for the Admiralty to decide."

Points Out Menace

I replied, inviting attention to the fact that the American Army was operating 3,000 miles from home, that the German submarines constituted a formidable menace to our sea communications, and that their surrender was a matter of vital importance to us.

I said the number to be delivered could be decided by the naval authorities, but that this condition should be exacted so that if hostilities were resumed we should have our communications free from danger.

To this, Marshal Foch replied:

"The suggestion of Gen. Pershing regarding submarines seems to me a reasonable one and his demand well founded."

Marshal Foch

Marshal Foch expressed his thanks for what I had said, and added that while it was true the American Army was still young, its spirit was splendid and it was tremendously increasing every day in efficiency and in numbers.

He then asked Marshal Haig whether, in view of what Gen. Petain and I had said, he cared to modify his views on the terms of an armistice, to which Haig replied in the negative. The conference ended here with Marshal Foch's request that each of us submit in writing what we had proposed.

Pershing vs. Foch

If you have been reading the Pershing story you have noted that the Commander of the American Expeditionary Forces has at times been at serious variance with Marshal Foch. Now you can get the Supreme Commander's side of the story by reading the Foch Memoirs starting Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Three southern girls who made good in O. O. McIntyre's big city, have added zest to the Pleasure Hour on KDKA tonight at 9:30. The Boswell sisters look alike so we've selected Vet to represent the whole troupe. Imagine three beautiful girls like Vet! WJAS has two of the evening's celebrities—the demure Norma Shearer at 8:30 and Belle Baker in her interpretation of "Just a Gigolo," at 10. Here's a tip: Hear Olive Palmer sing "The Wren," on WCAE at 9:30 before going to KDKA at the same hour for the Boswells. Or hear Olive Palmer entirely and pick up the Boswell Sisters in their second broadcast on WJZ at 11:15.

Hellmut H. Hellmut (that middle "H" has us guessing) does a Floyd Gibbons from the Statue of Liberty tomorrow morning at 11:45, KDKA, for his German listeners.

A minstrel show and a Tom Thumb wedding are being planned by Cousin Lora, Uncle Ralph and the Gimbee Family. For a children's hour there's nothing on the air to equal it.

"Haunted Violin" on WEAF-WCAE last night was superb.

Jesse Kaufman, manager of WCAE, and Gene Thomas, manager of the national singing auditions, conferred yesterday for local tests to be held this fall.

WMBJ, fighting to the last ditch, has hopes of being back on the air in two weeks. News that the government would force their hand in favor of WWSW was printed exclusively three weeks ago in the paper that "Tells It First."

Condenser microphones—supersensitive—have been known to pick up the sound of heart beats in the studio.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Expensive at best, silk hose and undergarments are made doubly so by improper washing. A fashion expert has found a new, simple way to correct this.

She adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles as usual. The addition of Energine removes all the body excretions that soften and rot silk.

The results are amazing. Not only does this method give new cleanliness and freshness with original color revived but actually gives longer life to hose and undergarments. Try this new method. It's easier and quicker than just soap and water alone, means less rubbing and insures extra wear that will surprise you.

Energine is unexcelled, also, for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, March 25.—There is scant hospitality in the radio salons for those announcers who would vary their accents, who would air the picturesque sectional pronunciations of the republic.

The overlords of the microphone frown upon any attempt of their adjective-assemblers to deviate from a policy of pronounciation which they choose to call "cosmopolitan English."

The policy may be a good one if it means the use of English that is generally understood by the people of the land. But it has its drawbacks. Particularly, it has its drawbacks if radio, like the theater, is to be a true reflection of the tangy variety of the American speech and the American language.

The soft and languorous charm of southern speech is missing in announcers who reach the ears of the whole nation save when Munday, of Georgia, faces the microphone. The sharp and salty twang of New England, the deep and gusty talking styles of the West—all are absent when the announcers lift their voices.

Instead, we have a machine-made, standardized form of talking that is believed to be as acceptable in the Yazoo Valley as in Commonwealth avenue.

Speech reform societies for one thing are having too much to say to the broadcasters. They have swarmed into the studios, their lorgnettes raised, their minds upon the glories of Oxford. Purring their praise, hanging their medals upon those radio noun-and-verb-men who hew to their prescribed lines, they have succeeded in making Nice Nellie the patron saint of the announcers.

It is just too bad. It is just too bad to hear one announcer after another affecting the stilted pompousness of a literary tea on the upper reaches of the Thames.

It would seem that radio would be the gainer by restoring the wide variety of American speech. For one thing radio would be more colorful. There was a time, not so long ago, when announcers had personalities. They may not have always talked in a manner to please the herr professors, but, Lord knows, they talked with vigor. They said what they meant vividly and for the most part charmingly. In so doing it was easy to overlook an occasional slurring of an "r" or the dropping of a "g."

* * *

Today, announcers' speech has been poured into a common mold. The announcers all sound alike, save when Munday or Ernie Smith, of the Coast, face the "mike." They have been so trained in a standardized school that they can even take one another's places without the public being the wiser. All use the same inflections, the same pronunciations; all have the same kind of voice.

Munday, to our mind, raised announcing to a new art, raised it by the use of a fascinating Southern drawl and a rich and varied vocabulary which at first he used without a hint of restriction. Listeners all over the country found him a delightful earful. They turned their dials to him in preference to other and more famous announcers who happened to be gabbing at the same time. And there was no difficulty understanding him.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Happy Marriages Cannot Be Built on Pity

Suppose you found that you didn't really love the man to whom you were engaged—

That you'd fallen deeply, truly in love with another man and he with you—

Then suppose that just as you were about to break the bad news to your fiance he had an accident that crippled him, probably for life—

What would you do?

Would you tell him the truth, and marry the other man, regardless?

Or would you marry him and let him go on thinking that you cared?

That's the tough problem Fate has handed Marie to solve. What'll she do?

Doesn't Love Fiance

Be brave 'n' noble and give up love—?

Or hit him when he's down?

"I just can't see which way to go," she sobs. "I want to be free. . . . I want to tell him the way I really feel—But if I do, I'm afraid he'll just think I'm running out on him because he's been smashed up. . . ."

I wonder what you'll think she should do.

"Dear Sally:

"Can you help me? You help so many people. I don't want to seem like a silly cry baby, but I have a problem that is very serious, and I just don't know what to do. So I am asking you.

"For almost a year now, I have been engaged to a man I have always thought I loved. But lately I have met another man, and now I know that I never did really love the first one. I guess it was just—well, anyhow—I guess you understand how anyone can be mistaken like that. This feeling is totally different.

"And now I want to break my engagement, because this other man loves me, too, and wants me to marry him. We are both very sure about the way we feel, and we had planned to tell Harry that we loved each other, and that I wanted to break my engagement to him.

Can't Decide

"But now, before we had a chance to do that, Harry has had an accident that has crippled him. . . . Maybe for life. And you just can't know how badly I feel about it all.

"What am I to do? I want to tell him that I no longer care for him, but the way things are, that seems terrible. And I am afraid that if I do do it, he will think I am just running away—ducking out on him, because of this accident, and the way it's left him. It would be dreadful if he thought that. It would seem so heartless and cruel, and hurt him so much.

"Oh, please help me, and tell me what to do. Should I stick by him, in spite of my love for the other man? Or shall I come out and tell him that I love someone else?

"It's all so hard. I just can't seem to see which way to go. I wonder if anyone else ever had such a thing to decide. It seems so terrible to tell him something like that when he's been hit so hard already. But I don't want to marry him.

"Please help me if you can. I have no one else to ask.

"MARIE."

You've read it. I wonder what's your answer?

If you are very young—if you know little of life and the human heart—your answer will probably be beautifully idealistic. You may say:

Pity Is Poor Substitute

"She should marry the man to whom she has given her promise. She should put her lover away and devote her life to making the poor cripple happy. Then God will reward her for her sacrifice and she will find happiness, too."

If you're very young, that may be your answer. But if you're older—if you know life as it really is, if you know men and women as they really are—you will know that that answer won't work.

Sentimental theory to the contrary, happy marriage cannot be built on pity.

If a man wants love, he wants love, and pity is a bitter substitute. And that man will not think kindly or patiently of the sacrifice which has been made for him. He will think resentfully; he will feel that he has been cheated.

And life, too, will feel that it has been cheated. Life—that strange urge that looms behind us all—wants happy marriages, marriages that come to joyous harvest. Life doesn't want or bless marriage based on pity.

And so, if you're older and wiser, you'll tell Marie to tell the truth—because it's kinder and more righteous in the long run.

Two answers—which is yours?

Never Do or Say Things in Heat of Anger or Misunderstanding—Fay King

By FAY KING

No wrong can ever be completely righted.

That is why it is so necessary to be slow, cautious and careful before you say anything which may harm or hurt another.

When a wound has been inflicted, being sorry, apologizing, and spending the rest of your life trying to right that injustice, may win forgiveness, but the scar remains forever.

Some persons are very apt in making pretty apologies. They can be so sincerely sorry and penitent for the wrong they have done. But their pretty apologies do not right the wrong nor heal the wound they have inflicted.

Never do or say anything in the heat or haste of anger or misunderstanding.

It is then that silence is more than golden—it is divine.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Begins to Understand

Even though Dicky's anger was not directed against me but had Philip Veritzen as an object, I felt it the part of discretion to snatch at some other subject of conversation.

"How wonderful of you to cut in, Dicky," I said. "How did you ever manage it? The youngsters have a stag line, but we oldsters haven't. I thought we all would have to stay where we were until the music changed."

"And I'm here to say that would have been a blamed long time for me to see old Phil buzzing you," he retorted. "Besides, I was getting fairly well fed up with Milady Brixton. She's a fine old gal and all that, but there are better dancers and wittier talkers right in this room—I might say in this corner . . . the room."

"But you haven't told me how you—"

"Got away?" Dicky finished with a grin. "Take a look around you, dearie. Do you see who's dancing with Milady Brixton?"

I looked across the room and saw a pretty sight—Ronald's dark head above his mother's gray one, as he whirled her around in the dance.

"Ronald had lost Marion for the minute," he said, "and I guess he was a bit tired of having to stage a heavyweight bout every time he cut in on her. Besides, he's devoted to his mother, and, I fancy, really wanted to dance with her. And, though I protested for courtesy's sake, I didn't kick the lad in the face or bite his ear off when I handed the lady over."

"Dicky, you're awful!" I chided banally, but happily.

"Now, you know you don't mean a word of that," he retorted. "You're really tickled to death that I wanted to shelve Helena and grab you away from that old buzzard. Aren't you? Say it!"

His voice was imperative, but it held a note which thrilled me, and I said what he wished with emphasis, was rewarded by having him sweep me close to him in a clasps which no chaperone on the floor would have tolerated in one of her charges.

Noel's Fear of Losing Mary

"Dicky!" I gasped. "You mustn't! Suppose some of those young people should notice. They are dancing so decorously. It would be terrible if they should see you—"

"Hugging my wife to music? Who's to forbid it?" he answered rebelliously. But he loosened his clasp, nevertheless, and I gave a little cry of dismay as the spray of orchids at my shoulder dropped in pieces. It was an involuntary exclamation, born of surprise and the regret any flower lover feels at seeing a crushed blossom, for I really cared no whit for the flowers. But Dicky's face darkened.

"So they mean something to you after all," he said.

"They do not," I contradicted flatly, "except that I don't like to lose any bouquet so early in the evening. Please do not think of them again, Dicky. Let's enjoy the dance while we can."

"Right-o!" And for the next five minutes or so gave myself up to the music and the delight of being guided over the floor by the man whose dance steps have always best suited mine. Then Dicky, with a smothered little exclamation, swung me into a corner and took his arm from my waist.

"Pipe this!" he said.

"This" was the progress of Mary and young Mr. Cameron around the dance floor in a series of intricate dance steps which patently were being evolved from their own ideas. It was so beautiful an exhibition that gradually all the other dancers on the floor stopped where they were, as we had, and watched intently while the tall young talkie star, almost too good-looking for a man, and Mary, easily the loveliest girl in the room, bowed the postured and swung back and forth in a dance which would have done credit to any professional performance.

I watched them, fascinated for a little while. Then my eyes went in search of two faces—Noel's and his father's—which I knew would be fastened intently upon the dancers.

Both were standing near enough to me so that I could see the expression of their eyes. Noel's held admiration of the wonderful skill his fiancee was exhibiting, but there was also a look of actual fright which tugged at my heart.

But in Philip Veritzen's eyes there was the look which is known as the one belonging to the cat which has eaten the canary, and in its light I began to understand the fear that was in Noel's and his enigmatic injunction to "wait and see." I looked hard at Mary and heard an echo of the fear that had been in Noel's voice, in my own as I spoke to my husband.

"Dicky," I said tremulously, "Mary loves that dancing."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, March 26

The sidereal operations for this day stress the importance of social, domestic, artistic and romantic affairs, with pronounced activity and energy expended in this direction. Likewise, there may be occasion for unusual or excessive outlay of funds in these purely personal projects. Extravagance and speculation should be shunned and precaution taken with correspondence or legal papers.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusually lively and interesting social, domestic or affectional matters, with much pleasure and gratification to be found in these activities.

A child born on this day may have an unusually sagacious intellect, leaning toward science and higher thought. But personal affairs in social, domestic and affectional associations may dominate its life.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Danger of Mumps Lies in Complications.

Have you ever noticed a child with a red flannel cloth wrapped around a swollen face and neck? I need not say more, for you probably have guessed what I have in mind. I want to tell you about mumps.

Dr. Copeland.

Mumps is an infectious disease, causing swelling of the saliva-forming glands, particularly the one called the parotid gland. This gland is located just below the lobe of the ear. When it is swollen it gives the child that one-sided, pathetic picture so familiar in this disease.

In the beginning the child complains of pain just below the ear. A slight swelling is noticed over the sore spot. The swelling increases gradually and within forty-eight hours the neck and side of the face are greatly enlarged.

Pain usually precedes the swelling. Movements of the jaw in talking, swallowing of food or chewing become difficult. Frequently there is earache and even slight impairment of hearing. These effects are usually temporary.

Close contact is required to spread this disease. Children are less susceptible to mumps than to other contagious diseases and only a small number of those exposed take it.

However, it is important that children not be unnecessarily exposed. The complications which frequently follow mumps are most undesirable. Kidney diseases, nervous conditions, impaired hearing and in some cases deafness, have resulted.

During the height of the disease it is best to keep the child in bed. Special care should be given to the mouth. Alkaline mouth washes are used twice a day and the bowels are kept open. The diet should be a light one, consisting of fluids.

Since this disease is contagious it must be reported to the local board of health. The officials will give instructions as to the methods of quarantine.

Do not consider this condition too lightly. Above all, if your child has mumps, keep him at home and do not permit him to play with others.

Household Hints

Diced pineapple used as a base for chicken salad gives it a delicious flavor. I think you'll like it.

Before having the house painted, coat all the windows with a cleaning powder and any paint on the glass can be removed in one operation.

To clean aluminum that is tarnished or blackened with smoke from a gas or oil stove, make a paste of fine scouring powder and kerosene; dip a cloth in the paste and rub the aluminum until it is clean, then wash it in hot water and dry it with clean cloth.

Correct Manners

The Bride-to-Be Plans Her Own Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to have your opinion as to the proper wedding invitation in the following case:

The bride has no parents, nor has she a married sister. The wedding is being arranged and paid for by the parents of the groom. It would seem as though the invitations should be worded as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith invite you to the marriage of their son,
John Smith,
to Mary Brown.

Would this be proper, or can you suggest something else in view of the circumstances mentioned above?

READER.

First, may I say that I don't at all agree with the taste or form of the "circumstances" that this bride-to-be has agreed to? No matter under what circumstances, the bride-to-be should plan to make her own arrangements and to pay for for wedding. Or else she should adapt her plans accordingly—that is, have the most simple of weddings, or just go to the clergyman's home to be married. She should not allow the groom's parents to plan her wedding or to pay for it.

But if she persists in doing this poor form planning, then perhaps it would be best for her to write a note of invitation.

The form that you outline would not do at all, under any circumstances.

Correct Costume for the Summer Dance.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a summer dance the young men wore tuxedo coats, shorts and vests, and white flannel trousers. Is this a formal costume?

When I learned of my escort's costume, I quickly changed my evening gown and wore a flowered chiffon dress, quite long, with a deep cape, blue satin slippers to match a tone in the pattern, and long gloves. I felt that the white flannels made his costume less formal, and my gown should strike the same note. Now we are having quite a discussion as to the "correctness" of his choice and mine. All the girls at the dance were dressed differently, from very formal "court" gowns to sport frocks. The boys were nearly all dressed as my escort was dressed.

FOUR ADMIRERS.

This attire that you describe as the one worn by the men at the summer dance is an informal one, quite in keeping with an informal summer dance, . . . and most of them are, of course, informal. At a summer dance the girls would, quite correctly too . . . and quite consistently with the attire worn by the men . . . wear the informal kind of costume to which you changed. (The long gloves added a formal note that was inconsistent with the informality of your costume.) Your partner's choice of clothes was correct . . . and the attire of the girls who wore formal clothes or sport frocks was not in keeping with the occasion.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Girls who are forever trotting to the boot-mender to have taps put on their heels should learn to walk properly, plant the foot squarely and solidly upon the pavement instead of turning it in on the outer side. It is a wonder they escape having bowed legs, since that trouble comes from bad foot posture when walking, as well as from poor bone development.

Opera singers have high chests and full, firm necks. Why? Because in the cultivation of vocal art they learn how to breathe properly. They aren't shallow breathers. They breathe from way downstairs. Five minutes night and morning of deep inhalations through the nostrils and exhalations through the mouth with a rushing whistle will do more for a meager chest and fiddle-string neck than massage and applications will accomplish in a month of Sundays.

Eyebrows have their own trouble. They get dry and individual hairs rear around. Try applications of oil of sweet almonds and see how they will take to this solacement. When putting it on train the fuzzers to line up neatly. Brush upward at the inner end, keep on a straight line in the center, brush downward at the far end. Thus the eyebrow will form a graceful arch.

Chic hats worn off the face are getting smaller and smaller. Bimeby they'll be about as big as thimbles. Anyhow they not only make necessary a charming arrangement of front hair, but they cry out for curls at the rear. Designers of coiffuers and factory hair is coming back again. Not great wads, of course, like those prehistoric things called switches, but cunning fringes that burst into ringlets at the edges, and sausage curls in groups of three or five.

ACID STOMACH!
Here's a pleasant way to Get Rid of It

A bubbling effervescent drink that sets acid stomachs right in a jiffy. Tastes so good you'll like it for its taste alone. It has been FAMED in Europe since 1880. Italians drink it as we do soda water and it's an antacid that has no rival. So good even small children take it without coaxing. Gently laxative and altogether delicious. MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should learn all about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

ALL-SENIOR LINE POSSIBLE AT PITT

EVEN A MIND reader would have a tough time trying to find out what Jock Sutherland, Pitt football coach, thinks about. But a good guess is that the silent Scot has many times during the last few months, and particularly since spring practice was started this week, weighed an all-senior line against the merits of a combination of seniors, juniors and sophomores. For now that Jim MacMurdo and Rip Collins have made up their scholastic deficiencies and become eligible again for football, it would be possible for Coach Sutherland to put seven seniors in the forward wall of the Panthers for next season.

Jim MacMurdo

For the ends, he has Capt. Eddie Hirshberg and Collins; for the tackles, MacMurdo and Jess Quatse; for the guards, Hart Morris and Mike Milligan, and for center, Ralph Daugherty. Jock generally leans to the men with the greater amount of experience, but if he follows that policy in this case and picks the seven seniors named above he will be forced to keep some fine material on the bench.

FOR INSTANCE, THERE is Ted Daily, a crackerjack young end. He'll be a junior next fall. Skladany, star end of last year's freshman eleven, will also be fighting for a varsity job. And he's good. Frank Walton, husky tackle, and a junior when the 1931 gridiron season arrives, is another who will be a hard man to keep on the sidelines.

And even that does not exhaust the supply of material in the sophomore and junior classes that will be available for the wall. Francis Seigel and Paul Cuba, juniors in the fall, and Torcicio Onder, who will be a sophomore, are first-class linemen. Then there is Joe Tormey, a junior, and a whale of a center. Sutherland nearly every year turns out a fine string of forwards, and prospects for 1931 are bright for one of the best Panther lines in many seasons.

THOSE WHO HAVE urged the baseball reinstatement of Jimmy O'Connell, pleading that he had suffered enough since Commissioner Landis expelled him with Cozy Dolan in 1924 for the alleged offering of a $500 bribe to Heinie Sand, Philly infielder, received a surprise in the news that O'Connell's punishment has extended even beyond organized ball.

For he has been barred by unorganized ball, as well, the independent California League having rejected his application for a position on the Lodi club. All that Jimmy can do now is to stick to his off-season occupation of truck driving, which he has been following as a means of livelihood since his diamond expulsion.

THE CONTINUED SUCCESS of professional baseball depends upon its being kept above suspicion at all costs, and the O'Connell case is not without a valuable lesson to young players of the present and future, one that will react for the good of the game, but at the same time this latest development will strike many fans as being pretty tough on a player who was merely a rookie at the time of the offense and who was said to be only a messenger boy or a catspaw for somebody else. Too bad the investigation at the time failed to disclose where the $500 was to come from that was to be paid to the Phillies if they would agree "not to bear down too hard" against the Giants. That it was to come out of the pocket of a second-year recruit on a pennant-winning club has never sounded wholly convincing.

Frank Hogan

NIGHT BASEBALL HAS come in for some more raps from the Giants since they got their first taste of it in Houston, Tex., in an exhibition game against the White Sox. Practically every New York player from Catcher Frank Hogan all through the lineup has some complaint to offer.

Pitcher Willard Morrell's pitching arm was stiffened up after six innings on the mound. Shortstop Travis Jackson said the odd reflections on the ball upset him. Second Baseman Hughey Critz declared the lights confused him and caused him to make wild throws. The outfielders reported they could see fly balls but could not gauge their speed, and found the hoists coming down on them with unexpected suddenness. Even Chief Bender caught cold on the coaching lines.

HOGAN IS LOUDER than any of the others in denouncing the night game. "I didn't get a decent squint at any pitched ball I swung at," he complained. "I was just swinging and hoping. And as for the fielding side, it's tougher on catchers than on any other player.

"I mean in the business of foul flies. You tear off your mask in a hurry, look up and around, and bang, your gaze goes right into the reflectors of the lower tier of lights on the grandstand roof. How I ever caught two fouls I staggered under is more than I know."

CHARLEY HYATT and his mates on the Los Angeles A. C. basketball team have nothing but the highest praise for the Henrys, of Wichita, who knocked off the Californians in the semi-final round of the recent national championship A. A. U. tournament in Kansas City and then went on to win the final and retain the title which they first captured a year ago. The report of the defeated stars is that the Henrys played like an inspired team in the semi-finals and even more brilliantly in the final round.

HYATT AND HIS comrades believe they could have played a tighter game against the Henrys in the semis, but frankly admit that they could not have won the championship competing against the Henrys' last-round brand. And yet the California team, which the acquisition of the former Pitt star made the greatest ever known on the coast, defeated the Henrys twice before the tourney, first in Los Angeles and later in Wichita.

The explanation offered for the change in form is that a gent named George Gardner had a great deal to do with the Henrys' sudden flareup and remarkable improvement. He is basketball coach at Washburn College and is rated one of the best in the Middle West. He took over the Henrys 10 days before the tournament started and worked magic.

PITTSBURGH'S HOCKEY REPRESENTATIVES did not get off to a successful start in the playoffs for the International League championship, but the 2-to-1 defeat suffered in the opener at Cleveland last night, though a damaging blow, was not necessarily a fatal one.

Johnny O'Connell

Cleveland has been a jinx spot all season, not a single game having been won there by the Schooley skaters, and on top of that the locals are sorely crippled in the playoffs by the loss of Gordon Fraser. So the showing was a creditable one, everything considered. One game doesn't settle the thing by any means. The Jackets are still in the hunt, and even in defeat they showed that they may be depended upon to make a real fight of it in spite of their weakened condition.

IN SPITE OF the fact that Johnny Gooch will not be with the Baltimore International League club this season, Commissioner Landis having set aside the Gooch-Dundee Rodgers trade some time ago because Gooch refused to report, the first catcher for the Orioles will be an ex-Pirate just the same. And so will the second catcher, and so will the third. It is a singular fact that the Baltimore backstopping crew this year is made up entirely of former Buccaneers. One of them is Johnny O'Connell, Verona citizen; another is Claude Linton, and the third is Ike Danning. Gooch would have made it four. Other former Pittsburgh players with the Orioles are Third Baseman Jim Stroner, Outfielder Denny Southern and Pitcher Louis Koupal.

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—The Pirates are due to wind up their series with the Los Angeles club this afternoon. In the the two games played thus far the big leaguers from Pittsburgh have copped the bacon, and needless to state they will try to make a clean sweep today.

Manager Ens has two classy pitchers to show the Angels in the final clash. Ervin Brame, clever righthander, and Charley Wood, the curve ball lefthander, are primed for action and the two will divide up the slab toil. Ens is likely to give many of his rookies a chance to perform ere the contest is closed. He has followed this plan in the two games played to date.

HOPE TO TRIP TIGERS

The Pirates are eager for bigger and better game and accordingly they will have their sights set tomorrow for the Detroit Tigers, who are slated to meet the Buccos in four battles at Wrigley Field.

What started out to be a Pirate rout yesterday was transformed into a thrilling victory when the Ensmen came from behind to score a 16-to-11 success over the Angels. The contest was partly played in a shower, the moisture having a lot to do with a pitching performance which for inaccuracy was most unique. No less than 23 Pirates and Angels waited for and received bases on balls, and the wild total was increased somewhat when Hal Finney went to first after being struck with a pitched ball.

The home pitchers gave free transportation to 13 Pirates, counting the Finney incident. Eleven Angels paraded to first on bases on balls.

The slab hero of the afternoon was Andy Bednar, who relieved

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE NEVER-SMILING MAN—The never-smiling Hindu, of Allahabad, is the head of a sect of Hindu ascetics bound by vows to eschew emotions of a joyous or pleasant nature. They sleep, eat and speak as little as possible, but there is particular emphasis on the prohibition of smiling. The head of the sect, whose picture I found in Capt. Egon de Neveu's "Etude sur la Secte, etc.," holds a record of unbroken non-smiling for 64 years. This is one of the most startling innovations on the old Hindu art of mortifying the body for religion's sake. IF ALL U. S. AUTOS WERE FIVE PASSENGERS, OUR ENTIRE POPULATION COULD RIDE—According to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, there are approximately 26,000,000 passenger cars in the United States at the present time. CLEVELAND, March 25.—Although in enemy territory, the Yellow Jackets, Pittsburgh's representatives in the International Hockey League, today feel right at home.

Tomorrow night at Duquesne Garden, the Schooley icemen will meet the Buffalo Bisons, who finished first in the circuit's regular campaign, their first home game of the loop's annual post-season championship series, and this afternoon, as they wend their way homeward from this city of lake breezes and tough hockey players, they will try to figure out the method to be employed in overcoming the one-game handicap which they spotted Cleveland, Windsor and Buffalo, their playoff rivals, in bowing to Cleveland's Indians, defending champions, 2 to 1, in the title series inaugural at the Elysium here last night.

UP-GRADE TOUR

Off to a sorry start in the regular campaign, the Jackets had to overcome great handicaps in fighting their way up into the money circle and into the playoffs. Today they are confronted with another up-grade tour, and if the history of the regular season is repeated they will ease themselves right in under the crown in the final joust of this double round-robin series for the championship.

And despite the fact that they are bringing up the rear in the title scramble, with one defeat and no victories, the Jackets cannot be counted out of the jousting for the gonfalon. The great courage which stood them in good stead in the closing stage of the closest and most sensational race in the circuit's history was much in evidence here last night, and so long as they are able to keep their "old fight" the Steel City skaters must be regarded as serious contenders for the crown.

In absorbing defeat in the bandbox arena, which serves as the Indians' home, Capt. Tory Gregg and his mates flashed a brand of hockey that would have given them no worse than a tie on any skating surface of orthodox proportions. Neither team earned a single goal in a duel which was as hard fought as can be imagined, and had justice been done, a scoreless tie would have been the fruit of the milling.

After a scoreless first period, in which both teams missed a few fair opportunities to tally, Leo Reise, veteran defense man, put Pittsburgh out in front with a hard drive from center ice. Center ice here is about the same distance from the net as is the blue line at Duquesne Garden, and Alec Wood, who quit a hospital bed to step into the Cleveland net, was dumfounded when Leo's shot hopped over his stick and into a corner of the cage.

REISE TALLIES

The Reise score was rung up just 26 seconds after the second-period face-off, and no sooner had the scorer finished his work of jotting it down than Roger Smith, veteran defense man subbing for Gordy Fraser, out of the series with a broken hand, was sent to the penalty box for a very questionable offense, tabbed by the officials as cross-checking.

The banishing of Smith was the signal for a violent Indian attack and during the second minute of Leo's banishment Capt. Alex Gray

LYCEUM FIVES OPEN SERIES

By JULIUS LEVIN

The first of a three-game series to settle the championship of the Catholic Lyceum League will be staged tonight in the South Side Market House when St. Joseph's, winner of the first-half title, opposes St. John's, second-half winner and defending champion.

The two clubs have been rivals throughout the basketball season and are the same contenders that met in the post-season series a year ago, St. John's winning the Dr. Beinhauer trophy. St. Josephs' has improved considerably since last year and the Mt. Oliver passers are bent on turning the tables on their South Side rivals.

Both teams are reported in fine shape and will have every regular available for service.

KERR TO COACH AT RESERVE

CLEVELAND, March 25.—(INS.)—Andy Kerr, head coach of football at Colgate University, and noted grid authority, has been selected as mentor of the Western Reserve University football team, it was learned from Western Reserve officials today.

Kerr has not yet accepted the post, according to Gordon Locke, athletic director at Reserve, but is expected to make a favorable answer to the offer in a few days, it was said.

The offer consists of a long-term contract. It is the plan of the Reserve athletic board to establish a summer coaching school with Kerr at its head.

∴ Rookie Tales ∴

NO. 10—JIM BIVIN.

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—James Nathaniel Bivin, of Jackson, Miss., is one member of the Pirate club who has said very little since the team landed in California, but in that month Jim has laid away a lot of wood and he is out there sawin' every day.

James Nathaniel comes of good ol' Rebel stock. His two grandfathers carried arms for the Confederacy, so that Jim, beneath his sunny smile, should be a fighter of the first water.

Jim Bivin

Jewel Ens has not missed fire on Sunny Jim—not for a minute. Here we have a pitcher who has been only one full season in professional ball, yet he has most of the club veterans talking about him.

"It seems that everybody down aroun' home wanted to talk me out o' being a pitcher," said Jim. "I went out with the rest of the kids in school, but every time I would try to pitch they would chase me to some other position. But I kept on tryin' and I finally got into some good semi-pro ranks and then I got a chance."

"DISCOVERED" BY CAREY

Bivin has not yet reached his majority, but he is 2 inches above 6 feet in height and probably will put more poundage on his somewhat frail body. He came to camp unsung, but the folks back home may be singing songs about him before he gets through with the game. Any kid who can make a step from Class D to the majors and then appear impressive will bear plenty of watching.

Max Carey is largely responsible for the acquisition of Bivin. Jim was just about an outcast in the Mississippi Valley League after being released by Dubuque when Davenport needed a pitcher. Jim jumped at the chance and before July was over several clubs of higher classification, including the Pittsburgh team, were bidding for his services.

Carey went over to the wilds of that bush circuit and when he returned he had possession of Bivin and Vernon Kennedy. The two big pitchers are having quite a time of it and both are likely to justify Carey's judgment in no small manner.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

SHOOT SATURDAY

All trapshooters are invited to participate in a 100-bird singles race Saturday afternoon at the Homestead Park Rod and Gun Club traps. Prizes will be awarded under the Lewis class system. The traps have been adjusted to throw a better, slower target, and the background has been improved by cutting down several trees, insuring better scores and more pleasant shooting.

BATES REACHES THIRD ROUND

MINNEAPOLIS, March 25.—(AP.)—Merritt Bates, of Dallas, Tex., stamped himself as a dangerous contender for the singles handball crown by moving into the third-round eliminations of the National A. A. U. tournament.

Bates, playing with his customary deliberate ease, defeated Ray Stevens, Minneapolis veteran, in straight games, 21-5, 21-18.

Another strong contender, Joe Bathe, Michigan champion, entered the third round after a hard-fought match with Ed Rawlings, of Kansas City, winning 5-21, 21-15, 21-12.

Alfred Banuet, San Francisco, National singles champion, kept in the running for another title by defeating Herman (Lefty) Dormon, of Detroit, in the second round.

KNIGHT ERROR WINS RACE

LINCOLN, England, March 25.—(AP.)—Knight Error, one of the favorites, owned by Capt. A. S. Wilson, today captured the classic Lincolnshire Handicap, Lord Woolavington's Rattlin the Reefer finished second and Capt. E. Elgee's Telasur third.

Knight Error, with Whitaker up, galloped under the wire a length and a half in front. Three-quarters of a length separated the second and third horses.

The winner was quoted at 100 to 9, the price shortening before the race.

Rattlin The Reefer was quoted at 33 to 1 and Telasur at 28 to 1.

The stakes were 1,000 pounds sterling with extras, and the distance one mile.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BILOXI, Miss., March 25.—Today I start training for those spring sleeper jumps all over the South. My system is first to move an Army cot into an overheated closet and then nail down the window so you can't raise it. Then I crawl in under 20 pounds of blankets and hang my clothes in a hammock.

Nick Altrock

If I can get close enough to a night gang of riveters, it also helps the illusion. By going to bed like this for two weeks, I get trained so I can ride in a Pullman without taking a sheep census every night.

With the league opening only a short time off, I see the folks in New York are trying to throw out Jimmy Walker before Jimmy can throw out the first ball.

The colors of Scott High, of North Braddock, champion for 1931 of the W. P. I. A. L., are fluttering triumphantly from a vantage spot in the semi-final round of the annual P. I. A. A. championship chase today. Last night on the Stadium floor Scott rode helter-skelter over Farrell, representing District X in the state campaign, 37 to 22, and Saturday will tackle Hollidaysburg of District VI for the right to play in the title finale next week.

Johnny Tomko

Scott's elation today is tempered with regret over the passing of one of its outstanding stars, its captain and all-W. P. I. A. L. tourney forward, Johnny Tomko, who wound out his scholastic career last night in more than the proverbial blaze of glory and acclaim, is ineligible for further P. I. A. A. competition, for Johnny will celebrate his twentieth birthday Friday.

The P. I. A. A. says as how a lad cannot compete after he becomes 20 years of age so Johnny is out, ready to ride the bench with the scholastic used-to-wases.

TOMKO STARS

Anyway, he had a lot of fun leading his team to its decisive triumph over Farrell last night. Farrell came here with a reputation to uphold as being a tough ball club. Its formidability ended with the start of the ball game. Scott put on the pressure early, rushed off to a whizz-bang 11-2 lead in the first quarter and held at least a 12-point advantage from then on in.

At the half it was 21-9 at the three-quarter pole 28-16 and then 37-22 at the wire. Quite racy hossy, eh wot?

Tomko was the big gun of the opening-period attack. He rang up three buckets in a row. Ferguson and Bache adding one each and Johnny (On the Spot) Krutullis a foul. Farrell's points resulted from Stokosky's goal from the court.

The Mercer Countians did somewhat better in the second stanza. Ferguson stole the show from Tomko temporarily with two goals. Capt. Johnny added one and Bache and Krutullis each flipped a two-pointer for Scott's 10 points. Toskin, Leyshock, Marinovich dumped in goals for Farrell.

The boys tripped blithely along neck and neck in the third session, each team accounting for seven points. It's elementary figuring to dope out that with a 12-point lead Scott didn't have to worry much about being merely held even by the staggering Farrellites.

FARRELL FAR BEHIND

Scott completed the evening by again pulling out in front in the final chapter, writing "finis" to the ball game with a nine-point stroke, meanwhile limiting Farrell to half a dozen.

Tomko, with seven field goals and a foul, led in the scoring with 15 points. His tricky little running mate, who is not the worst ball player in the game by about nine thousand miles, Ferguson, was close on his heels with six.

Farrell wasn't fast enough or clever enough for the polished Scott machine. The finesse and balance of the North Braddock entry, a rousing tribute to the coaching ability of Johnny Reed, was again very much on display. There has been a lot said about Scott being worn out and tired. Maybe the boys are a trifle weary, but they are still good enough to carry the dough of many of our leading citizens on to the state final.

If Scott is tired, there are a lot of ball clubs that have had too much rest. The lineup:

Scott—37		Farrell—22
Tomko	F	Hall
Ferguson	F	Toskin
Bache	C	Leyshock
Krutullis	G	Stokosky
Kuhn	G	Morgan

Score by periods:

Scott	11	10	7	9—37
Farrell	2	7	6	7—22

GUEST, VOTEL ROLL 1,180 IN A. B. C.

BUFFALO, March 25.—Pennsylvania and West Virginia gave a pretty fair account of itself in the annual American Bowling Congress here yesterday. Particularly was this so as regards Huntington, for E. Reckard, of that city, batted out a 684 count to land in a tie for seventh place in the individual event.

Then there were the Harrys—Guest and Votel—of East Pittsburgh, who lambasted the wood for an 1180 and a choice position near the payroll window. Neither was there with a good singles score; in fact, they proved the only East Pittsburghers to get into the money.

Erie put a few into the money, chief in the doubles being C. Biers and G. Martino, who turned out an 1161. L. Holtz and H. Steinfurth were there with an 1135.

In the singles, C. Hasset shot 652, which was one of the highest individual scores of the day. F. Nowak will collect on his 623, another feature figure.

Braddock offered only one winner, this being J. Wisnewski, who hit 587 in the singles. Greensburg was there with an 1189, manufactured by M. Williams and C. Foltz. Another prize figure was the 1136 of H. McWilliams and W. Adolphson.

Parkersburg did not offer a collector, but Huntington showed a good doubles pair in R. Wilkes and Reckard, they getting 1143.

A quintet from Warren, the Baird Tire Shop, hit 2547 through games of 797, 846 and 904.

Erie cashed as a result of the 2780 figure put over by Alloway Drugs, this being best mark of the squad. It was attained through games of 910, 944 and 926. B. B. Biscuit Five, of Erie, rolled well outside the money, getting 2496 and games of 835, 853 and 808.

Barney Spinella, Brooklyn veteran, who shares honors with Jimmy Smith of twice annexing the all-event title, rolled into sixth place in the nine-game division. He followed his 684 team score with 526 in the doubles and pounded out 658 in the singles division for an aggregate of 1868. Yesterday's scores:

Sport Vignettes

Of the 16 players on the roster of the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets Hockey Club, Capt. Tory Gregg, right wing, was the only skater to perform in all of the 48 games in which the Yellow Jackets participated during the International League's regular campaign . . . Gregg is both rangy and rugged . . . He does his share of the attacking, as his big lead in the Jackets' individual scoring race proves, but his real specialty is back-checking . . . Because of his exceptional speed he at times is able to back-check the opposing left wing, right wing and center all in one rush . . . Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local club, says he is convinced at Gregg this season has done more skating and covered more mileage in the performance of his duties than any other player in the league . . . And ain't 'at somethin'?

Tory Gregg

When Jack (Kid) Berg, the English whirlwind, gets his crack at Tony Canzoneri's world lightweight championship soon, his own junior-welterweight title automatically will be at stake, since both will be under the poundage of that division . . . Thus it will be a case of two titles or none for both men, the winner leaving the ring a double champion.

The world's most trying sporting test, the Grand National Steeplechase, of four miles, 856 yards, carded at Aintree, England, Friday, again is attracting interest commensurate with its importance, much of which is due to the world-wide circulation of lottery tickets involving millions of dollars on the outcome of the event . . . Eleven American-owned horses are among the 48 entries still remaining in the running, and it has been five years since a United States entry last won the feature . . . That was Jack Horner, owned by A. C. Schwartz . . . Stephen Sanford's Sergeant Murphy was another American winner, back in 1923 . . . However, at least one American horse has finished in the money every year since 1926 . . . R. K. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, has two entries this year, Glangesia, a contender last year, and Alike, which recently won a handicap test of four miles at Hurst Park . . . Easter Hero, a veteran of the Grand National, is one of the favorites of the stellar field, being rated ahead of Gregalach, the 1929 winner, and Shaun Golin, the 1930 champion, both of which are back for further honors.

An important change in the conditions for the race this year is that only horses 6 years old and upward are eligible, whereas in the past 5-year-olds were permitted to compete . . . The minimum rider impost is 147 pounds against the former 140 pounds . . . The original entry list numbered 81, the smallest field since 1927, and it is expected that only about 30 will start, against the field of 66 that went to the post two years ago . . . So severe is the test that in 1928 only two horses finished of a field of 42, and the runner-up, Billy Barton, fell and was remounted . . . Tipperary Tim, the winner, like Gregalach the following year, was a 100-to-1 shot in the betting . . . The horses run twice around the course studded with high fences, water jumps, ploughed ground and tall hedges . . . Some of these are so difficult that horses and riders are spilled in great profusion and in heaps . . . Belcher's Brook, for instance, is a hedge five feet high and three and one-half feet wide, with a brook five and one-half feet wide on the far side and a drop of several feet from the takeoff to the landing side.

There was a time when George Chip, former middleweight champion, almost wrecked Uncle Sam's Navy, knocking out Sailor Petrosky and Sailor Grande . . . Chip was a product of Jimmy Dime's great stable of hard hitters, of New Castle, Pa. . . . Dime always liked sweet sockers and in his heyday probably led all managers in turning them out . . . In addition to George Chip, he had Joe Chip, Tony Ross and Tom McMahon, not to mention many others . . . Max Elling, the local amateur boxer, who is getting ready to turn professional, may prove another King Levinsky of the ring . . . The Kingfish, you know, started out in life as a fish scaler . . . Max's father, Philip, runs a fish store on the Hill, but Max is an electrician, having learned the trade at the Allegheny Vocational School . . . He also attended night classes at Carnegie Tech to study the ramifications of radio, and for a long time was a newsie at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street.

The full name of Al Fay, the Charleroi heavyweight boxer, is Albert Fay, Jr. . . . Red Dutton, defense star of the New York Americans hockey team, who has been named the most valuable player in the circuit this season, is rated one of the hardest-playing and roughest men in the game, yet, with all of his energy, he does not spend much time in the penalty box.

From Ken Shroyer, athletic director of New River State College, of Montgomery, W. Va., comes the word that the West Virginia State Legislature recently has changed the name of the institution from New River State College and sports writers are requested to note the fact in connection with the screeds they may be called upon to indite . . . As a matter of fact, the former normal school has been, in effect, a college since 1927, with a standard four-year liberal arts course leading to an A. B. degree.—HARRY KECK.

A. M. A. FINALS TONIGHT

The Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. Walker Involved In Marriage Tangle

TRENTON, N. J., March 25.—(AP.)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, was wondering today what to do about too much matrimony.

He was married Monday night to Clara Hellherm, 20, amateur artist and etcher; he learned last night his first wife's divorce wasn't yet absolute.

The divorce was recommended on December 19 and by all the things Mickey heard should have become absolute 90 days later, but the court failed to sign the preliminary decree until February 14—putting off the actual divorce until May 14.

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—James N. Crofton, president and general manager of the Agua Caliente (Mexico) race track, is being sued for divorce on charges of cruelty by Mrs. Vera F. Crofton.

TOURNEY ON TAP

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 25.—The fifth annual tri-state amateur independent basketball tournament in three classes will be held at the Washington Armory on April 1, 2 and 3.

DATTO TO BOX RODGERS AGAIN ON MONDAY

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Believe it or not, but Jackie Rodgers and Johnny Datto will box their third shindy at Motor Square Garden next Monday night.

The match was closed last night when the Garden was informed that Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn., had been injured in a bout with Eddie Anderson at Des Moines, Ia., last Monday night and would be unable to go through with the bout here. Datto meanwhile was training in Cleveland to box an opponent whom Apples Meyers was trying to dig up for him at the Moose Temple Friday night, while expecting to box Rodgers again late next month.

THIRD MEETING

Datto defeated Rodgers at the Garden last New Year's night, flooring Jackie four times in the second round, but failing to stop him, and just escaped a knockout himself in the second round of a return go on February 9, but rallied to win the decision. They were rematched for Monday night of last week, but Rodgers suffered an injured rib in training and had to cancel, with the result that Smith stepped into the breach and upset the dope by beating Datto, who pleaded a bad right hand as an explanation of his poor showing.

At a meeting before the Boxing Commission this morning, Promoter Meyers, of the Moose, agreed to release Datto so he can box at the Garden, which means that there will be no show in the downtown arena Friday night, nor next Friday, which is Good Friday. Meyers will resume operations on April 3, with a main bout between Eddie Brannon and Ray Kiser, and he has signed Pal Silvers and Joe Walters for a return bout, April 10.

READY TO BOX MADGE

Young Rudy will box Larry Madge in the semi-final at the Garden Monday night. Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, and Frankie Goosby, of Los Angeles, a protege of Baby Joe Gans, will appear in the second bout, and Joey Bazzone and Jackie Griffiths are in the opener.

BOXING BILL REPORTED

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 25.—(AP.)—The McClure (Senate) bill, providing for return of admission fees when the principal bout of a boxing show ends in a foul, was reported for passage in the House of Representatives today soon after it convened at 10 a. m.

FIRST SACKER SIGNED

Franklin Geere, southpaw first baseman who played with the Canton Club in the Central League last year, has been signed by the Dormont semi-pro club. Geere will replace Dick Goldsberg, who is trying for a job with Chattanooga in the Southern Association.

Between Rounds

Madison Square Garden denies it paid Promoter Apples Meyers of the Moose Temple $500 to release Benny Touchstone from a contract so he could box Joe Reckless in the last Ford arena last Monday night. According to the Garden officials Touchstone paid for the release.

The Pitt varsity boxers have concluded their season schedule, but will continue to work out until April 1 to get a line on material for next season.

Johnny Winder, Herron Hill light heavyweight, who has been campaigning in Florida, plans to return home within the next week, while a broken thumb is mending. He now fights at around 170 pounds and would like to get back into the thick of the local battling.

Sammy Hackett, of Toronto, has been signed to box Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, in the 10-round main bout at Erie Friday night. Mickey Donato meets Matty Matheson, Joe Bolf engages Mickey Barzonie and Jimmy Hogan battles Freddie Lutz in the preliminaries.

If you see Phil Goldstein, local light-weight boxer, approaching—duck! He's now an insurance salesman.

Johnny Risko boxes Johnny Shaar at St. Louis tonight.

The last three boxers to die as a result of injuries suffered in bouts in Western Pennsylvania rings have been Negroes, which may be merely a coincidence. They were Billy Hatch, fatally hurt at Hickey's Sport Bob Graham, a victim at the Moose Temple recently, and Sammy Harris, of Akron, who died following a bout with Mickey Duris at Johnstown last Monday night.

Two good punchers will meet when Buddy McArthur and Sunny Jim McVey clash in the main bout at McKeesport tomorrow night. They are light-heavyweights.

BRAME FACES ANGELS TODAY

Glenn Spencer in the fourth round. Andy was put on the spot in a mean way, the Angels had three runners on the sacks, none was out and the locals were leading by a big margin. But the Nokomis coal miner went to work like a star and the door was shut in the faces of the Cherubs after one more run trickled in.

SPENCER LOSES CONTROL

Glenn Spencer couldn't do a thing with the ball as he pitched in the rain. The Binghamton youth lost control of the wet sphere, five Angels walking in the first round. Shortstop Dittmar rocked Glenn with a cleanup double that helped the locals in their big round.

Many of the Buccaneer regulars left the scene after the first inning and the Yans carried on like real diamond stars. But the kids had to have a big lift from one Gus Suhr, who broke up the ball game in the eighth with a three-run homer over the leftfield fence. Gus' second homer in two days was a resounding smash.

Pete McClanahan and Forrest Jensen were batting stars of the game. Lloyd Waner was in action long enough to go to the plate twice and all he did was to nick the enemy pitcher for a triple and a double.

JEAN BOROTRA LIKELY TO TOP BELL TODAY

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP.)—With tennis history repeating itself and the United States losing the doubles, the Star Spangled forces tonight face France in the final two singles matches of the "Winter Davis Cup" competition expected to lose.

The score stood 2-to-1 in France's favor today with Jean Borotra, Davis Cup veteran and leader of the French team, favored to defeat Berkeley Bell in one of the singles matches and clinch the victory for the tri-color.

Frank X. Shields, on the basis of the form he showed Monday night in handing Borotra a surprising straight-set defeat, was favored to take Christian Boussus in the other singles, but to no apparent purpose, other than to make the final score 2 to 3.

Borotra and Boussus defeated George Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn in the doubles match of the international competition last night to give France what may prove to be the margin of victory. The Americans' defeat was achieved in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4, with the happy-go-lucky Borotra playing the major part.

A similar situation prevailed last summer at the end of the second day's play for the historic Davis Cup with America trailing one match to two.

Injunction Target In Dempsey Suit

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP.)—A five-year-old injunction today was resurrected from the musty court files by plaintiff attorneys who are attempting to win a jury verdict of $500,000 damages against Jack Dempsey for not risking his heavyweight boxing championship against Harry Wills, the Negro challenger, in 1926.

The injunction, granted by a Superior Court judge in Indianapolis in 1926 to restrain Dempsey from giving any challenger but Wills a chance at his title, was admitted to the testimony of the present damage suit by Circuit Judge H. Sterling Pomeroy yesterday over vigorous objections of Dempsey's counsel.

Dempsey's attorneys, however, hoped to keep the old injunction, which failed to stop his championship match with Gene Tunney, from getting into the testimony. Judge Pomeroy advised them that if they could prove the Appelate Court at Indianapolis reversed the Superior Court's injunction he would not permit the injunction in the records of his court.

Greensburg Five Wins County Title

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 25.—The New Kensington Y. M. C. A. passers were dethroned as county independent basketball champions here last night when they were defeated by the Modern Tea Roomers, of Greensburg, in the final game of the annual tournament, 34-27.

The Greensburgers started with a rush and held a slight advantage until the fourth quarter, when the locals pulled away to a safe lead.

MORGAN, WALKER WIN

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(INS.)—Displaying a world of class, Tod Morgan, former junior-lightweight champion today has established himself as a serious contender for the lightweight title by virtue of his showing against Goldie Hess, Ocean Park, Cal., battler.

Morgan won 7 of the 10 rounds. Paulie Walker and Andy Di Vodi, New York welterweights, staged a wild contest, with the former grabbing the decision. It was a fight-to-the-finish, foul-ending bout last week, which Di Vodi won.

BOBBY JONES' Lessons in Golf

By Robt. Jones.

American Open, British Open, American Amateur and British Amateur Champion.

Having arrived in California some two weeks ago to find almost unending sunshine after traveling through a mild blizzard in New Mexico, it is not difficult to be impressed with this ideal golfing country. It would be hard to find a place where the weather, both winter and summer, would be more pleasant for golf and the people more enthusiastic about the game. All who play at all play all the year through, with scarcely any abatement during any season. And they have fine courses to play on, too, real testing courses, perfectly groomed—fine training grounds for youngsters learning the game—and fine competitions to test the youthful material before it is cast into the rougher ordeal of real championships.

Bobby Jones

They have everything for golf here in California, just as they have everything for almost every kind of sport—climate, playing grounds, interest and time, or daylight. With all this, it seems a little bit strange that California has not produced any one really outstanding golfer. She has turned out great tennis players, great track athletes, great boxers and great football teams. But in the sport in which he apparently is best equipped, or at least in the sport in which she apparently ment most decisively excels that of any other section, she has yet to find a man who can stand above the rest of the country.

STEADY PLAY DULLS EDGE

Of course, there are a great many good golfers out here on the coast—probably the general run of players may be a bit better than it is in some of the sections east of the Rockies. I am just wondering if the fact that the people out here play golf 12 months in the year has anything to do with their failure to find an outstanding player—in a word, a national champion. A man may win all the state and sectional tournaments he likes; and yet, if he is not able to win the National Open in June or July, or the National Amateur in August or September, he will have to be content with a seat somewhat removed from the front row.

It seems to me that there is every likelihood that year 'round play may diffuse the golfer's brilliance to such an extent that he may not be able to focus a sufficiently strong beam upon the important golfing season, which lasts only four months.

RESERVE STRENGTH NEEDED

Certainly this would seem to be borne out when one examines the tournament records of the various professionals over the last few years. I remember several years ago there was a long stretch of tournaments over the winter circuit which was entirely monopolized by Hagen and Kirkwood, yet, when the summer and the major championships came on, neither one was able to make much of a showing. Then, a few years later, Johnny Farrell, after winning eight or nine tournaments virtually in succession, failed emphatically in the national open, and, a year or two after that, Johnny, having learned his lesson, withdrew himself from competition for quite a long period before the national open, in order to get ready for this event, and, that year, at Olympia Fields, he won it. To continue a bit farther, we all remember the path of glory which Horton Smith traveled during the winter months a couple of years ago, and he eventually wound up the year with nothing of real importance to his credit except a considerably fattened bank account.

TOO MUCH COMPETITION

I believe sincerely that continual play, and especially almost uninterrupted competition, are bad when one hopes to withstand the strain imposed by competition of the highest importance. I think that the fellow who has been playing enough casual golf to retain some familiarity with his clubs, and who has had a couple of weeks of practice before the tournament, is in far better shape to maintain a fast pace through any tournament, and to put on the winning spurt at the end, than the man who may be a little bit fed up with the game and tired of the necessity for watching his strokes.

SOUTH SIDERS ROLL 960 IN DOUBLES

AMBRIDGE, Pa., March 25.—Pittsburgh duckpin teams will feature today's rolling in the third annual Pennsylvania and Ohio tournament being conducted on the Beaver Valley alleys here. Beside the bowlers from Pittsburgh, Franklin, Sharpsburg, Rochester and Beaver pinmen will take to the alleys.

Among the Pittsburgh teams listed for pin-scattering today are the H. K. Neilsons, of Mt. Washington; the Arcade Square, of the South Side; the Hill Toppers, of Allentown; Arcade, of McKeesport, and the North Side No. 1 and No. 2 teams.

A set of doubles teams from the St. Joseph's Lyceum rolled high scores yesterday. Kopper and Trainor had a score of 960 and Katz and Miller totaled 932. C. Wilson, hailing from Natrona, rolled the high single game, 230. In the five-men event, the Lears, also of Natrona, took the lead with a mark of 2,282. Yesterday's scores:

BOSTON BEATS CANADIENS

BOSTON, March 25.—(AP.)—The Boston Bruins overcame a three-goal lead with a furious third-period rally and then outbattled Les Canadiens last night to win the first game of the National Hockey League championship playoff series by a 5-to-4 score.

RANGERS TRIP MAROONS

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers overwhelmed the Montreal Maroons, 5 to 1, last night in the first game of their Stanley Cup playoff between the third-place teams of the National Hockey League. The Rangers carry the four-goal advantage into the second game of their series, which is decided on total goals. The winner is to meet the victor in a similar series between the second-place teams, Chicago and Toronto.

LEAFS-HAWKS TIE

TORONTO, Ontario, March 25.—(AP.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs and the Chicago Blackhawks battled to a 2-all tie in the first game of their home-and-home series of the National League playoffs last night. The second game will be played in Chicago tomorrow night.

DETROIT VICTOR

DETROIT, March 25.—Only about 4,000 customers saw the Detroit Olympics outscore, outbump and outfight the London Tecumsehs, 3-1, in the final hockey game of the season at Olympia last night.

City Junior High Water Meets Carded

The city junior high school swimming program will open tomorrow with Section I staging its championships at Baxter Junior High pool. Section II will stage its program the same day at the Connelley Trade School, and Section III will stage its meet at Fifth Avenue High.

The championships to be decided include the medley swim, 50-yard free-style event, 50-yard breast-stroke, 50-yard back-stroke, diving events and a 200-yard medley relay.

Edwards is Elected Tech Water Leader

William G. Edwards has been elected captain of Carnegie Tech's varsity swimming team for the 1932 season. Edwards was chosen unanimously at a meeting held in the home of Coach Allen E. Risedorph.

Oster, Heffner, Susky Victors In Chicago

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP.)—Willie Oster, Boston; Pete Susky, Scranton, Pa., and Chuck Heffner, Denver, emerged as leading challengers for the middleweight title last night by victories in three elimination matches sanctioned by the National Boxing Association.

Oster knocked out Tait Littman, Milwaukee, in the second round; Susky outslugged Haakon Hansen, Norwegian battler, in 10 rounds, and Heffner sprang an upset by outpointing My Sullivan, St. Paul, in 10 rounds.

JACKETS BOW IN OPENER

knotted the count for Cleveland when he batted Cliff McBride's rebound over the prostrate form of Goalie Albie Cox. Albie made a brilliant save on McBride's shot, but in so doing he lost his balance and fell to the ice. Ordinarily he would have cleared without trouble, but this time he left the rubber disc right in front of the net and Gray had only to lift his stick to dent the cords.

The winning goal, too, was not without taint. After eight minutes and 25 seconds of play in the final stanza, Doug Young, Cleveland defense stalwart, carried the puck into Pittsburgh territory. Young dropped the disc near the mouth of the Jackets' goal and skated on in to obstruct Cox's view of the puck and of the oncoming Cleveland players.

While Albie batted to break away from the Indian backfielder, Ken Doraty skated up and rifled the rubber into the unguarded cage. The rules say that obstructing the view of the goalie is an illegal act, and the Jackets protested vigorously. Their protest went unheeded, however, and the victory tally was permitted to stand.

Because of the extremely close checking by the forwards, real scoring chances were few and far between. Proudlock had an excellent opportunity to knot the count in the closing minutes of the fight after he had carried a pass from Reise right up to the goal mouth, but his hot shot aimed at an unguarded corner of the net missed fire by inches.

SMITH HEROIC

Smith and Reise, former National League backfielders, performed fearlessly and heroically in making the Pittsburgh defense one of merit while Fraser, one of the best defense men in the league, looked on from the Jackets' box. The Indians repeatedly battered Smith over the head with their sticks in attempting to make the veteran break ground, but Roger refused to budge an inch. Cox played a brilliant game in the nets despite an injury sustained in the second period when he stopped a Cleveland stick with the bridge of his nose. In attempting a shot, Gray smacked Cox right between the eyes, but he returned to action after having the resulting cut patched up.

Each team is to meet the other in home-and-home games before the title series is concluded, and last night's game indicated that a Pittsburgh victory over Cleveland at Duquesne Garden is not unlikely. A Jacket win over Buffalo tomorrow is almost imperative if the Schooley stalwarts are to remain in the running, for the winner in the playoffs is not likely to lose more than two games.

The contest here attracted an overflow crowd, and the early ticket sale indicated that the crowds at Pittsburgh's home games will be of capacity proportions. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—1.		Cleveland—2.
Cox	G	Woods
Smith	D	McFarlane
Reise	D	Young
Rodden	C	Gray
Gregg	W	Dunning
McGuire	W	Brophy

Spares—Pittsburgh, Berlett, McCurry, Ouelette, Fields, Proudlock, Halliday, White, McIntyre; Cleveland, Frew, Doraty, Clark, McBride, Williams, Briden.

Referees—Smith and Lafamme.

First period—No scoring. Penalty—Smith, tripping.

Second period—Scoring: Reise, :26; Gray (McBride), 13:43. Penalties — Brophy, charging; Smith, elbowing; Young, tripping.

Third period—Scoring: Young (Doraty), 8:25. Penalty—Williams, tripping.

OFFERS CARIDEO $10,000

NEW YORK, March 25.—Frank Carideo can earn $10,000 during the next year if he cares to follow the example of his former teammate, Joe Savoldi, and become a professional wrestler. Renato Garabaldi, Italian heavyweight, has announced he has offered Carideo $10,000 for a one-year contract and hoped to make the 175-pound football star world's heavyweight wrestling champion.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Fluctuate — Local Market Narrow

MARKET GOES HIGHER, DIPS, ADVANCES

Shares Turn Over Feebly In Small Volume—Mixed News Causes Fluctuations

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—The stock market backed and filled uncertainly in a welter of conflicting forces today.

Freight car loadings and electric power production, as reported for the latest weeks, made better showings than normal seasonal trends had indicated.

The weekly steel trade reviews, however, reported the first definite halt in the uptrend in steel mill activity since the first of the year. Also, Westinghouse directors reduced the annual dividend rate from $5 to $4 after rumors had been circulated in connection with the recent drive against shorts that the $5 rate would be maintained.

Shares were again turned over feebly in small volume. The list worked higher during the morning, soon off around midday and turned upward again in early afternoon under the leadership of American Can and Radio.

The steel trade reviews reported that the recent increase in prices for heavy lines had as yet failed to prompt any important buying. Iron Age placed ingot output at 57 per cent of capacity, unchanged from the previous week. From the mixed trends in the industry, it is difficult to interpret the apparent lull, although it may reflect only a seasonal change in demand, rather than a falling off. A survey just completed for the private information of a large investment trust says that leaders in the industry expect operations to expand further in April, and at least hold their own in May, which would be distinctly encouraging, in view of the usual letdown as spring advances.

Electric power production as reported for the week ended March 21, showed a smaller decline than was expected for this period and was only 2 1-3 per cent under the like week of last year, the best comparison in recent months. But this appears primarily to reflect an increase in irrigation pumping on the Pacific coast. The gain of nearly 11,000 cars in freight car loads for the week ended March 14 compensates for the decline of the previous week, but the significance is difficult to determine, since the change in each case was largely in the movement of coal, while miscellaneous freight and less than carload lots, better barometers of general business, have shown unimportant changes.

Call money was again firmer, presumably reflecting government withdrawals from banks, outside offerings under the official rate of 1½ per cent virtually disappeared.

Fireproofing Omits Common Dividend

Directors of the National Fireproofing Company have deferred action on the dividend on the common stock, due at this time, but declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the preferred, payable April 15 to record March 31.

The announcement on the omission of the common dividend said it was the result of the acquisition of the Birmingham (Ala.) plant, purchased out of earnings, and a desire to conserve the cash resources of the company. It was said further that the Birmingham plant is now running at full capacity and has orders booked sufficient to operate the plant for the balance of the year.

Grace Not After Amn. Rolling Mill

NEW YORK, March 25.—Reports that new interests were attempting to wrest control of American Rolling Mill Company from the present management were without confirmation. One report was Bethlehem Steel Corporation was seeking to acquire control, but Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, denied the report. The management of American Rolling Mill at Middletown, O., said it knew of no effort by any interest to obtain proxies for the annual meeting in May.

Bankshares Reports Increase for 1930

The annual report of Pennsylvania Bankshares and Securities Corporation showed a moderate increase in earnings over 1929. Net profit for the year after deducting all expenses was $187,140 compared with $181,284 in 1929. After deducting dividends on $3,000,000 of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock $37,138 was earned on the common stock, all of which is owned by Pennsylvania Industries, Inc. This compares with net for the common of $31,281 in 1929.

P. R. R. Carloadings Increase for Week

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—Total loaded cars handled by the Pennsylvania Railroad System for the week ended March 21 were 117,673, against 115,428 last week and 138,077 in the like week of 1930. From January 1 carloadings totaled 1,352,637, against 1,646,880 in the same 1930 period.

Carloadings for week ended March 21 were exceeded in only one week this year, that being the week ended March 7 with 119,417 cars.

Business Folk Say Prosperity Is Approaching

—By B. C. FORBES—

IN THE EAST, the Pacific Coast and certain other sections, the main talk is of business. In the Middle West it is of business and agriculture.

Mr. Forbes

In the South, I have often noticed, politics and religion predominate. This is true even now that the South is in process of being industrialized.

"WHAT IS your church?" is one of the first questions asked. Your reception is governed more or less by the answer. Southern newspapers devote more space than other newspapers to church topics.

The principal paper available at the resorts I've been visiting leads off every day on its editorial page with a Biblical quotation. This is followed by a text which is changed daily. Then follows a brief prayer. And a goodly part of the news and editorials deal with religious matters.

Although my hotel caters solely to pleasure seekers, signs are posted everywhere on Sunday, "No card playing in public rooms on Sunday."

Until a few years ago caddies were not permitted on the golf courses on Sunday, but now they can serve after noon—they are theoretically supposed to attend divine services in the morning.

IN MOST parts of America business is king. Business leaders are the big guns. Business is the prevailing topic.

Not so here in the South. Far more attention is devoted to politics and politicians. The proceedings of state legislatures are lengthily reported. Speeches or statements by politicians are given generous newspaper space.

The 1932 campaign and probable candidates constitute even thus early a burning subject. Apparently the South does not want Al Smith to run again. His prohibition views do not find general favor in the supposedly dry South.

FROM ALL I gather it is no trick to obtain liquor throughout the South. Only, much of it is home made. Corn whisky is the favorite tipple. A little of it goes a long way.

Despite the part religion plays, and despite the straitlacedness of the law, it is amazing how many gambling houses are run wide open. It is incomprehensible that the police don't know of their existence. Everybody does. Entrance apparently is unrestricted. It is enough that you are a visiting guest.

MAYBE IT is because they are in holiday mood, but the fact is that since leaving New York I've met hardly one business man who does not declare confidently that depression is on the wane and prosperity on the way.

I've been talking with steel men from Pittsburgh, builders from the Atlantic seaboard, bankers from various cities, leather men from Pennsylvania, merchants from the Middle West, engineers and utility men from New York, others from different places and in different walks of life. Practically all cite experiences to indicate that things are on the mend.

A few hours ago two men got a-talking. Said one:

"When you get home, send men to paint my house."

I talked with the painter, and he told me that the whole attitude of the people has changed for the better.

ANOTHER STRAW. A doctor remarked to me:

"I'm not an authority, but my hunch is that all the fellows who are sure there is to be another tumble in the stock market will get left. Some of my friends are waiting to buy on the next big break. Others are still short of the market. See if they don't get fooled."

PRESIDENT GEORGE MUHLFELD, of Stone & Webster, construction engineers and public utility operators, who has not been flamboyantly optimistic, to say the least, for 18 months and more, tells me that their business is showing signs of improvement. An encouraging number of ambitious building projects are ready to be launched.

Also the demand for electric energy is more promising. Naturally he is among those who feel that the worst is behind us. Incidentally, Stone & Webster shares have recently advanced more than 25 per cent.

IT IS SO refreshing to live for a brief spell in an atmosphere of cheerfulness that one is reluctant to return to the financial metropolis, where bears still abound. Let's hope conditions will shortly rout them.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Curb Market was dull and on the whole fairly steady today. Professional activity accomplished little in either direction, effecting fractional changes in all groups.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

FLY
Where the Flying Is Done

With flying schools located at Pittsburgh-Butler and Curtiss-Bettis Airports—the very heart of the nation's airways—Penn School of Aviation offers you exceptional opportunity to become an efficient Private, Limited Commercial or Transport Pilot. Backed by a great aviation corporation with ample capital, Penn School also affords unlimited opportunity for specialized study and advancement.

Reputation High—Costs Low

Nearly 100 Penn School students have passed the U. S. Department of Commerce pilots' tests, without a single failure to date! It has nearly 400,000 miles of student flying to its credit. It has a staff of successful pilots for instructors and uses only the most modern government approved flying equipment. Yet its charges to students are amazingly low. You can pay as you learn if you wish. If you want to learn to fly, call, phone or write now, while new classes are forming. Or if you want to study any other branch of aviation, Penn School can give you specialized training. Get complete details.

Federal and State Approved.

Mary Lou Relates Strange Story to Actress

CHAPTER XXXV.

Delight was not fully dressed. She was wearing a negligee which had once been quite lovely but which now was soiled and torn. She had high-heeled mules on bare feet and her hennaed thick hair was in early-morning, just-out-of-bed disorder. Her blue eyes were heavy with weariness and her face haggard. But her fine skin was radiant and she smiled at the younger girl with spontaneous friendliness. She liked the look of her somehow—of whom did she remind her?

"I—I feel I've gotten you up," said Mary Lou.

She looked with a sort of inner despair at the other woman. Somehow she hadn't expected her to look like this—a little unkempt, a little uncared for, hard, as Larry had said, and appearing even more than her age. Her only beauties were the quantity and quality of the touched-up hair and carefully tended skin and the small, rounded figure.

Surprises Actress

They sat down in the uninteresting, rather dark sitting room. A pot of coffee stood on the table on a tray.

"I was just getting an eye-opener," explained Mary Lou's hostess. "Will you join me?"

"No, thank you—"

"Cigaret?"

"No—"

"What did you wish to see me about, Miss Thurston?" she asked.

Mary Lou leaned forward. The other woman looked at her, observing the well cut suit, the small sable scarf, the sheer stockings, the shoes; observing too the great sapphire on Mary Lou's slender hand. The girl was evidently very well off. She was simply but expensively dressed and she was very pretty. Under the close fitting, almost brimless hat the red-gold hair rioted in small, entrancing curls.

What on earth did the child want? Perhaps, she wanted to go on the stage, had heard of Diana, had money, wished to buy herself a job? If that were the case, mused the older woman, she'd discourage it, money or no money. She was a fair judge of character—she had to be—and if she knew anything about girls, this small, eager, honest looking little person was too pretty and too sensitive to last long in that dog-eat-dog profession.

Mary Lou took the plunge.

"Miss Harford—" she said.

"What!" Delight set down her coffee cup with a miniature crash. She was startled, curious, but not particularly annoyed.

"Now where did you learn that, I wonder?" she mused aloud. She had quite forgotten telling Larry Mitchell. Was it possible that this youngster was a relative or something? Delight rather hoped so. She liked her.

"Larry told me," said Mary Lou.

"Larry? Oh, the red-headed press-agent lad—nice kid. But why should he tell you?" asked Delight.

"It's a long story," said Mary Lou, rather desperately. "I'll have to tell you from the beginning. It's about—Travers Lorrimer."

Delight Harford looked down at the seal ring she wore.

"Travers? But Lorry is dead," she said slowly.

Lorry? Mary Lou's heart swelled, rose, it seemed, almost to her throat.

"No," she managed to say quietly, "no, he's not dead. Please, Miss Harford, may I tell you in my own way?"

"Yes. Wait a minute. Not dead? Not dead. My God, if I had known that!" said Delight Harford. She was ashen white with shock.

Mary Lou waited, sickened. After a minute Delight said:

"Go on. What about him? I won't interrupt."

Mary Lou Explains

"I'll have to start with me," said Mary Lou, youthfully. She told Delight something of her background, her circumstances, the removal of her aunt and uncle to the Orient, of her necessity for finding employment. Presently she came to Lorry and the advertisement in the paper and her journey out to Westmill to the place called Westwood House, of her disappointment in learning the mistake, the omission in the advertisement and of her first encounter with Lorrimer.

"You see, he thought I was—you. He—he wouldn't let me go. And he was so ill, so distressed, that his mother and doctor decided I must stay—and play a part—your part."

Delight looked at her blankly. She was past astonishment. Suddenly, with an odd murmur, she rose and left the room. Mary Lou sat quite still waiting. Oh, he couldn't care for this woman; he couldn't! But he had. And perhaps memory and loyalty would hold . . .

Delight came back. She had with her a small snapshot. It had been taken on that last leave of Lorrimer's. It showed them standing together in some great park or other, showed the laughing boy Mary Lou had never known, showed a small, slender girl.

Mary Lou held it in her hands. Here was proof, if proof were needed.

"You do look," said Delight Harford, very miserably, "much as I used to look . . . so long ago."

Mary Lou laid the picture down on the table and went on.

"So I stayed," she said, "and because he thought I was you, because I brought back to him, playing your part, a new interest in life he—he changed. He's well now," said Mary Lou, with a certain pride. "He's splendid!"

Speaks of Marriage

She described, briefly, Lorrimer's mental, nervous and physical condition when she had first seen him, the gradual change, the altering interests, the return to normal living, normal thinking.

"You did a good job," said Delight Harford. "And what now?"

"Just this. You've come back. Larry knows. Larry is one of the few people who know the truth of this—Larry and the doctor. Mrs. Lorrimer's other friends have accepted me—as you, as a girl Lorrimer knew in war time. But you have come back now."

"Why didn't Mitchell say anything to me?" interrupted Delight, a little harshly.

"He had to be sure. The circumstances were so unusual. He didn't dare tell you until he had told me and Mrs. Lorrimer."

"I don't notice that she rushed over here to see me," remarked Delight.

"No," said Mary Lou, with candor, "she didn't. You see, Miss Harford, ever since he—Mr. Lorrimer," she stumbled a little, "came home he has had one fixed idea. You. Your marriage to him on the day of his leave."

"Our marriage? He told his people?" asked Delight. Her eyes were on the seal ring.

"Yes. Mrs. Lorrimer tried to have it traced, she had agents in London looking for the record of it. They didn't find it. So she never believed it. She doesn't believe it now. And when she learned you had come back—"

"She believed in letting sleeping wives lie, eh?" asked Delight with acidity. She laughed, aloud. The whole business was too fantastic, too like a dream. Lorry? Why she didn't even remember him any more! She had the snapshot, faded, blurred, which she only looked at perhaps once or twice a year. Now and then, when people spoke of war time, when she had had a good supper and a couple of highballs, she might permit herself to become sentimental about a boy she had once loved and who had died long ago, and bravely.

Defends Mrs. Lorrimer

"He'll have to know the truth," said Mary Lou, "we can't keep it from him, no one can, no one has the right."

"Mrs. Lorrimer had planned to?" inquired Delight shrewdly.

Mary Lou flushed.

"It isn't fair to judge her," she broke out passionately. "She's the most marvelous woman. She has sacrificed 10 years of her life to him—if you could have seen him as he was, you'd know! She thinks of nothing but his happiness, his welfare. She—didn't believe in this marriage. She had no proof. Ten years had—changed him—must have changed you. She tried to trace you. She thought perhaps you had died."

"I did, in a manner of speaking," Delight answered, low. "I left London, knocked about, went on the stage. My people died or were scattered. And of course I heard that Lorry had been shot down. That's that, I thought. I was pretty cut up, of course. We'd been terribly in love, nothing but a couple of kids. But I had to get out and earn a living somehow, so I did. How," she asked curiously, "did you go through with it—taking my part, I mean?"

"It wasn't very hard. I've lived abroad. I listened more than I spoke. He made allowances for the changes the years would bring in—in opinions; made allowance, too, for my forgetting things he remembered," Mary Lou replied.

"I see. How stupid men are!" Delight looked at her and laughed. "You—you're not more than 20, if you're that. About the age I was. He must have thought time had stood still with me. Well, it didn't," she said.

Mary Lou was silent.

Delight had been thinking, hard and fast. So this girl was hired to play a part. The furs and the jewels and the clothes, all a part of her salary! Money. Lots of it. And Delight was, in her own words, broke to the wide. The revue did not look as if it would last a month. The one hit in it, the leading woman, had had an offer to go to Hollywood, would probably go. Then what would happen? There wouldn't be a thing for "Diana Hackett" in New York. The stock market had just suffered a panic, there would be few new productions. She'd get her fare to England back and nothing else—and then what?

SOME ODD FACTS

The finest opal in the world has been unearthed at Lightning Ridge, New South Wales. It is six and a half inches by two inches, weighs 790 carats and combines every color of the rainbow in shimmering perfection.

In a census of birds taken by an Oxford undergraduate those of Kensington Gardens, London, totaled to 3,980, including 2,603 sparrows, 411 starlings, 289 black-headed seagulls, 37 titmice and 26 moorhens.

A collection of clocks, numbering 222 in all, and claimed as the finest collection in the world, was recently sold in London for $150,000.

The first famous singer to broadcast was Caruso, the Italian tenor, who sang from the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in 1909.

At least two-fifth of England's diet consists of bread.

The largest eggs ever seen were laid by a bird now extinct.

While most people are proud to know perhaps one language in addition to their mother tongue, Sir George Grierson, of the Indian Civil Service, is master of 179 languages and 554 dialects.

Measuring six feet in width and 10 feet from front to back, a house at Conway, Carnarvonshire, is claimed as the smallest in the country.

A Russian scientist claims that by using certain chemicals he can make the inanimate bodies of men and animals transparent and invisible.

Half the population of England lives in five industrial districts, which comprise only one-tenth of the total area of land.

Gas can be driven through the underground mains at the rate of 30 miles an hour.

India has between 20 and 30 principal languages, of which the most widely used is Hindustani.

DAILY TRUE STORY—Information

Luella worked in the Belmont Paper Box Factory.

Lavina, her half-sister, felt that she was far above being a mere factory slave, for Lavina kept the Belmont Millinery Emporium.

The sign ran clear across the front of the shop, which used to be a harness shop that was profitable in the days when necking was done behind old Dobbin in a buggy.

The harness shop had been owned by the grandfather of Luella and Lavina.

Their father had married twice. Lavina was by his first wife and Luella by his second.

Now the girls were quite alone except for a feeble old uncle who lived over in Springfield in the next state.

Luella's wages were paid regularly, weekly.

Lavina took in money now and then. Lavina continued to be rather snooty and consider herself socially above her half-sister because she was in business for herself, but she never turned down any financial assistance from Luella when she went broke, which was frequently.

Neither of the girls was very old and a great many persons in Belmont pitied them for their come-down in life.

When they were mere girls they had lived in the big Wentworth home on the slope above the village.

Forced to Move

But the old place had burned and their father went to live in a little cottage, being financially unable to rebuild.

They were forced to give up the cottage they had continued to rent after their father died. They fitted up a place to live in back of Lavina's millinery shop.

Lavina held her head high.

Luella went about smiling as usual, but there was wistfulness in her smile.

One rainy day—one of the rainy days when the box factory was shut down and no one had even glanced at the hats in the little shop window—Lavina saw Judge Peaslee coming up to the shop door under his immense brown umbrella.

"More trouble—here's old Judge Peaslee after us. It's probably for the last three months' rent on the cottage," Lavina said.

"Well, girls," he said, placing his umbrella in a corner where a miniature Mississippi trailed away from it.

"Not very well," snapped Lavina, ready to stall him.

"Yes, I guess your luck's changed. Your Uncle Jasper wants you to come and live with him."

"Of all things! He didn't even come to father's funeral," Lavina snapped.

"But he wrote. He explained that he was hard of hearing and didn't go about much," Luella said, hastily.

"Hard of hearing? Say," and Judge Peaslee chuckled, "I was over to Springfield to see him the other day. He ain't hard of hearing, he's stone deaf—he has to write on a slate."

"He would write on a slate, it's cheaper than paper," put in Lavina, "and if he thinks we're going to slave to keep him in his old age—no sir. There's homes for old folks."

"We might do better in Springfield. I could get work—" Luella said.

Judge Peaslee began to laugh.

"Your Uncle Jasper won't go to any poor house, girls. He lives in a great big place all marble steps and he's got so much money he doesn't know how to invest it."

"I never knew that," Lavina said.

Amazed at Estate

"You never called on him—he wouldn't have known his own brother died if Luella hadn't of wrote him."

Lavina scowled at her half sister.

"I told you not to bother to write."

"I did. Father was fond of Uncle Jasper in spite of their quarrel that kept 'em apart so many years."

Luella and Lavina Wentworth journeyed the 400 miles to Springfield and were amazed at the handsome estate their aged uncle owned.

A servant took them into the library. The old man got up and shook hands. He had already written on his slate:

"Welcome, nieces. If anything is important, you can write it on my slate. If it isn't important don't pester me about it."

Luella wrote, "Thank you." Lavina just nodded.

The girls were taken up to big adjoining rooms. For each there was an envelope containing money and a note from their wealthy uncle to the effect that this was to be their monthly allowance.

Lavina was almost happy, as nearly happy as one of her disposition could be.

Luella was truly happy and she devoted her time to the flower gardens because she loved flowers. Lavina spent her money for stylish clothes, she lolled about and read style magazines and tried to play the great lady.

Lavina took great delight in shocking Luella by saying horrible things about the old man in his presence, for there was no question but what he was absolutely deaf.

Now and then George Ranlett came over. George was about 40, a lawyer and he handled certain of old Uncle Jasper's rentals. Ranlett was that sort of a lawyer, good for making collections and doing piffling work.

Ranlett had no part in making the rich old man's will but he knew that it was made to leave everything to Luella and Lavina.

And Lavina certainly seemed stylish and flashy and rather nice to look upon. It struck Ranlett that if he could marry Lavina he wouldn't have to scrape and struggle as a third-rate lawyer.

The result was that he began to court Lavina, who was promptly placed in a sort of seventh heaven of bliss.

As for Luella, she had fallen in love with Ned Hansen, the young head gardener of the estate.

Lavina used to scold Luella for taking an interest in him, so that Luella and Ned kept their courtship rather secret.

Lawyer Ranlett married Lavina.

Old Uncle Jasper's wedding present was a check for a thousand dollars.

Lavina wrote on his slate, "Thank you," and she smiled at him, but to Luella and to Ranlett who was with her, she said, "The old skinflint could have given me fifty thousand without missing it. I think he's mean!"

"I guess I'd be happy," Luella declared, "I never saw a thousand dollars in my life and Uncle Jasper was real generous, if you ask me. He doesn't owe you anything, Lavina, and he has given you a lovely home and money all this year."

Uncle Dies

"Oh shut up, you're too dumb to get what's coming to you," Lavina answered, crossly.

"No, I won't shut up, I shall express my opinion, Lavina, and my opinion is that you have been selfish and mean and treated poor Uncle Jasper horribly. Remember, he is all shut up, never hears a sound, no human voices or birds or anything."

"You're as dumb as old Jasper," Lavina snapped.

Lavina went to live in Ranlett's modest home and await the time when Uncle Jasper should pass on and she would come into her half.

Old Uncle Jasper found Luella and Ned courting in the rose arbor and asked, with his slate, if she loved him. Luella admitted it.

"He is a nice man," Uncle Jasper wrote, "and you are a good girl," he added.

Just before Luella and Ned were to be married, Uncle Jasper died.

He left everything to Luella except two things, which went to Lavina. These two things were a $1 gold piece and a bit of information.

The information was:

"For years I had been an expert lip-reader!"

Faults of the Courts

Regardless of Outcome of Bill for New Judges, an Effort Should Be Made to Expedite Trials.

Senator Coyne's bill providing for two new judges for the Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas has been recalled from the Governor. There is uncertainty as to what will become of it.

The Sun-Telegraph has held that if Gov. Pinchot were to appoint to the proposed new places on the bench judges of the same caliber as those he named in his first administration the county could use them to good advantage. The opposition to the Coyne bill has been based largely on the supposition that the appointments would go to gang politicians.

If, as now seems probable, Allegheny County is not to have the additional judges, an effort should be made to correct the admitted faults and evils of the local courts in some other way.

The calendar is so congested in Common Pleas Court that after filing suit a litigant ordinarily must wait more than a year before the case will come to trial.

Only yesterday 100 members of the bar joined in a complaint about the delay in trying cases. The city and the Pittsburgh Railways Company were named as repeatedly securing postponements of trials, and it was said a survey has disclosed that 566 suits filed against the railways company between January 1, 1926, and November 3, 1930, and 235 filed against the city have not yet been disposed of.

The Criminal Court is also congested, and it sometimes happens that a defendant unable to furnish bail will have to stay in jail for several months before being placed on trial.

The practice of bringing in four or five judges from other counties has unsatisfactory features.

One thing that would help to eradicate the evils would be to abandon the custom of suspending the courts for two months every summer.

Thoroughly Justified

Revelations of Methods Followed in City's Purchases Warrant Investigation of Every Bureau.

Assistant District Attorney Colvin, delegated by District Attorney Park to inquire into the "irregularities" charged by Mayor Kline in dismissing Bertram L. Succop as director of supplies, has adopted a wise course in extending the investigation so as to include not only the Supplies Department but every other branch of the city government.

Extension of the scope of the inquiry is justified by the revelations coming almost daily of questionable practices in the awarding of contracts and purchase of materials.

The practices of Mayor Kline himself, in respect to these matters, call for careful scrutiny.

The Department of Public Works is under fire, and charges have been made concerning certain contracts awarded by the Department of Public Welfare.

When it is taken into consideration that the irregularities have been discovered for the most part through the superficial inquiries of newspaper reporters, the conclusion is inevitable that systematic probing by auditors and the district attorney may disclose still other matters that the public should know.

$100,000 Saved, Anyhow

New Voting Machine Contract Is Good Stroke of Business for Allegheny County.

Since the new contract for voting machines has gone to the same concern—the Poole Engineering Company—to which the first contract, declared null and void by the Supreme Court, was awarded, it may seem as if the only purpose served by the litigation was to delay the receipt of the machines.

The 1,100 machines are to be purchased this time, however, at $1,019 apiece, as against a price of $1,120 apiece in the first transaction; so the county will save more than $100,000. Not a bad stroke of business!

More important still, the machine has now been demonstrated and proved workable, and the deal has been handled, presumably, in strict accordance with the law applying to public contracts.

The voters will be glad to know that the contract calls for the delivery of the machines in time for use in the September primary election.

Offer to Lease Wharves

The City Would Be Making a Mistake in Turning Over Its Water Front to Private Interests.

Council has received a proposal to lease the Monongahela and Allegheny River wharves to a private concern for $50,000 a year for 20 years. For this consideration the company wants the Monongahela water front from Grant street to the Point and the Allegheny water front from Tenth street to the Point.

That is a large tract of land, and the rental value is probably greatly in excess of $50,000 a year.

But even if the offer were to be several times as great the city would be making a mistake in turning the water front over to private interests for 20 years.

Possibly the city is not getting as large a return from the property by permitting automobiles to be parked there at 10 cents a day as it could get by making some other disposition of the property. But it is rendering a valuable service to the citizens in providing inexpensive parking facilities.

Before 20 years are up it is to be hoped the water front will be turned into a park.

The Fishing Prospect

Commissioner Deibler Makes Some Announcements of Interest to Trout Anglers.

Pennsylvania is the best state in the Union for hunting. It is not the best for fishing, but O. M. Deibler, the new commissioner of fisheries, is apparently determined to develop the angling possibilities to the limit of his resources.

He announces that trout are now being placed in streams throughout the state, and that the distribution will continue until within a few days before the season opens on April 15.

Last year 817,002 trout from six to 10 inches long were placed in Pennsylvania's mountain streams. The promise is made that an even larger number will be released this year.

Commissioner Deibler has a pamphlet entitled "Where to Go Fishing," which will be sent free to applicants. He seems to be doing everything possible to encourage people to go fishing.

Fishing is a fine, wholesome sport. The mountain streams are delightful places in which to spend a day or two in the spring. Two hundred and sixty-five thousand Pennsylvanians took out fishing licenses last year. The greater the number of anglers the better the angling, for their license fees help to support the hatcheries.

The Art of Living

I have always said, and still maintain, that the best husbands in the world, like the best shoes and bathtubs and mince pies, are made in America.

* * *

No American woman should marry a foreigner until he has lived in this country long enough to get the American idea that a man's spouse is not his vassal.

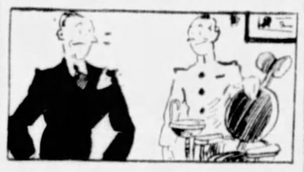
But, there ARE things about the European man which I admire and heartily envy him. Some things that the American man should learn from him.



Chief among these is his knowledge of the Fine Arts of Living. His ability to accept his fate with equanimity and make the best of it.

If he happens to be poor, he does not wear out his body and soul striving to live up to the Joneses. He does not lie awake nights, tormenting himself because he can't give sport cars to his sons and imported frocks to his daughters.

If his teeth hurt him, he doesn't hang onto them and spend years having them drilled and plugged and tortured. He has them OUT, and cheerfully accepts a dazzling, porcelain set as his portion. That's why the best false teeth are made in England, I suppose. Every other man and woman you meet, past 40, is wearing them.

He doesn't go in for red neckties, buttonhole bouquets and flapper chasing. He doesn't try to make whoopee with a gouty foot or get himself gold-dug or sued for breach of promise.

He simply settles down contentedly and gracefully into slippered pantaloon-dom, lives quietly in the little joys and comforts of everyday life, works and dreams in his garden, and works off his excess energy by writing choleric letters to the London Times.

* * *

Above all, he cherishes his peace of mind and his self-respect. NOTHING fills him with an inferiority complex. Whether he is a waiter, a shopkeeper, a farmer or a clerk, he takes PRIDE in his JOB. He aims to be the best in his line. He puts personality into his work. It isn't what he's GOT that counts—it's what he IS. It isn't what he does, but how well and skilfully he does it.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 25.—Broadway is filled with "one idea" boys. They are the lads who have written a single successful play, song or movie scenario and ride the top wave to quick oblivion. They have a brief hour; then clutch at fame again from the sidelines. But always miss.

They rarely come back. When they put over their idea and move out of a rooming house to a de luxe hotel the army of parasites are waiting. For every pioneer blazing the new trail there are a thousand gleaners. And like the Northwest Mounted, usually "get their man."

I know a half hundred young men who dazzled the town with some particular brilliancy and came to a sudden full stop. Instead of carrying on they succumbed to the flattery of the sycophants and idled precious hours along the primrose path.

Broadway loves to elevate its idols, squeeze them dry and behold their clay feet. For the newcomer to "important money," the blandishments are difficult to resist. In the first flush of celebrity they are besieged by the fair weather friskers.

Head waiters bestow their most sweeping bows. They are given the best tables in the cafes. Masters of ceremony introduce them. Light ladies flirt outrageously. Parties galore. Headaches. And then one day a check comes bouncing back.

So, a little burned out, they try again. But the race as usual is to the swift. One success means nothing on Broadway. To achieve permanency one must pile them up over a stretch of years. And stand by valiantly to hold place in the sun.

Nightly in the speakeasies are the rainbow chasers, growing shabbier each day. With a few free drinks they will tell you of the days when they were the fair-haired boys. And Broadway will listen, but it will also smile a very discreet "Yeah?"

Many writers, too, have been victims of the "one idea." They do not change their place, and they ride a character or a plot to a fall. One of the greatest disasters for a writer is to have a character make such a definite hit that the public wants nothing else.

The late and talented George Randolph Chester is an illustration. His "Get Rich Quick Wallingford" became a frankenstein. The public would not permit the versatile Chester to write anything else. Suddenly Wallingford and his side kick, Blackie Daw, lost their appeal. Chester, baffled, believed he was through.

After a long period in a shabby crypt of loneliness he went to the editor of a weekly magazine and asked an advance against going to Europe to write travel articles. Knowing the habits of writers, the editor asked him to try several fiction stories with an entirely new character before departing. "Then I'll fix your advance," he said.

Chester locked himself in a hotel room for six weeks and in that time wrote six stories about the motion picture business. They proved immediate hits—more amazingly successful than the Wallingford tales. But Chester died suddenly just as he was again swamped with magazine orders.

When Michael Arlen—"Mike" to his cronies—made his first visit to America seven years ago he was bewildered by his own literary achievement. He blushed and stammered when called upon to speak and seemed otherwise miserable. His recent trip revealed him as urbane as any of his Mayfair characters. He spoke over the radio, appeared in the news talkies and at banquets with perfect complacence.

Young swanks are sporting dull gray shirts and collars to match with black neckties and black handkerchiefs. Also solid black suits are a vogue. The only display of color is in hosiery. They are black circled with small colored stripes. Clocking is out of date. And socks almost to the knees are the berries.

"New York," says a Tulsa newspaper, "is to have a male fashion show. We hope to identify the correspondent McIntyre if they news-picture the event."

Just look for the fellow wearing the latest wrong thing!

BEGINNING OF MODERN SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

In turning our faces to the past, in the effort to determine when science, in the modern sense, began, we shall not seek for isolated discoveries or individual inventions. Nor shall we seek, especially, to lay our hand on any particular treatise or scientific work as marking the beginnings of science in the modern sense. Rather we shall seek to determine what science really is, and to note the rise of the scientific spirit as we understand it today.

There have been many famous scientists in the remote past, men of the highest mental caliber and authentic genius. The reason why they did not discover more was, in large measure, because they failed to organize a thorough scientific program and develop a genuine spirit and method. To be scientific it is not enough to theorize about things, to work out equations, or even to write descriptive works. It is necessary to go to nature herself to learn to surprise and discover her secrets, and then to correlate and organize the data thus discovered. These generalizations do not, of course, apply to an abstract or so-called pure science like mathematics, in which we have to deal with ideal relationships independently of concrete objects or material things.

Pupin has tersely defined science as the interpretation of nature's language. Unfortunately, this definition might equally well apply to art as to science. The artist, the sculptor, the man of letters studies nature, as revealed in man and the external world, and seeks to interpret it. The real distinction is that the scientist is not content to observe nature and to represent it in an interpretive way, as does the artist. The fundamental purpose of the scientist is to discover the secrets of the operations of nature. He seeks to fathom the principles governing these operations and to formulate them into laws. The scientist does not make or pass these laws; he has no control whatsoever over them in such a lucid and intelligible way that the results will be of benefit to mankind.

It is, of course, not always clear at first that some particular scientific discovery will be beneficial to the human race. The scientist continues to accumulate data and to organize it, knowing that, overnight, perhaps results of only theoretical interest may prove to be of benefit and sometimes of incalculable benefit to the world.

Observation, experiment, calculation: these constitute the essential features of the modern scientific method. Archimedes worked in the spirit of modern science when he worked out the famous problems of specific gravity determining the proportion of silver in Hero's supposedly solid gold crown. As Pupin points out in the New Reformation, the original observation which Archimedes made while floating in the swimming pool of the baths of Syracuse, his experiment of weighing the crown when submerged, and his calculation for the purpose of finding out the proportions of gold and silver in the crown, are the three separate steps in the scientific method of inquiry which he employed. Archimedes worked in the spirit of the scientist of today. He has been called the Father of Physical Science.

Wise Words

The bridge is human life. Upon a leisurely survey of it I found that it consisted of three-score-and-ten entire arches.—Addison.

Dependence is a perpetual call upon humanity, and a greater incitement to tenderness and pity than any other motive whatsoever. —Addison.

Never risk a joke, even the least offensive in its nature, and the most common, with a person who is not possessed of sense to comprehend it.—La Bruyere.

Faces or Legs?

Which Are More Important?

HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS COSTUME COMPARED WITH THE LEGS BELOW?

In this column you see pictures of two ladies as they appeared at the same fancy dress ball in London. Above you see little except the face. Below, you see only legs, the upper part of the body and face were cut off to save space, and emphasize the point.

The question is "which in your judgment is more important to the human race, the face or the legs?"

You may say "BOTH ARE IMPORTANT," and so they are.

Legs are necessary to carry us around. And the young lady that can balance herself on one toe, while she twists the other in the air, is a comforting sight.

But we say and you must admit that a fine face is more important than the most marvelous legs could possibly be.

The face reflects the SOUL. The legs reflect AGILITY.

The face reflects impressions made upon the minds of human beings during a residence of 40,000,000 years on this earth—at least Prof. Osborn, head of the American Museum of Natural History, says we have been here 40,000,000 years.

And what about the GRACE in the upper picture? It shows Mrs. Cory-Wright bowing to her hostess. Could the lady, owner of the legs in the lower picture, possibly bow as gracefully as that? If she bent over, her little skirt would lift up at the back. She couldn't look dignified.

HOW DO YOU LIKE THESE LEGS COMPARED WITH THE FACE ABOVE?

The moral of these two pictures is, young ladies, think about your faces which reveal the whole character, your chin which shows firmness and sweetness. You need both, the sweetness to GET a husband, the firmness to manage him; concentrate on your eyes that are "The mirror of your soul," your forehead that shows intelligence and the shape of your head.

Never do anything to hide the outline of the back of your head. And DON'T cover your forehead with hair, this lady makes a mistake in that regard.

Legs beyond reason are passing. The long dress, gathering germs in the streets, will not come back.

But it is time to concentrate more attention on the soft contour of the face, less on the sharp or rounded kneecap.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Fear is a fog. It comes between us and the light. It rolls up out of the depths of our being and sets us shivering and fumbling.

This wouldn't be so bad if we'd treat fear as we treat fog.

How do we treat fog? What happens if we are going over a strange and dangerous trail and a fog sets in?

Do we become panic-stricken at the touch of the clammy darkness? Do we feel that we are lost simply because we can't, for a time, see ahead?

No, of course we don't.

We say—"It's foggy so I'll have to go slow. It's a nuisance, but if I feel my way carefully I'll be safe enough. I don't HAVE to fall off a cliff just because a mist has set in."

That's what we do when the fog covers our trail. But that isn't what we do when the fog of fear falls on us. We forget that it is only a fog.

We forget that nothing really dangerous has happened as yet. And we give ourselves up to the horrors of darkness and despair.

For example, there's Jim who is afraid of losing his job.

No one has told him he will lose his job, but he knows that he hasn't been hanging up a very good record and that the boss is dissatisfied. The sensible and necessary thing for Jim to do is to pitch in and make good as fast as possible. But that isn't what Jim is doing.

Jim is spending all his time being afraid. He's thinking of what will happen if he loses his job. How's he going to pay the rent and the doctor's bill and the installment on the machine?

What will the wife say? What will her folks say? Where'll he get another job? Probably he won't get another. Probably he'll go broke and lose the machine and the baby will get sick——

On and on go Jim's thoughts in a dizzy, sick panic of fear, round and round and round, getting nowhere. He can't sleep at night because he is so afraid. He wakes up with a headache and drags through his work all day, jumping every time the boss looks at him.

Instead of saving and using his strength, he is wasting it every second.

Yet nothing has really happened. He is simply afraid of Fear. And in his terror he is bringing the thing to pass which he dreads.

There's an example of what we do when the fog of fear falls on us. We don't wait for trouble to really happen. We don't wait until Bobby really comes down with the mumps, or Ella really falls in love with the lounge lizard or some other calamity actually comes off. No, the minute fear fogs the picture, we go to pieces. We stop fighting and begin to run in circles. WE MAKE FEAR REAL AND GIVE IT POWER OVER US.

Isn't It So?

Life, to some people, is just one long, perpetual indignation meeting.

A higher standard of spending is not the same as a higher standard of living.

The reason some rich people are stingy is also the reason they are rich.
